Taking French Leave.

The origin of the phrase to "take trouble.". Thomas overheard the remark and let it pass for the moment, but at the close of the rehearsal, as the performers were leaving the stage, he passed the lady in question and, turning to her, said very quietly, but with that biting sarcasm which those who knew him did not care to excite, "Madam, you will have to sing a great deal better than you do now before I shall treat you as I treat the members of my orchestral"-Memo of Theodore Thomas.

Origin of the T Rail. Robert Livingston Stevens salled from New York to Liverpool before the advent of the ocean steamer. In those days the passage took two months, and Stevens passed many an hour, jackknife in one hand and a piece of wood in the other, brooding over a problem that had often worried him-how to run a railroad without stone stringers for tracks. He wanted to get an iron rail that would "hold" and would take the place of the thin strips fastened to the chair of the roadbed. Just before he reached England his whittling revealed to him the solution of his problem, and that solution took the form of a T rail with a broad base that could be applied direct to a solid wood support. That T rail is still in use on all the railways of the world.

A Leap into Fame. How many actors have begun their stage career as leading man? Probably Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson is the only instance. One night when Sir Johnstone was a young man of twentyone his father, who was an art critic and journalist, went to see W. G. Wills' "Mary Stuart," and after the performance Wills accompanied him to supper. In the course of conversation the dramatist asked his host how he thought Castelard, the leading part, was played. "Why, my son there, who has never acted, would do it fifty times better."

"The very thing!" cried Wills. "Will you try, Johnstone?" The young artist modestly assents went with Wills next day to rehearse and a week later made a sensations debut. Since then he has always been

Travel in Memory Some Road You Knew Well In Childhood. It is hard for me to remember now that my knowledge of the sleepy road gained so many years ago, came only through the chance bit of advice dropped by a wise, kind, weary old doctor as he shuffled at midnight down the corridor of the silent hospital, says the Atlantic Monthly,

Whatever was the errand of life or haste, he had time to stop and give me a friendly word, although I, a small and incorrigibly sleepless patient, was sitting bolt upright among the pillows in defiance of all his orders and was staring wide eyed into the hot, pain haunted dark.

"You think you are never going to be able to sleep again, don't you?" he observed. "Well, shut your eyes and do just what I tell you. Think of some road that you know well, a good long road that winds and turns and shows blood when a person is asleep, and the you water and woods and hills. Keep your eyes tight shut and travel along tremities of the sleeper. Immediately it in memory. Go as slowly as you can, recall every sight and sound and perfume as you pass by.

"I have such a road of my own, the was eight years old. I have started out on it a hundred times when I thought I could not sleep, but I never get very far. I come just about to the old stone bridge over Damon's creek or perhaps to the swimming hole, where the willows dip into the brown water,

Having a Picture Taken. "There are many things I would like to say to the woman who intends having her picture taken," said a famous photographer the other day. "Many women come to me and say: 'Of course you prefer taking actresses, They must have many advantages over those women who never have time but to give an occasional glance in their mirrors.' This is entirely a mistake. The conscious pose never makes a satisfactory portrait. I would say emphatically to the woman who goes to have her photograph made not to rehearse her pose and facial expression

"I always find it difficult to impress on the woman coming to my studio that clothes and jewels are of absoutely no account in a photograph. If a the clothes she is used to wearing she will feel at ease and therefore look her

"One of the curses of our present day ivilization is the ever changing question of fashion. How much more civlized were the Japanese, who realized that the kimono was perhaps the most perfect dress for women at all timeswho only varied it with different brocades and girdles. The photograph that concerns itself with clothes is soon out of fashion, and no matter how good a likeness of the face has been obtained, the picture is grotesque in a few years because the clothes are passe."

The Professor Worried. The absent minded professor from the university town was in Indianapolis attending a convention. While in the city he took a tour of the larger dewas much perplexed.

He read the sign over the door of the "This car express to fifth and sixth doors. Up only."

Absently he read the sign again. Then the car door opened. "I would like to know," he asked the elevator boy, "if this elevator goes only up, how on earth did you get down

The elevator boy grinned, frowned, scrutinized the man closely and then said in a dignified voice, "Oh, I just came down.

Putting the Cat Out at Night. The practice of turning the cat out of doors at night is as cruel as it is unnecessary. No animal is fonder of warmth and comfort, and the pet's bappiness certainly is not increased by a night spent outside in cold and damp-

If as much energy was exhausted in keeping the cat indoors as too often is expended in putting her out, how great would be the boon to human nerves and unfortunate wild things! All felines are normally nocturnal, and it is at night, if ever, that a curb on their activities is needed .- Lee S. Crandall, in "Pets.".

True Economy. There are great joys in practicing true economy in the right spirit. True economy, you see, is not abstinence from necessary things-not at all. The loys of true economy are for those who make the most of what they have; who, finding what may be theirs, proceed to the extraction of the greatest benefit from what is within reach.
