A Woman's Problem

How to Feel Well During Middle Life Told by Three Women Who Learned from Experience.

The Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Read these letters:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I started the Change of Life five years ago. I always had a headache and back-ache with bearing down pains and I would have heat flashes very bad at times with dizzy spells and nervous feelings. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new person and am in better health and no more troubled with the aches and pains I had before I took your wonderful remedy. I recommend it to my friends for I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. MARGARET GRASSMAN, 759 N. Ringgold St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Beverly, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for nervousness and dyspepsia, when I was going through the Change of Life. I found it very helpful and I have always spoken of it to other women who suffer as I did and have had them try it and they also have received good results from it."—Mrs. GEORGE A. DUNBAR, 17 Roundy St., Beverly, Mass.

Erie, Pa.—"I was in poor health when the Change of Life started with me and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or I think I should not have got over it as easy as I did. Even now if I do not feel good I take the Compound and it restores me in a short time. I will praise your remedies to every woman for it may help them as it has me."—Mrs. E. KISLINO, 931 East 24th St., Erie, Pa.

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women may receive free and helpful advice by writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Such letters are received and answered by women only and held in strict confidence.

THE CONFESSIONS OF ROXANE

(By Frances Walter)

SUSPICION.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Mrs. Palmer's insatiable curiosity as to Mr. Gordon made it inevitable that some scheme should be devised to ascertain how long he would be in Enville, and consequently, just what opportunity she would have to lavish her charms upon him, and this was arranged at another almost imperceptible brief conference between her and Mrs. Hardwick. Before their departure we knew what it was. Mrs. Hardwick had discovered that the following Friday was the 13th and she insisted that it was her lucky day. In consequence she hospitably invited all of us to the Chadwick for that evening. Mrs. Palmer chimed in with an endorsement. "Surely you can stretch your visit to Enville that long, Mr. Gordon?" she pleaded.

"Yes, I shall be here, and I shall be very glad to come," he replied, and so it was arranged.

"Well, what do you think of Mr. Gordon?" asked Kenneth when our guests had departed. "Isn't he rather a remarkable man?"

"Yes," I agreed, cautiously.

"It did not dawn upon me at first who he really was," Kenneth went on. "Of course, I have heard of John Gordon the financier, and it would have been very natural for me to suspect who he was when he came into the office the other day to make some inquiries regarding prices, but I did not, even though I knew also from another source that he was here on railroad business. It is astonishing how dense a person can be at times, isn't it?"

I smiled.

"You are not going to trick me into calling you dense, Kenneth," I said.

I do not see why you should have identified Mr. Gordon immediately. The name is not at all an uncommon one."

Kenneth's brow furrowed suddenly.

"What a fool I am," he cried. "I should have suspected it immediately."

"What?"

"The real purpose of this man. Why, he is here to buy the C. P. & Y. I am sure of it!"

I turned a puzzled face to my husband but he did not seem to see me, so intense were his thoughts at that moment on the discovery he had made.

"It will mean a great deal to Higginbotham—it may mean his ruin!" he exclaimed a moment later.

It was several minutes before he explained his cry. Then he told me of Mr. Higginbotham's interest in the short railroad, which was both a link to the two big systems it touched and an outlet for the coal mines which were Mr. Higginbotham's principal possessions. The owner of the little railroad could make or unmake the owner of the mines.

"But I thought Mr. Higginbotham

"He did and up to the present time he has controlled it, but he does not own a majority of the stock. It has been only through friendly relations with others that he has been able to direct the policy of the railroad."

"But why should Mr. Gordon want 'that little line'?" I asked skeptically.

"A man who controls so many roads surely would not worry about that one."

"It is not the road he wants, but 'the coal,'" declared Kenneth, who, had analyzed the possibilities of the situation with lightning rapidity. The road short as it was, traverses one of the greatest coal-producing sections in the country, and, as I said before, whoever controls it would be in a position to force the sale of the coal mine."

"And you think that is Mr. Gordon's plan?"

"Yes," almost shouted Kenneth.

"But it shall not succeed!"
