To Have Perfect Skin Throughout the Summer

These days the face needs special care and attention. Flying dust and dirt, the heating sun, are severe on any skin. Their despoiling effects are best overcome by the application of pure merozined wax. This keeps the skin and pores in a clearly condition, the complexion beautifully white and spotless. Discolored, freckled and roughened cuticle are actually absorbed by it. One ounce of merozined wax, obtainable at any drug store, is sufficient to completely renovate a soiled complexion. It is used like cold cream, allowed to remain on over night, and washed off in the morning.

As the skin tends to expand in warm weather, causing wrinkles to form, a good astringent lotion should be used. Dissolve 1 oz. powdered salicylic in 1/2 pt. witch hazel. Bathe the face in this during the heat of the day or before going out for theater or social affair. It is a remarkable skin tightener and wrinkle eraser.

With the Fingers! Says Corns Lift Out Without Any Pain

Soft corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn can shortly be lifted right out with the fingers if you will apply directly upon the corn a few drops of frezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

It is claimed that at small cost one can get a quarter of an ounce of frezone at any drug store, which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection.

This new drug is an ether compound, and while sticky, dries the moment it is applied and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue.

This announcement will interest many women here, for it is said that the present high-heeled footwear is putting corns on practically every woman's feet.

Several American women have been decorated by the King of Great Britain.

THE CONFESSIONS OF ROXANE

(By Frances Walter)

MARIAM SHOCKS MR. KENWOOD.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate).

When we were in our rooms I re-proved Mariam severely for consenting to take supper with Mr. Kenwood, but my lecture affected her as water does a goose's back.

"How can you be so inconsistent, Roxane?" she asked. "Did not you and I agree to see something of the city's night life. And now that good fortune has sent us a man to accompany us would it not be the height of folly to refuse his invitation?"

"But is it fair to him?" I objected.

"He certainly does not look as if he could afford to entertain us, and it would be criminal to put him to such an expense merely to gratify our whim. Besides, it is not at all prudent for us to be going about the streets at night with a young man of whom we know nothing."

"Roxane, I do believe you are trying to be unreasonable. This young man is the most inoffensive fellow that you ever met. Did you not notice how good and simple he was? He would not harm anything and as for his finances, why that is his own affair. If he chooses to invite us to go with him, I suppose he has counted the cost and feels that he is able to pay it."

"Well we shall not stay out very long," I declared. "I do not think it very nice for you to be out under such circumstances, but if you insist upon going I shall insist that we come home at a respectable hour."

"Any old hour is respectable if you are in good company," replied Mariam impudently. Then she added by way of concession. "And I shall be with you."

So we went out into the hallway where Mr. Kenwood, hat in hand, stood waiting to receive us. He had combed his long locks back over his high forehead, exchanged his white silk bow tie for a flowing black one and apparently considered himself dressed for any occasion.

"Where are we going?" asked Mariam with a nervous little laugh. I do hope it is to be a wicked place."

"What?"

Mr. Kenwood's question was also
