

Kingstonians and Other Queen's Graduates Who Have Gone Overseas With the Queen's Field Ambulance Corps

MAJOR RALPH M. FILSON, KINGSTON.
A Queen's graduate, who left for overseas in command of Queen's Field Ambulance Corps.
—Photo by Blakemore Studio, Kingston.

LIEUT. OSCAR KENNEDY.
A Queen's graduate who recently left for England with Queen's Field Ambulance. He was at Cliveden Hospital, but returned here to graduate.
—Photo by Blakemore Studio, Kingston.

CAPT. FREDERICK HOUSTON.
A Queen's graduate who recently returned to France with Queen's Field Ambulance, having been over previously as a Sergeant.
—Photo by Blakemore Studio, Kingston.

LIEUT. MORLEY SELLERY.
A Queen's graduate with Queen's Field Ambulance overseas. He is the son of Rev. S. Sellery, formerly pastor of Queen Street church, Kingston, now of Napanea.
—Photo by Blakemore Studio, Kingston.

PTE. DAVID TROTTMAN,
21st Battalion. Killed in action on April 22nd, 1916. He was formerly of the R. C. H. A., Kingston.

CAPT. M. J. MORRISON.
A Queen's graduate who left for France as Quartermaster of Queen's Field Ambulance Corps.
—Photo by Blakemore Studio, Kingston.

LIEUT. R. H. ANGROVE.
A Kingstonian and Queen's graduate with Queen's Field Ambulance overseas.
—Photo by Blakemore Studio, Kingston.

LIEUT. F. R. O'RIELLY,
Wolfe Island, a Queen's graduate overseas with Queen's Field Ambulance.
—Photo by Blakemore Studio, Kingston.

CAPT. W. H. HICKS.
A Kingstonian and Queen's graduate overseas with Queen's Field Ambulance.
—Photo by Blakemore Studio, Kingston.

LIEUT. BENJAMIN J. LYONS.
A Kingstonian and graduate of Queen's University, now overseas with Queen's Field Ambulance Corps.
—Photo by Blakemore Studio, Kingston.

CAPT. P. THOMAS McILROY,
464 Division Street, Kingston, who left for overseas recently as paymaster of Queen's Field Ambulance.
—Photo by Blakemore Studio, Kingston.

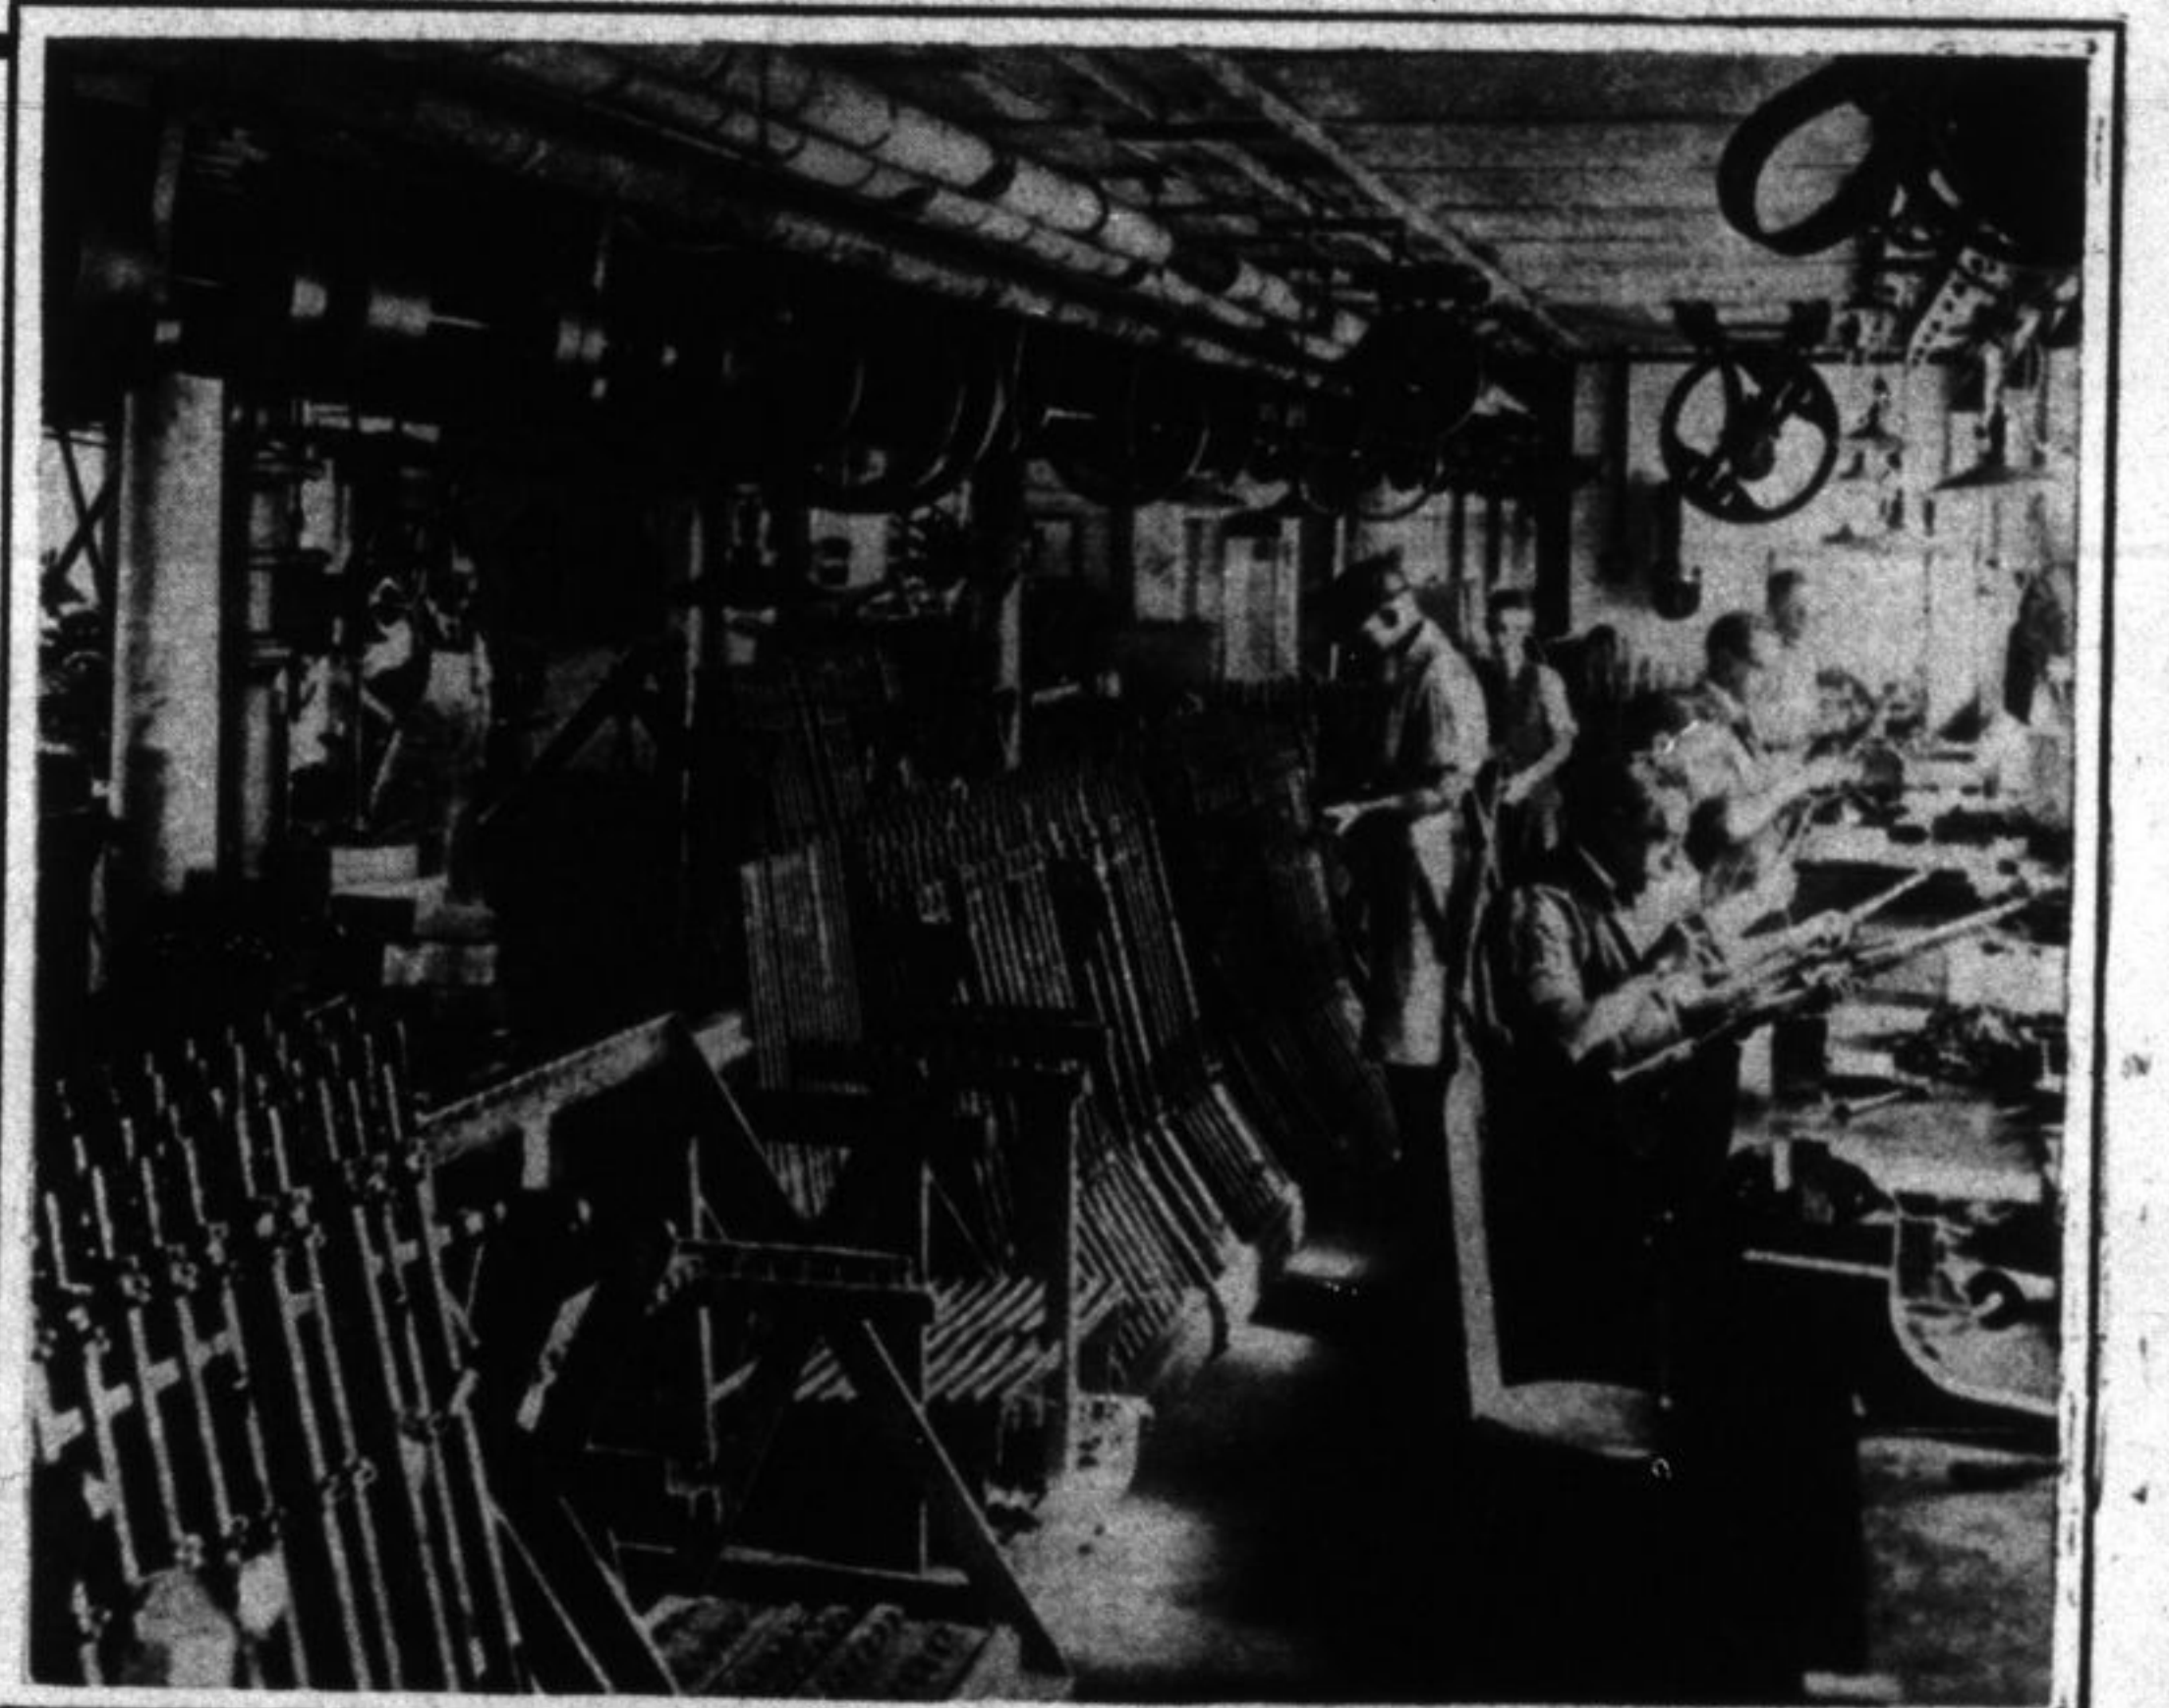

LANCE-CORP. J. J. HOWARD.

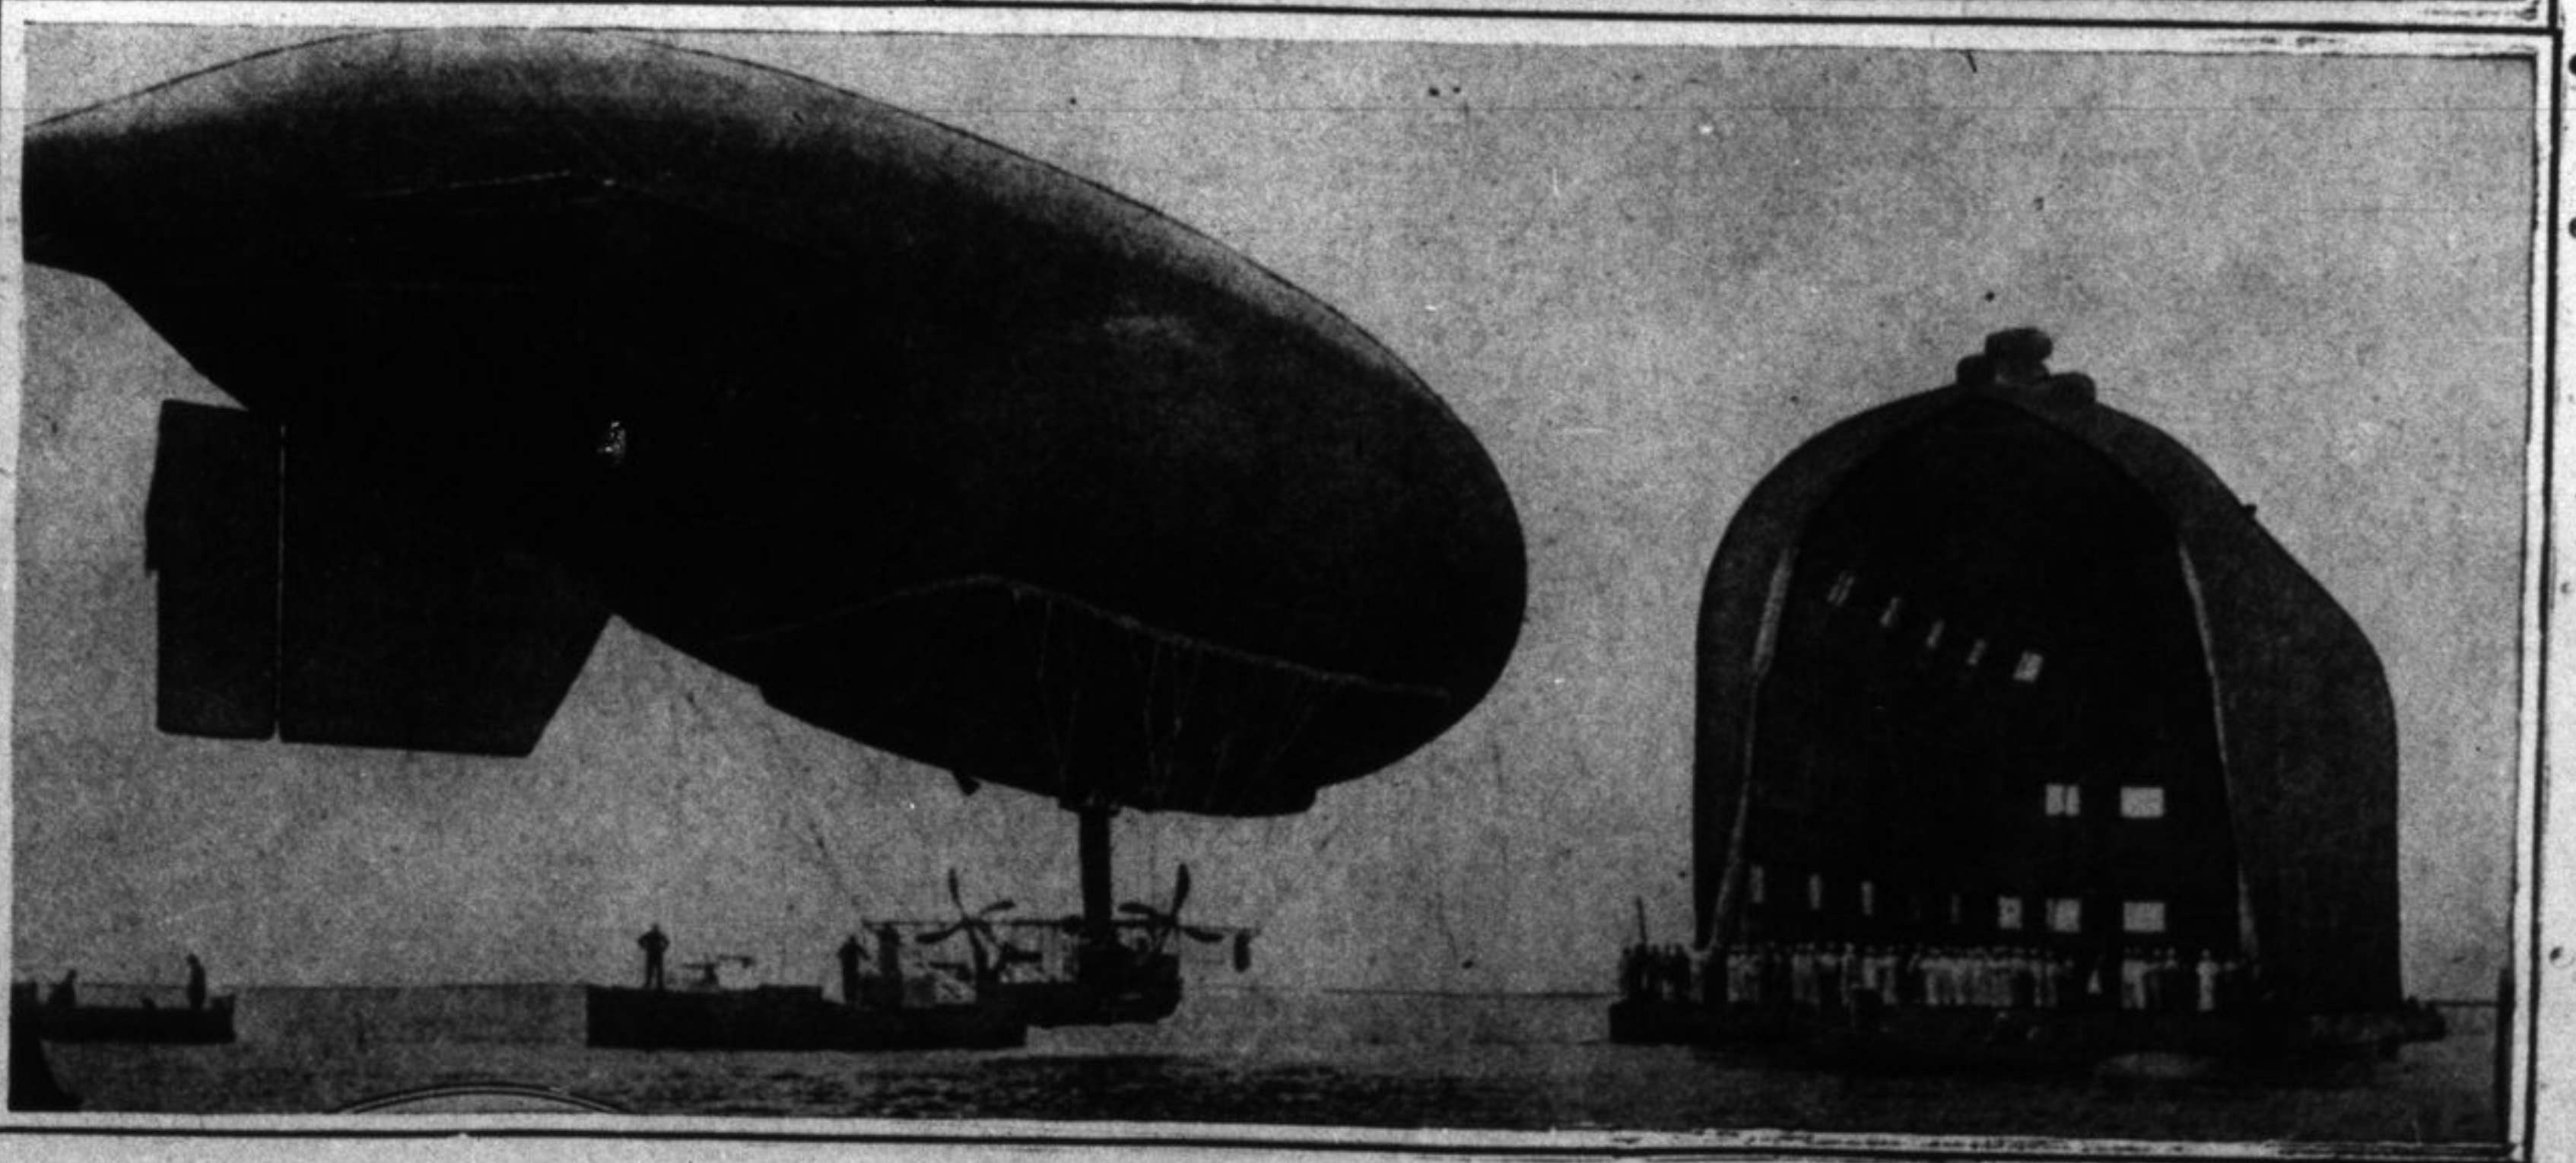

The beautiful harbor of Charlotte Amelia, in the Island of St. Thomas, which recently passed by purchase from the ownership of Denmark to that of the United States. The former Danish West Indies are now known as the Virgin Islands. Their value to America is chiefly that they provide a new base for the navy. (To left.)

General view of the Government armory at Springfield, Mass., showing the parts of the rifle being assembled. This armory, which dates back to 1789, is to-day working on a war basis, with a staff of two thousand men turning out more than a thousand rifles a day. (To right.)

The Administration Building at St. Thomas from which the Virgin Islands are now being governed. The picture shows that Uncle Sam is in possession. United States Army men are doing guard duty, and over the building the Stars and Stripes is flying.

The United States Navy's new dirigible, D. N. 1, built by the Connecticut Aircraft Company, New Haven, on its recent trial flight at Pensacola, Fla., photographs of which have just been released by the Government. It is here shown leaving its floating hangar for its first trip under the observation of Government experts.