Simple Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

Letters to the Editor

The Conscription Issue.

Kingston, Oct. 3rd (To the Editor): Probably no public issue in the history of the Dominion has aroused more controversy than the present problem, conscription. In other wars it was not necessary to force men to fight for their country; they came voluntarily and in sufficient numbers to crush any foe. But in this war things are different. Men are required by the million; whereas in former wars thousands sufficed.

Some argue that this is not Canada's war, that the Motherland started the war, and that she may finish it the best way possible, etc. Such arguments are the ravings of a more or less demented mind. Should we lose this war, in six months' time we would be speaking German; the institutions of the Vaterland would take the places of our present systems and Prussian methods would rule. Consequently to preserve our liberty we must win the war. Every one is not a war expert. Arm-chair critics may take a pessimistic view of things and say we are losing the war, and that we cannot combat the Germans. Such a list of their own free will they must be forced. Unfortunately we are but playing at war. We do not realize the way the boys in the trenches do that we are at war.

In England and in France the women and older men do the farm work and the men go to fight the foe in the right and proper manner. In Canada the young farmers hide behind the excuse that they are needed on the farms. Some one ought to re-educate them a few lines from: "Breathes there a man with soul so dead." Never have I seen such evidence of national prosperity as at the present time in Canada; plenty of money, automobiles, and luxuries are everywhere undreamed of. How can we hope to win the war if we do not conserve our supplies? There is something radically wrong with our national spirit if men have to be dragged to fight. The conscription is a real soldier. In Calais I saw the beginning of a free fight merely because an English Tommy had called another a conscript. I pity the first Canadian conscripts to land in England. They will be about as popular as a skunk in a nursery. The man who has waited for three years and enlists now is no better than a conscript. I speak from the standpoint of the boys in the trenches. It would be of little benefit to me to exaggerate the case.

Regarding the conscription of wealth — it is a fine idea; but it is locking the stable-door after the horse has gone. The big food profiteers have made their pile; now let them moralize and tell the rest of the country what should be done. As Shakespeare says: "It is a good divine that follows his own teachings." The women are recommended to sign food pledges, and most idiotic idea to be sure. Mrs. Jones signs the pledge and Mrs. Brown refuses to sign it saying that she will waste if she wants to. Is that fair to Mrs. Jones? If our government wants to conserve the supplies compelling people to save? If our food controller had the brains of a jackrabbit he could see that the voluntary system in anything has proved a rank failure. To Germany it is a crime to waste, and the offenders are punished according to the nature of their offence. That is one of the main reasons why Germany is holding out. The war is far from being over, and the sooner we realize that fact the sooner will we be in a position to fight the foe economically as well as on the field of battle. Some labor organizations are trying to institute strikes, complaining that their wages are incompatible with their labors. If proper legislation were introduced, this condition of affairs would not prevail. All of our energy should be directed to the sole task of "straining the Hun."

Individual aggrandisement should play no part in the winning of the war. Our "would-be" soldiers, such as colonels and majors who are now returning to Canada, having refused to revert, should be conscripted as privates, their actions plainly indicating that they are in the army purely for mercenary reasons. In fact, they should be every one presented with the white feather on their return to their native land "for services rendered in the battles of Piccadilly, the Strand, and Leicester Square." It is an insult to the fighting man in France to permit these veterans of Shorncliffe to wear the King's uniform.

Again, I know of instances where men have been made honorary captains in the capacity of medical officers, etc., etc., who have absolutely no knowledge of army regulations, men who at every opportunity try to inflict their ideas on the poor returned soldiers who have done their bit at a heavy cost. Returned officers should be placed in charge of returned men wherever possible; because the boys who have no respect for a healthy man who has not been overseas. Excuses do not go with men who have risked their all for their country, and one cannot blame them for resenting improper treatment from these pseudo-soldiers. I know of an instance where a veteran of some two weeks' standing, a medical officer, who had never been overseas, tried an invalid soldier in his pyjamas for some petty crime. His action was without precedent in the annals of the army; as a man, if ill, cannot be tried even if he be up to a court-martial. Perhaps his artistic temperament prompted him to conscript his superior in Alabama and Canada, he has gained a continent wide reputation, which has brought him numerous attractive offers. With Mrs. Dobbs he has left for his new home.

Employees of the Republic Iron and Steel Company at Rainmont, on the occasion of his leaving, presented Mr. Dobbs with a handsome watch and travelling bag, and was given a most impressive send off.

SOLDIERS DID NOT COME

TELEGRAMS INCORRECTLY STATED TIME OF ARRIVAL.

Returned Soldier's Friends and Relatives Are Suffering From Mistakes of the Discharge Depot. Three times in succession the Discharge Depot authorities at Quebec have sent out messages that a big party of returned soldiers was to arrive at Kingston this week. First it was at eight o'clock on Tuesday, then again on Wednesday, and for a third time at 6.30 a.m. Thursday. On every occasion, in spite of the weather and the early hour, a large crowd of friends and relatives were on hand to give the returning men a welcome — but the boys did not come.

Inquiry at the office of the Military Hospitals Commission revealed the fact that the telegrams announcing the arrival came into that office from Quebec. These messages coming in the usual way were considered as authentic, and the officials are at a loss to understand the meaning of the third consecutive mistake.

The Whig and the officials sincerely regret making the announcement which brought the people to the railway station at such an early hour. The matter, however, is being taken up in such a way that a repetition is not likely to occur.

Dobbs, a son of the late Richard Dobbs, of Kingston, has resigned his position as superintendent of the Rainmont Division of the Republic Iron and Steel Company at Bessemer, Ala., to take charge of the Goudreau Mines, in Ontario, owned by the General Chemical Company. The company has huge war orders for immediate delivery, and Mr. Dobbs's task will be to extend the operations of the existing mines and to sink others, so as to guarantee an adequate output.
