STUDENTS BEING EXAMINED

A NUMBER HAVE NOT YET REGISTERED.

It is Expected That Some Medical and Science Men Will be Exempted From Medical Service.

A number of Queen's University students who are within the ages prescribed for military service under the Military Service Act are being examined at the chief recruiting office as to their medical fitness.

Many of them, though declared unfit under the voluntary system, are not sure as to the system in vogue under the act, and have not registered in their faculty until they could be certain as to their medical fitness.

Although nothing definite has been given out by the Military Service Council as to whether certain students will be exempted from service, it is considered quite probable that medical men and some in the faculty of Applied Science will be relieved of the responsibility of service.

If the plan, which has been adopted in the United States is carried out, students with an elementary knowledge of the principles of medicine and some who have grasped the principles of engineering, particularly chemical engineering, will be permitted to continue their studies.

This is due to the exigencies of the hour when the call is for men equipped with either medical or scientific knowledge. The latter, if they are examined, will be spared not only that they may be engaged in essential industries during the war, but also in the reorganization period after the war. Men who are also equipped with political and economic knowledge, which will render them useful in dealing with the post-bellum problems, will be spared as far as possible, if rumor speaks correctly.

Dr. J. C. Connell, dean of the faculty of medicine, was asked by the Whig on Tuesday morning whether Queen's University was making any representations to the authorities to have medical students who have completed at least one year of service exempted.

"Nothing is being done at the present time," was his reply. With this a hearsay has been put to rest, and it is not likely that anything definite will be learned until the men get actually come before the tribunal, and instructions are received from the Military Service Council.

Claims to Have Been Hounded.

A young man named Samuel Norris, who is said to have come to Kingston from Detroit, and who was discharged from the 9th Battalion, has a long tale of how his life was ruined because he refused to pay $3.50 to a man for some whiskey he bought. He claims that he has been hounded from place to place by a band of crooks. Little credence is given to his tale.

The mounted parades of some of the battery boys attracted much attention on the streets in the mornings. Kingstonians missed the artillery parades in the summer. The series should be completed by the end of this week.

In Juvenile Court.
A nine year old lad, who was arrested on Monday, charged with the theft of $29 from a lady on Toronto street, came before Magistrate Farrell in the Juvenile Court, and was remanded for a week in order that further inquiries might be made concerning the case.

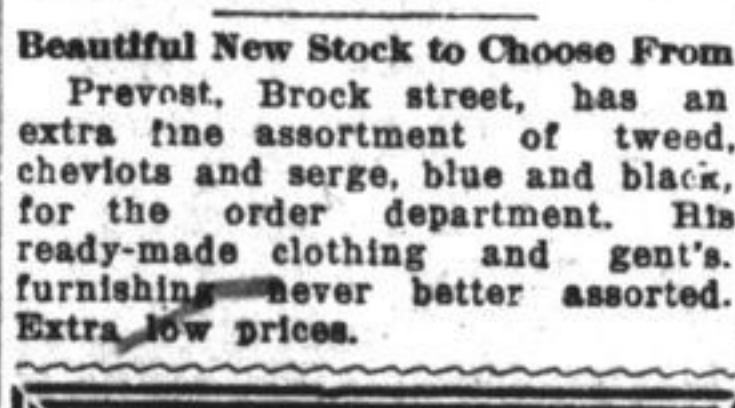

Another case, in which it was claimed that a child had been attacked by a dog was dealt with, and the owner ordered to dispose of the canine.

Scarcity of Crab Apples.
Quite a few citizens have been asking for crab apples on the market. A farmer informed the Whig, on Tuesday morning, that the crop was a very small one, and that in some cases the apples were of such a poor variety that the farmers were not taking the trouble to pick them up. On the market Saturday crab apples sold at fifty cents a peck, and this is certainly pretty dear.

FIVE MINUTE LIMIT FOR CARS

Cars Should Not be Parked on Princess Street For Hour After Hour at a Time.

One of the greatest indications of the lack of automobile supervision in the city is the way that cars and other vehicles are allowed to be parked on Princess street. The Whig has been questioned about this on many occasions and recent accidents show that something ought to be done in this regard.

The rule in Toronto, Ottawa and in many other cities is that automobiles or other vehicles cannot be parked on business streets for longer than five minutes at a time. All other streets, beside those named as business streets, are considered residential streets (includes lanes, side streets, etc.) Cars may be parked on these streets.

The Whig is desirous of having the best of traffic regulations here. If properly worded and enforced they work no hardship on any person but provide against many accidents and much inconvenience. To name Princess street from King to Barrie, as a business street and allowing no car to remain parked on it for more than five minutes would so far in removing a prevalent and dangerous evil now existing.
