BIG JESS WILLARD HAS BOUGHT CIRCUS

Heavyweight Champion Now Controls the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show.

Jess Willard, world's heavyweight boxing champion, yesterday took over the control of the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show and Circus, which heretofore has been owned by Edward Arlington, a local showman. News of the transaction which makes Willard the owner of his own circus reached this city yesterday in the form of a telegram from Holyoke, Mass., announcing that the heavyweight champion had paid Arlington the sum of $105,000 for control of the show. Roy O. Archer, secretary to Willard, attended to the details of the sale and the purchase included two trains of cars, 200 horses and all equipment. Archer, a life-long friend and pal of Willard, was formerly in the banking business.

In the telegram it was stated that the show started operating under the management of Willard yesterday, and it is the ambition of the champion to own the finest tent show in this country. In the management of the show, Willard will be assisted by Melville B. Raymond, a local showman, with offices in the Knickerbocker Building, and the details of mapping out routes and railroad schedules will be looked after by Arlington, the former owner, who has considerable experience in this line through his connection with other shows.

Willard has been working with the present circus almost continuously since he took the heavyweight championship title away from Jack Johnson, in their memorable battle at Havana on April 5th, 1915. The only boxing contest he has taken part in since acquiring his championship laurels was in this city, on the night of March 25th, 1916, when Willard boxed a ten-round, no decision bout, with Frank Moran at Madison Garden. Joining the Wild West show for the season of 1915, Willard toured the country with the outfit for the season and it was estimated that his efforts as an entertainer on the saddest gave him the sum of $102,000. This season Willard opened with the Arlington show on April 11th, at Norfolk, Va., and has played steadily since. At one part of the season the heavyweight champion and his band of Indians and cowboys appeared in Brooklyn, but the show failed to draw up to expectations, the reason being that adverse weather was encountered throughout the stay of the show.

Of late there have been reports to the effect that Carl Morris, the Oklahoma heavyweight, had been signed by the circus management to replace Willard, who was being let out on the allegation that he was no longer a drawing card. It was even decided that Morris was to join the show shortly, one of the latter's reasons for undertaking the contract being to attempt to create a popular demand for a heavyweight championship bout with Willard. The action of Willard, in buying the show, bag and baggage, however, discounts all the reports that have been sent out about Morris joining the troupe.

Alexander Some Hitter.
Grover Alexander, Philly pitcher, is battling a remarkable clip for a pitcher anyway. He is hitting the ball often and hitting it far. His performance lately would be acceptable to any of our best known wallopers. On May 23rd he started his streak against the Reds. He made three hits, one a home run. May 30th, against Schupp, he made one hit, that a two-bagger, and on June 2nd, his next appearance, he larrupped a two-bagger. He made two triples on June 6th in Chicago. Running around the bases doesn't seem to have bothered him for he white-washed the Cubs.

Praise For the C.R.A.
Montreal Herald: The Canadian Racing Associations showed a fine sportsmanlike attitude in not attempting to squeeze in any second legislation comes into force on August first. It was recognized by the C.R.A. directors that the object of the anti-betting legislation is to end racing for the duration of the war, and in deciding to hold but one meeting at each of the tracks under their jurisdiction they showed an appreciation of that spirit.

WORLD'S SERIES HERO NEVER TO PITCH AGAIN

Physician Says "Smoky Joe" Wood Probably Permanently Disabled.

As a result of his come-back stunt against the New York Yankees, Smoky Joe Wood will probably never pitch again. This was made known yesterday after he had been examined by Dr. Robert Drury of Columbus, O., who is here attending a convention.

"The doctor may be right or wrong," said Wood, despairingly today, "but one thing is certain, that is, that I'm not going to take another cent of salary from Jack Dunn till I can pitch again."

Dr. Drury is the physician who treated Wood before he went South with the Cleveland team, which is here now playing a series with the Senators.

"Wood," said Dr. Drury, "should never have pitched more than one or two innings, and those just for the sake of practice. He has strained his arm badly and probably permanently as the result of his trying it."

Lee Fohl, as usual, has something to say, too. He declares Wood has been of great aid to him in developing younger pitchers, and he'll go to the front for him, no matter what. That is Fohl's way of saying he'll keep Wood, even if Joe can't pitch at all.

NO U.S. ATHLETES CLAIM EXEMPTION

Prominent Figures in Various Lines of Sport Register for Service.

The patriotism of the athletes of New York was further exemplified yesterday when it was officially stated that not a single boxer or athlete of prominence had claimed exemption from military service on June 6, when the nation enrolled the names of more than ten million men between the ages of 21 and 31 under the conscription act passed by Congress. Other sections of the country have gone further in that numerous men whose names are well known in the sport world have already donned Uncle Sam's uniform to fight beside their Canadian brethren in France.

Among the best known of the boxers is Jack Dillon, the great middleweight fighter, who has enlisted in the navy. Henry Leonard has decided to enlist for naval service, too.

Among the famous athletes who are now in the same service as J. E. Malcomson of Seattle, national hurdling champion in 1909. He is a doctor in the naval reserve. After fulfilling his athletic ambitions he studied medicine and surgery and applied a few weeks ago to do his bit in the war. Packey McFarland has registered, with no claim for exemption, and many other men of equal prominence are ready to do their bit.

COLLINS AND GANDIL MAY QUIT WHITE SOX

Eager to Enlist, But Departure Would Cripple Team.

Eddie Collins, star second baseman of the Chicago White Sox, and "Chick" Gandil, first baseman of the same club, have called upon Manager Rowland to learn what their status would be if they decided to quit the game and don the army uniform. Both men expressed the keenest eagerness to go to the front, but neither wishes to cripple the Comiskey aggregation now that their prospects for a pennant look so bright. Rowland in a talk with Collins pointed to the fact that every member of the team had waived exemption, and that Comiskey and himself were in perfect accord in the belief that every man on the White Sox payroll should be free to do his duty to his country. It was pointed out, however, that the military authorities believe that for the present the star ball player is more valuable as a ball player than he would be as a soldier, inasmuch as the desire of the Government to keep baseball and all other sports alive. It was also stated that at the end of the present baseball season every eligible man on the White Sox team would be ready to report fit for army service.

BAD WEATHER HURTING THE MAJOR LEAGUES

They Are Dropping Thousands Owing to Forced Postponements

The clubs of the major leagues have lost approximately $200,000 as a result of the unseasonable weather this spring. And daily as long as the period of cold and rain continues, baseball's losses are mounting at the rate of tens of thousands. It is not extraordinary for baseball to suffer on account of bad weather in the spring, but never in the history of the sport has it been subjected to such uncouth treatment as the weather man has dealt this year. John K. Tener, president of the National League, estimates that his league has lost a similar amount, and it is money the clubs cannot recover.

"Never before has baseball suffered from such a prolonged period of unseasonable weather, as has prevailed this spring," declared the president of the National League. "We have had to contend with some bad weather in the spring in previous years, but never have we had as much as this season. Not only have we been sorely harassed by rain, but cold weather also has cost us thousands of dollars."

"It is apparent that the war situation has not affected attendance at baseball games, for whenever the weather is clear, the fans come out in large numbers. On two occasions the Giants have played to crowds of about 30,000 persons."

The weather man perhaps has treated the Giants more shabbily than the other clubs. Cold and rain cost the club thousands of dollars during the series with the Cardinals and the Cubs, both of which teams would have drawn big audiences. Rain also spoiled the first doubleheaders of the local season scheduled between the Giants and Phillies, each of which would have attracted many thousands of fans.

And the other clubs in the major leagues have suffered to a similar degree. The Cardinals and Cubs and Reds during the early games in the west lost thousands of dollars only to run flush into another stretch of soggy weather when they came east. All of the western clubs expected to recover the early losses from the games with the eastern teams, but instead have gone deeper into the hole.

LIKELY YOUNGSTERS

Have Recently Been Sold By J. E. Madden.

John E. Madden, New York, who breeds more thoroughbred horses for the market than any other turfman, is busy disposing of the two-year-olds that he has raised for this season. One of the best, the gelding, was sold yesterday to Samuel D. Riddle, who races under the stable name of Glen Riddle Farm. Mr. Riddle purchased Bully Boy, by Ogden-Yankee's Sister, which, though it has not raced, has shown great speed in his trials. Another youngster sold was Smoky Lad, which went to Walter M. Jeffords. Further sales are expected in the near future, as Tim Sullivan who brought Les Darcy to this country, has applied for a trainer's license and is contemplating buying of the Madden youngsters.

Crippled Hurrier Pitches Well.
Blind in one eye, William Forsythe, a 19-year-old pitcher of Fremont, Ohio, is trying to make his way to baseball fame despite this infirmity and a crippled pitching hand like the famous "Miner" Brown. Forsythe lost the thumb of his right hand several years ago, but a stump-like portion allows him to get a firm grip on the ball. He has a choice assortment of curves and pitches with great speed and control.

He recently fanned 35 men in two games, holding his opponents to three hits in the first contest.
