The Theatres

"Henpecked Henry" To-night.
Halton Powell's "Henpecked Henry" has the choice fun-makers of the show business in its principal roles, and the engagement at the Grand Opera House may be anticipated as the laughing hit of the season. Other cities pronounce this company and its chorus of beauties first-class. The dramatic critics write of the show in the most enthusiastic manner and praise its players and the play. Theatre managers endorse the play with an earnestness truly gratifying. The public accepts the fun-making in a spirit which serves to make the players strive even harder to win favor.

At the Grand.
Charming Emmy Wehlen will be starred in the Metro Wonderplay "The Trail of the Shadow," at the Grand for the first three days of next week. For the first time since her advent into motion pictures, Emmy Wehlen has a part which utilizes all her dramatic abilities in Sylvia, the heroine of this production. She supports herself by making head-work. A rich young Easterer travelling in the west, buys quantities of it to send back home to his mother and sister, and falls in love with the beautiful weaver of beads. A romantic and beautiful love-story is developed. Other features and an act of big-time vaudeville round out a very attractive programme. "The Spoilers" will be here soon.

At Griffin's.
One of the most brilliant audiences ever assembled in this popular playhouse of classic photodrama, witnessed last evening the stupendous patriotic spectacle, "The Little American," in which "America's Sweetheart," Mary Pickford enacts one of the most lovable characterizations of her wonderful career. This production will go down in motion picture history as one of its greatest works of art, as well as one of its most powerful appeals. "Little Mary" is seen as a modern American girl, wearing exquisite modern gowns. "The Little American" is the supreme attainment of this gifted little star.

At The Strand.
For the first three days of next week the Strand will present a six-reel Master Picture entitled "The Girl Who Did Not Care." This production is a melodrama, simple if not entirely pure. The cast contains as the cast of a melodrama should characters consisting of weak husband, wronged wife, helpless child (who is kidnapped), villain and villainess. Beware whom in a moment of kindness you receive into your home. "Do Children Count," and a "Misty Suffer" comedy will also be shown.

Isolde Menges Returns Engagement.
Owing to many people being unable to hear Miss Menges play last Wednesday night on account of the terrible rain and wind storm, Miss Menges has consented to return to Kingston next Tuesday to give another concert. So many who did not hear her wished to, so now they will be able to. Those who did hear Miss Menges play were charmed and carried away with her playing. She is truly England's greatest violinist and a lovable unspoiled natural young robust woman. Miss Menges has been playing since she was three years and seven months old. Her first appearance was made at that age in her father's drawing room. Madame Melba was present at Miss Menges' debut in Queen's Hall, London, and expressed herself then in very enthusiastic terms, saying nothing would please her more than to have Miss Menges on tour with her.

150 MEN AND BOYS WANTED TO DIG SPUDS

Only Thirty Could Be Accommodated on the Farms of the District.

Little boys and big boys and Queen's students besieged the office of A. W. Sirett, district agricultural representative, Market Square, at an early hour on Saturday morning to be taken to the farms of the district to dig potatoes. At 7.45 a.m. there were about one hundred and fifty boys and men from ten to twenty-five years of age waiting for conveyances to take them to the country. The gathering was the result of an arrangement made by Rev. J. D. Boyd and A. W. Sirett with the farmers of the district to supply labor to dig up the great root crop which has yet been unharvested. Unfortunately accommodation could not be secured for the one hundred and fifty applicants, and only a fifth of that number were taken out in autos to the various places. The farmers, according to the young men, are not very much in need of help.

Military News

A problem that may become perplexing has arisen in the interpretation of the Military Service Act in ascertaining how the act affects officers in the Canadian militia, who by age and status belong to class 1. It is said that high legal authorities have decided that a commissioned man, otherwise included in class 1, is exempt from the terms of the act if he does not see fit to resign his commission. An alternative that would present itself to the Government in that case would be to ask the man to retire from his commission, and thus automatically make him subject to the draft. There is seemingly no power in Canada that can compel a commissioned officer, as long as he holds the commission, to serve in the ranks.

Officers of the active militia, who are actually mobilized and serving with their unit, or on detached duty with guards or otherwise, must comply with the terms of the proclamation just as other active militia officers, or as the ordinary civilian, according to general orders.
