Dyspepsia Made A Wreck of Her

Ontario Soldier's Wife made worse by ordinary remedies, but soon cured by Dr. Cassell's Tablets.

Mrs. Mary Lawrence, 5 May-place, Kitchener, Ont., writes: "Dr. Cassell's Tablets have made me a new woman. I used to be terribly depressed and suffered so much from Dyspepsia that I was almost a physical wreck. I tried various things which only seemed to make me worse, and then at last I got Dr. Cassell's Tablets. They changed my whole outlook on life. I am well now, I romp with my children, and am looking hopefully forward to my soldier husband's return."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of five cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie and Co., Ltd., 10 McCaul Street, Toronto.

DR. PHELAN NOT ASKED TO GIVE A CERTIFICATE

That Sister Basil Was Insane — Doctor Said She Was Mentally Unbalanced—Police Constable Naylor Admitted He Lied to Father Mea.

Thursday afternoon's proceedings in the case of Sister Mary Basil vs. Archbishop Spratt et al., consisted of evidence by Inspector Jack of the Children's Aid Society, Mrs. Kate Toye, Mrs. Mary Sullivan and Mrs. H. P. Smith with regard to the St. Mary's Orphanage; by Constable John Naylor as to the part he took in the removal of Sister Basil from the orphanage and by Dr. Daniel Phelan as to the mental condition of Sister Basil.

The court experienced a good deal of annoyance as a result of the whispering going on throughout the hall. Matters came to a head during the afternoon when Justice Britton had the court crier read the following notice:

"The court desires to announce that there is too much noise in this room in the way of whispering, conversation and shuffling of feet. The court is not assembled as a place of entertainment. Those desiring such, had better go elsewhere. If those present do not maintain better order, the court room will be cleared."

Mr. Tilley asked Mrs. Smith about lessons given to the children in sewing. Witness said she knew of a Sister giving one lesson near the end of 1916.

"So they are getting sewing lessons out there now," remarked Mr. Tilley, and the spectators laughed.

Witness said she saw Sister Basil at the orphanage.

"Did you ever see the children put to bed?"

"Yes, I have."

"How many times?"

"About four times."

Witness said this was between Sept. 16th and the present time.

Witness had seen tooth brushes and towels at the orphanage. This was since she had been elected president.

Mrs. Kate Toye, of Kingston, said she was a member of the Orphan's Guild since Feb., 1916. She had visited the institution. She had been all over the building, and would say that the condition of the children was good. The boys' clothing was clean and the food good.

Mrs. Mary Sullivan said she had visited the orphanage. She recalled one visit. The home was clean, she was attracted by the cleanliness of the children. Every time she visited the orphanage she had been impressed by the good appearance of the children. She did not inspect the food as she had not considered this necessary.

To Mr. Tilley, witness said she had visited the orphanage a couple of times in 1915 and just once or more in 1916.

Witness never seen the children put to bed. She had seen them in bed. She visited a room with four or five cots.

The Statement of Naylor.
Constable John Naylor was called at 3.20 o'clock.

"You are one of the defendants in this case?" queried Mr. McCarthy.

"It seems like it," was the reply.

Witness was then asked to relate how he came to go to the orphanage. He said the Chief of Police called him into his office, and as a result of this interview had a talk with Dr. Phelan. The latter told him that the Mother Superior at the House of Providence wanted to get a man to help the Sisters take a Sister to Montreal. He did not know when the Sister would be removed. On the night of Sept. 13th, Dr. Phelan telephoned that he wanted to see him.

Witness called to see Dr. Phelan and the latter asked him to go to the orphanage. Witness asked Dr. Phelan if there was any papers and Dr. Phelan said no papers were needed. At the orphanage he met Sister Magdeline, who was angry because witness had not come sooner. She told witness that Sister Basil had gone to her room.

Continuing, witness said: "Sister Magdeline asked me to go upstairs. I stood on one side of the door (the lock side) Sister knocked on the door and called Sister Basil. The door opened. I did not open it. The Sister on the inside opened it. When the door opened, I walked in. Sister Basil was well clothed with the exception that her habit was off. As soon as I made my appearance, Sister Basil cried 'O, a man, a man.'"

Handling The Sister.
"When I got in the room and turned the bed around, the Sister Superior was there and other Sisters came in. I got around the head of the bed and took hold of her arms. She was yelling all the time. I placed her sitting on the bed and sat down beside her. A Sister said to get her boots and stockings. Sister Basil continued yelling and offering resistance. Her boots and stockings were put on and she was placed on a chair in the corner. Witness denied gagging Sister Basil. In the room Sister Basil said witness was smothering her, but he did not use any cloth for the purpose. He denied putting his knee on her abdomen, or of gagging her with his hand on the way downstairs to the automobile. Constable Naylor's story about the trip to the House of Providence was much the same as that told by the plaintiff and Father Mea. He said that at the conclusion of the episode he remarked that a fine mess had been made of it, the Sisters on the one side telling him to do one thing and the priest on the other side telling him to do another.

other, afterwards he telephoned Dr. Phelan but he did not phone anyone else that night.

To Mr. Tilley the witness said he was given to understand that he was dealing with an insane person.

"When did you come to the conclusion that you were not?"

"In the automobile and at the House of Providence," replied Constable Naylor.

All that Dr. Phelan told him was that a Sister was to be removed to Montreal. He understood from the Chief of Police that the woman was insane.

He had no discussion with Dr. Phelan as to what railway accommodation had been arranged and did not know about tickets. He met Dr. Phelan on Division street on the night of Sept. 14th, 1916, four or five blocks from his house. He separated from the doctor at the corner of Union and Alfred streets, where witness boarded a street car to go to the orphanage. During the afternoon he saw Dr. Phelan, who told him to go on the 12.20 train. He did not know who ordered the taxi. Witness said he was dressed in civilian clothing.

Constable Naylor admitted that he was the one who forced Sister Basil onto the bed and into the chair. She resisted his efforts. Witness said he did not bring the garb that was provided for Sister Basil to wear in going to Montreal.

Unaware of Her Sanity.
"Did she appear to you to be crazy?" asked Mr. Tilley.

"I could not say," replied the witness.

In further reply to Mr. Tilley, the witness said he did not know what was intended to be done between 10.45 p.m. and 2 a.m. when the train left for Montreal. He supposed they would stay in the waiting room at the Outer Station. Witness admitted understanding that Father Mea was telling him that he was taking a sane woman to an insane asylum, and ignoring him.

"Has the Archbishop ever come to you about what you said about him on that night?" asked Mr. Tilley.

"Only on one occasion," replied Constable Naylor. "The Archbishop came to my house within a week or so afterwards." Witness did not see him about what he said about him to see him. In a day or so he went to the palace and the Archbishop asked him if it was so what he had heard that witness had put his knee on Sister Basil's chest. Witness said it was not true. He also asked him how he came to mention his name. Witness replied that he had told this necessary.

Don't Diet Yourself TO CURE DYSPEPSIA IT ISN'T NECESSARY.

The sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion who has to pick and choose his food, is the most miserable of all mankind.

Even the little he does eat causes such torture, and is digested so imperfectly that it does him little good.

What dyspeptics need is not dieting, or artificial digestants, but something that will put their stomachs right so they will manufacture its own digestive ferment.

For forty years now Burdock Blood Bitters has been making weak stomachs strong, and curing severe cases of dyspepsia and indigestion that other remedies were powerless to reach.

It restores the stomach to a normal healthy condition so that the food no longer causes distress, but is thoroughly digested and assimilated and goes on its way making rich, red blood.

Mrs. Henry Shaw, Campbellton, N.B., writes: "I was for five years troubled with a weak stomach, and could not eat any food that would agree with me. I tried different medicines, but could not get cured. A friend advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles, and now I am in perfect health."

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

Kept Her Locks Youthful, Dark and Glossy With Common Garden Sage and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home, is messy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy, and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though so disgraceful, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Probs: Saturday, fair and continued mild.
