THE SAVING PATRIOT

FATHER:—Hmph! That old suit's good for still another year, dog-gun it! With the money I save on that—and ginger ale—I'll buy another of those Victory Bonds—yes-sir—dog-gun it!

OLD PHRASES WITH NEW MEANINGS.
"Do Your Bit." That has been the main appeal of this war. Soldiers have answered it—with their lives. Munition workers have answered it—with their toil. Women have answered it in a hundred ways—by the sacrifice of their sons; by their ministrations to the wounded and the dying; by their knitting and their letters and their parcels of good things for the boys at the front.
"Pay Your Bit." That is another appeal. It has been made by the Patriotic Society, by all the various associations which are looking after the welfare of soldiers and soldier-folk. And Canada has answered. She has given ungrudgingly, and will give yet again and again.
"Lend Your Bit." That is war's latest demand. Canada needs money; the great conflict has already cost her over $700,000,000; will yet cost her hundreds of millions more. Of these immense sums, she has to borrow the greater part. But borrow where? Not in London, for Britain has a tremendous burden to carry. Not in New York; the United States is raising its own huge loans. Canada must borrow at home, and the sums she requires are so large that the whole people must Lend Their Bit.
"Carry On." That is the watchword of this war. It is the watchword in the trenches; it must be the watchword at home. It is in order to Carry On that Canada is floating a loan for $150,000,000. It is to be a People's Loan, available in "small portions," so that every citizen may share in it. And the citizen, who subscribes, no matter how much or how little, will be assured of these three great advantages: 1. A high rate of interest. 2. Quick sale for his holdings if he later wishes to turn them into cash. 3. Unimpeachable security for his money in the shape of the whole wealth and resources of Canada. But, best of all, by Lending His Bit he will be Doing His Bit and helping the Dominion to Carry On.
