RICHARD CLARK A VICTIM OF THE TRAIN WRECK AT DORVAL FRIDAY NIGHT

He Was in the Canadian Military Transport Service at Vancouver—His Mother and Sister Reside on Division Street.

Richard Joseph Clark, whose mother and sister live at 149 Division street, was one of the soldier victims of the C.P.R. railroad accident which killed seven soldiers and injured sixteen others on Friday last near Dorval. His home was in Vancouver, and the message was sent to that place before it was forwarded to Kingston. The accident occurred when a local train, travelling forty miles an hour, smashed into a soldiers' special which had reached Dorval on its way across the continent to Vancouver.

The Kingston victim was born here on March 3rd, 1876, and attended the local schools. He graduated at Queen's University with a master of arts degree and attained scholarships. Twenty-one years ago he left the city for the west, and taught school in New Westminster, Vancouver and other British Columbia cities. Since the war broke out he was on military service. The military transport required him, and his duties had been to accompany soldiers' specials across the continent from Vancouver to Halifax and return.

The remains arrived here on Monday morning, and the funeral, which will be military, will be held on Tuesday afternoon from the residence of his mother, 149 Division street, to St. George's Cathedral and Catedral cemetery.

The survivors are his mother, Mrs. W. T. Clark; three brothers, Edward, at Akron, Ohio; George, in Vancouver; and William in Los Angeles, Cal.; one sister, Miss Mary, at home.

HOME FROM THE FRONT.

Lieut. Ross Livingston Suffering From Shell Shock.

LIEUT. ROSS LIVINGSTON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Livingston, has arrived at his home on Barrie street. He went overseas from Petawawa with a draft from the 72nd Battery. He is suffering from shell shock after some months' service in France. It is hoped his leave of absence will fully restore him to health again.

GIFT FOR MR. MEEK.

An Event in Queen Street Methodist Sunday School.

Queen Street Methodist Church Sunday school had a happy time yesterday afternoon. There was a large gathering of scholars and friends to witness the presentation of a portrait to Robert Meek, superintendent emeritus, who recently retired after twenty-two years service. The splendidly worded address, read by R. M. Allen, bore tribute to the work and worth of Mr. Meek, and at a given moment Mrs. G. A. Bateman unveiled a splendid picture of Mr. Meek. Later Mrs. Bateman spoke appreciatively of the work of the late superintendent. His influence would long abide in the school.

Mr. Meek was greatly surprised. He had been asked to attend and speak on events of the past, but their gift had unnerved him. He had been asked to let the portrait remain in the school, and he gladly acceded. The illuminated address he would take away and keep it as a precious remembrance of the school. For fifteen minutes Mr. Meek recalled events in the life of the school, which were highly interesting.

W. G. Anderson, superintendent, spoke hopefully of the future, backed as he would be by Mr. Meek, the pastor, and the officers and teachers. He paid tribute to the devotion and loyalty of Mr. Meek, as did Judge Lavell, J. G. Elliott and Rev. J. D. Ellis. The school sang various hymns with sprightliness and vigor.

LETTER CARRIERS MET.

Elected G. Little as President of Local Branch, F.A.E.C.

A meeting of the local letter carriers was held on Friday evening to elect officers for the Kingston branch of the Federal Association of Letter Carriers. The officers were: G. Little, president; E. Murray, vice-president; G. Compton, secretary-treasurer; F. Helbert, collector; J. J. Patterson, sergeant-at-arms.

The meeting decided on R. Elliott, with Frank Seaton as alternate, to be the delegate to the Hamilton conference. Several other matters were discussed and disposed of.

A HUSTLING TRUSTEE

Shovelled Coal So That School Could Be Kept Warm.

All the schools re-opened on Monday morning, after the holidays, with a fairly good attendance. The schools have a good supply of coal at present, and none of them will have to be closed, as in many cities. The coal bin at Louise school was pretty bare, but the hustling chairman of the Property Committee, Trustee Monk, got busy with his own team and with the aid of Secretary Macdonald, succeeded in getting in a supply from various local dealers. Trustee Monk used his own team for the collection of the coal, and also helped to unload it at the schools, in order that there would be "business as usual" at the school.
