The Truth About Corns

You have read much fiction about corns. Were that not so there would be no corns. All people would use Blue-jay.

Here is the truth, as stated by a chemist who spent 25 years on this corn problem. And as proved already on almost a billion corns: This invention—Blue-jay—makes corn troubles needless. It stops the pain instantly, and stops it forever. In 48 hours the whole corn disappears, save in rare cases which take a little longer. That is the truth, and millions of people know it. Every month it is being proved on nearly two million corns. So long as you doubt it you'll suffer. The day that you prove it will see your last corn-ache. It costs so little—is so easy and quick and painless—that you owe yourself this proof. Try Blue-jay tonight.

OUR FOOD CONTROLLER

Fought Hard as Politician, But Was Not Elected.

"Big head, little wit," is a saying rather more stupid than the majority of proverbial expressions. It is utterly discredited and cast out of court when we consider Hon. W. J. Hanna, says J. E. Middleton in The Toronto News. He has a head made of iron, but packed with ironical logic, but packed with wit. His record as a professional man in legal practice, as a Parliamentarian, as a platform speaker, and as an administrator, shows not only fullness of purpose, and accuracy of judgment, but a goodly proportion of that quality known in the country as horse-sense—a quality which is the foundation of personality.

Mr. Hanna's head has all the outward signs of excellence—the distance from the tip of the ear to the crown is marked, the rear curve is graceful. No grossness is seen at the back of his neck. The transferred double chin is not apparent. The forehead is ample to temple is splendid and over the eyes appear those little "bumps" and "swellings" which must have something to do with the perceptive qualities. Most men who can think rapidly and brilliantly are favored with these intellectual foot-hills.

Mr. Hanna's face is naturally strong, but its strength is masked by the wrinkles of laughter and by a seductive cheek-dimple that no voter could ever resist. Dancing eyes behind sparkling glasses convey a Napoleonic nose and the forehead a dipple is near a chin like that of Admiral Beatty. Such a head crowns a short but powerful frame. The shoulders are vast, but in contrast the hands are well formed and small. Constantly in Mr. Hanna, one sees the flash of force or "bull-headedness" and tact of determination and diplomacy. If he was able to win a seat in the Legislature from a constituency normally Liberal, if he was able to hold that seat as long as he chose, the reason lay in his personal ability. He imposed himself upon the people—then charmed them. He challenged their hostility and then disarmed it by some merry jest or by some act of unobtrusive delicacy. He is at once a sentimentalist and a realist, a leader and a driver. If he had been a foreman for the Pharaoh who built the pyramids he would have got enormous quantities of work out of the slaves—but they would have loved him as a father, despite his long-lashed whip.

No man in the political arena fought with more vigor and effectiveness, but his enemies never hated him. He never had the capacity for inspiring that blind hostility which some politicians can arouse with one sentence. No one ever looked upon Mr. Hanna, as some Conservatives have regarded Mr. Carvell or as some Liberals have regarded Sir George Foster. He has been accustomed as a lawyer to "swing big propositions." Energy, sound judgment, and personally served him here as it served him in the reform of the penal institutions of Ontario. If bats roost to-night in the old Central Prison, if delinquents and criminals sleep to-night in unlocked rooms with unbarred windows, if to-morrow they go to their field work, bound-in-honor not to escape, trusted, unutilized, and treated as men and brethren, the Hon. W. J. Hanna has the credit of it. This is the man to whom the Government has given the most responsible of offices. This is the Food Controller of Canada, equal in prestige and authority with Herbert C. Hoover, the American diplomat and dictator, holding unrestricted powers, and possessing the brains to exercise them with good judgment and decisiveness.

On four distinct charges of theft, Arthur N. Drown, Toronto, a young man of about twenty years, was committed to penitentiary for two years at hard labor. Your best friend is not the one who is always excusing your faults.

"HIS OTHER EYES"

The original of the above drawing, by F. Matania, of the London Sphere, was donated to a sale which was recently held in London. Large crowds visited the sale, and there was enthusiasm about the whole scene which insured success for the affair, which was conducted for the benefit of the wounded.
