BONHEUR'S MASTERPIECE.

Story of the Famous French Artist's Painting, "The Horse Fair."

In her story of Rosa Bonheur in "Tales From the Old-World and the New," Sophie M. Collman, the author writing of the artist's masterpiece "The Horse Fair," says:

"Never, surely, had there been so many sketches of horses; they covered the walls, the tables, the chairs, the easels and even the floor for the work; just then he had nothing for Rosa but horses. She pointed away at them all as if she could have done it with her eyes shut. Every horse in the great picture had been sketched countless times, and still Rosa felt that she must try just one more pose.

"All things, however, must come to an end, even sketches and so in the course of time the 'Horse Fair' was finished. The world has pronounced it Rosa Bonheur's masterpiece, for at though she was to paint many splendid pictures in the years still to come, none would ever quite equal this.

"My Parisienne friere," she called it in jest, but that is just what it is—a frieze of horses; there is not much landscape, and the men hardly count and they have usurped the entire canvas. They are ponderous Norman horses, gray, brown and sorrel, ready to stampede out of the picture and taking all the strength of the blue bloomed hostlers to hold them in. Rosa had wished to portray vigorous life and motion, and she knew that she had succeeded.

"Many of her pictures went to foreign lands, and she hoped that this one might remain in France, but it, too, went on its travels, and as though the restless horses could not endure quiet, never stopped until it had crossed the ocean, and after many adventures was finally tethered in the Metropolitan museum, in New York city, far, far away from Rosa's studio."

Record Piling Contract.
The largest piling contract ever given on the Pacific coast, according to the Vancouver Sun, has just been awarded by the Canadian Pacific Railway to a Vancouver crossing company. The contract amounts to $150,000. A large number of the piles to be delivered will be 150 feet long. This gives an idea of the size and permanency of the dock extension that is being made by the railway.
