Sporting Notes

The Boston American League Club announced the purchase of Outfielder Paul Smith from the Montreal club of the International League.

Pitchers in the American League say that Eddie Collins is the hardest man to pitch to. The White Sox star drew 89 passes last summer.

Rube Oldring, who retired from baseball before he was through as a major league player, may return to the diamond next season. Connie Mack may induce him to play at Shibe Park.

With the meatless and wheatless days Manager Rowland of the White Sox believes that ball players will play 20 per cent. faster. Rowland says that the players eat too much meat.

Nap Lajoie rises to remark that Wambach, the Indian's second baseman, is one of the game's best infielders. Nap has seen a lot of years come and go and is an excellent judge of baseball ability.

War Better Than Baseball.

Leslie Mann of the Chicago Cubs in all probability will be out of the line-up this year. "Army life's the life for me." He intends to go to France with the 33rd Division.

"I want to be in the greatest game of all—fighting the Boche," said Mann. "Baseball is all right, but it's this sort of out of date at the present time."

Mann is athletic director of the camp. The Chicago club has been counting on his getting a release for the baseball season.

$300,000 Bowl To Yale.

Yale bowl, built by a committee, was handed over to Yale University, through Thomas Dewitt Cuyler, '74, the Chairman.

The structure and the land upon which it stands, the future playground of the university, were designed to cost about $300,000. The expenditure has exceeded that, but the property is transferred without encumbrance upon it. Graduates alone furnished the money by subscription. The enormous circular steel and concrete stadium seats seventy thousand people.

Will Never Sell Cobb.

President Frank J. Navin of the Detroit American League Baseball Club, flatly denied any rumor that Tyrus Cobb might be sold or traded to the New York Americans.

"I have often said that Cobb will complete his major league career in a Detroit uniform, and I will reiterate that statement," said Navin. "Cobb will never be sold, traded or released," he stated.

CANUCKS THE LOSERS.

Have Not Adapted Themselves to English Rugby Football As Yet.

Canadians in London are not doing so well at rugby football. They have met another defeat, this time from the South African Infantry. The Canadian captain, Petry, is still away, and on Saturday Lieut. Bryant was an absentee. Also they were up against a good side, who, especially in the back division, gave a very clever exhibition of the game. They handled beautifully, and but for the resolute tackling of the Canadians, would have put on a heavy score. The match ended in a win for the South Africans by 3 points (3 tries) to nil.

Canadian Ski Record.

Nels Nelson broke the Canadian record for ski jumping at Revelstoke, B.C., by six inches, making a jump of 147 feet 6 inches. He made a jump of 161 feet, but suffered a fall. Nels Wilman, of Edmonton, jumped 142 feet 6 inches, and L. Larsen, of the Rossland Ski Club, jumped 142 feet.

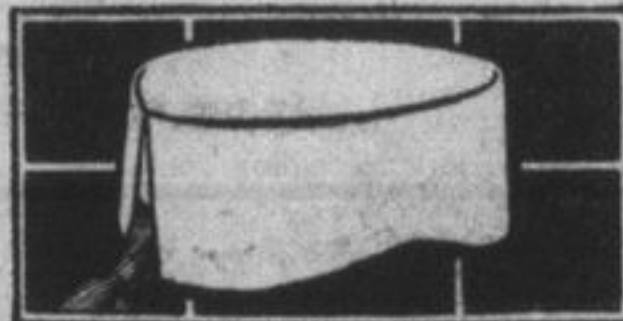

The seven miles ski race was won by Gunderson, of Revelstoke, in one hour 6 minutes and 40 seconds. Pat Skeen won the three-mile race in 29 minutes 30 seconds. More than 2,000 people witnessed the events.

Selling Players.

International League clubs continue to dispose of their players whenever a market can be found. A dozen have now been sold and others would have been sent to other leagues had the prices offered been slightly more liberal. Since there is now no likelihood of the International League conducting its campaign this season, the owners of clubs in other circuits are not inclined to offer fancy figures for players from that league.

Hearne In Demand.

Two big league clubs are in the market for the services of Bunny Hearne, the Toronto south-paw, who next to Gregg, of Providence, was the most effective pitcher in the league last season. Hearne has had the experience and should easily make the grade. It is reported that the Boston Red Sox and also the Philadelphia Nationals are willing to talk business with Pres. McCaffery for the player.

STAY IN THE MAJORS SHORT AND SWEET

Only Fifteen Working of Twelve Years' Standing During Last Year.

Twelve years is a long time in the life of a major league ball player, if one may base his estimate on some statistics furnished by a baseball dopist, who has compiled a record that shows how few players in the majors in 1906 can still be counted actively in the game. Commenting on his own record, the statistician says:

It seems scarcely possible that out of 500 men drawing salaries in the American and National Leagues in 1906 only fifteen played ball in 1917, and four of these probably will not be seen in 1918. And that is the space of only 12 years.

Of the American League pitchers of 1906, who included Waddell, Mullen, Joss, Chesbro and others, only three, Bender, Plank and Coombs, were able to pitch regularly last year, and Plank retired in the middle of the season. One other, Donovan, managed a big league club.

Reulbach and Ames.

Of the National League pitchers of 1906, Reulbach and Ames were the only ones who saw service in 1917, and Reulbach pitched very little at Boston, and has been given his unconditional release. Mathewson was still active in baseball as manager of the Reds.

Not a catcher of the 1906 troop was in the harness 11 years later, except Gibson, who did a little relief work for the Giants.

Of the infielders, six remain of the 1906 crowd, providing Lajoie is counted, for Larry, after a year's sojourn in the minors, is likely to wear a big league uniform next year.

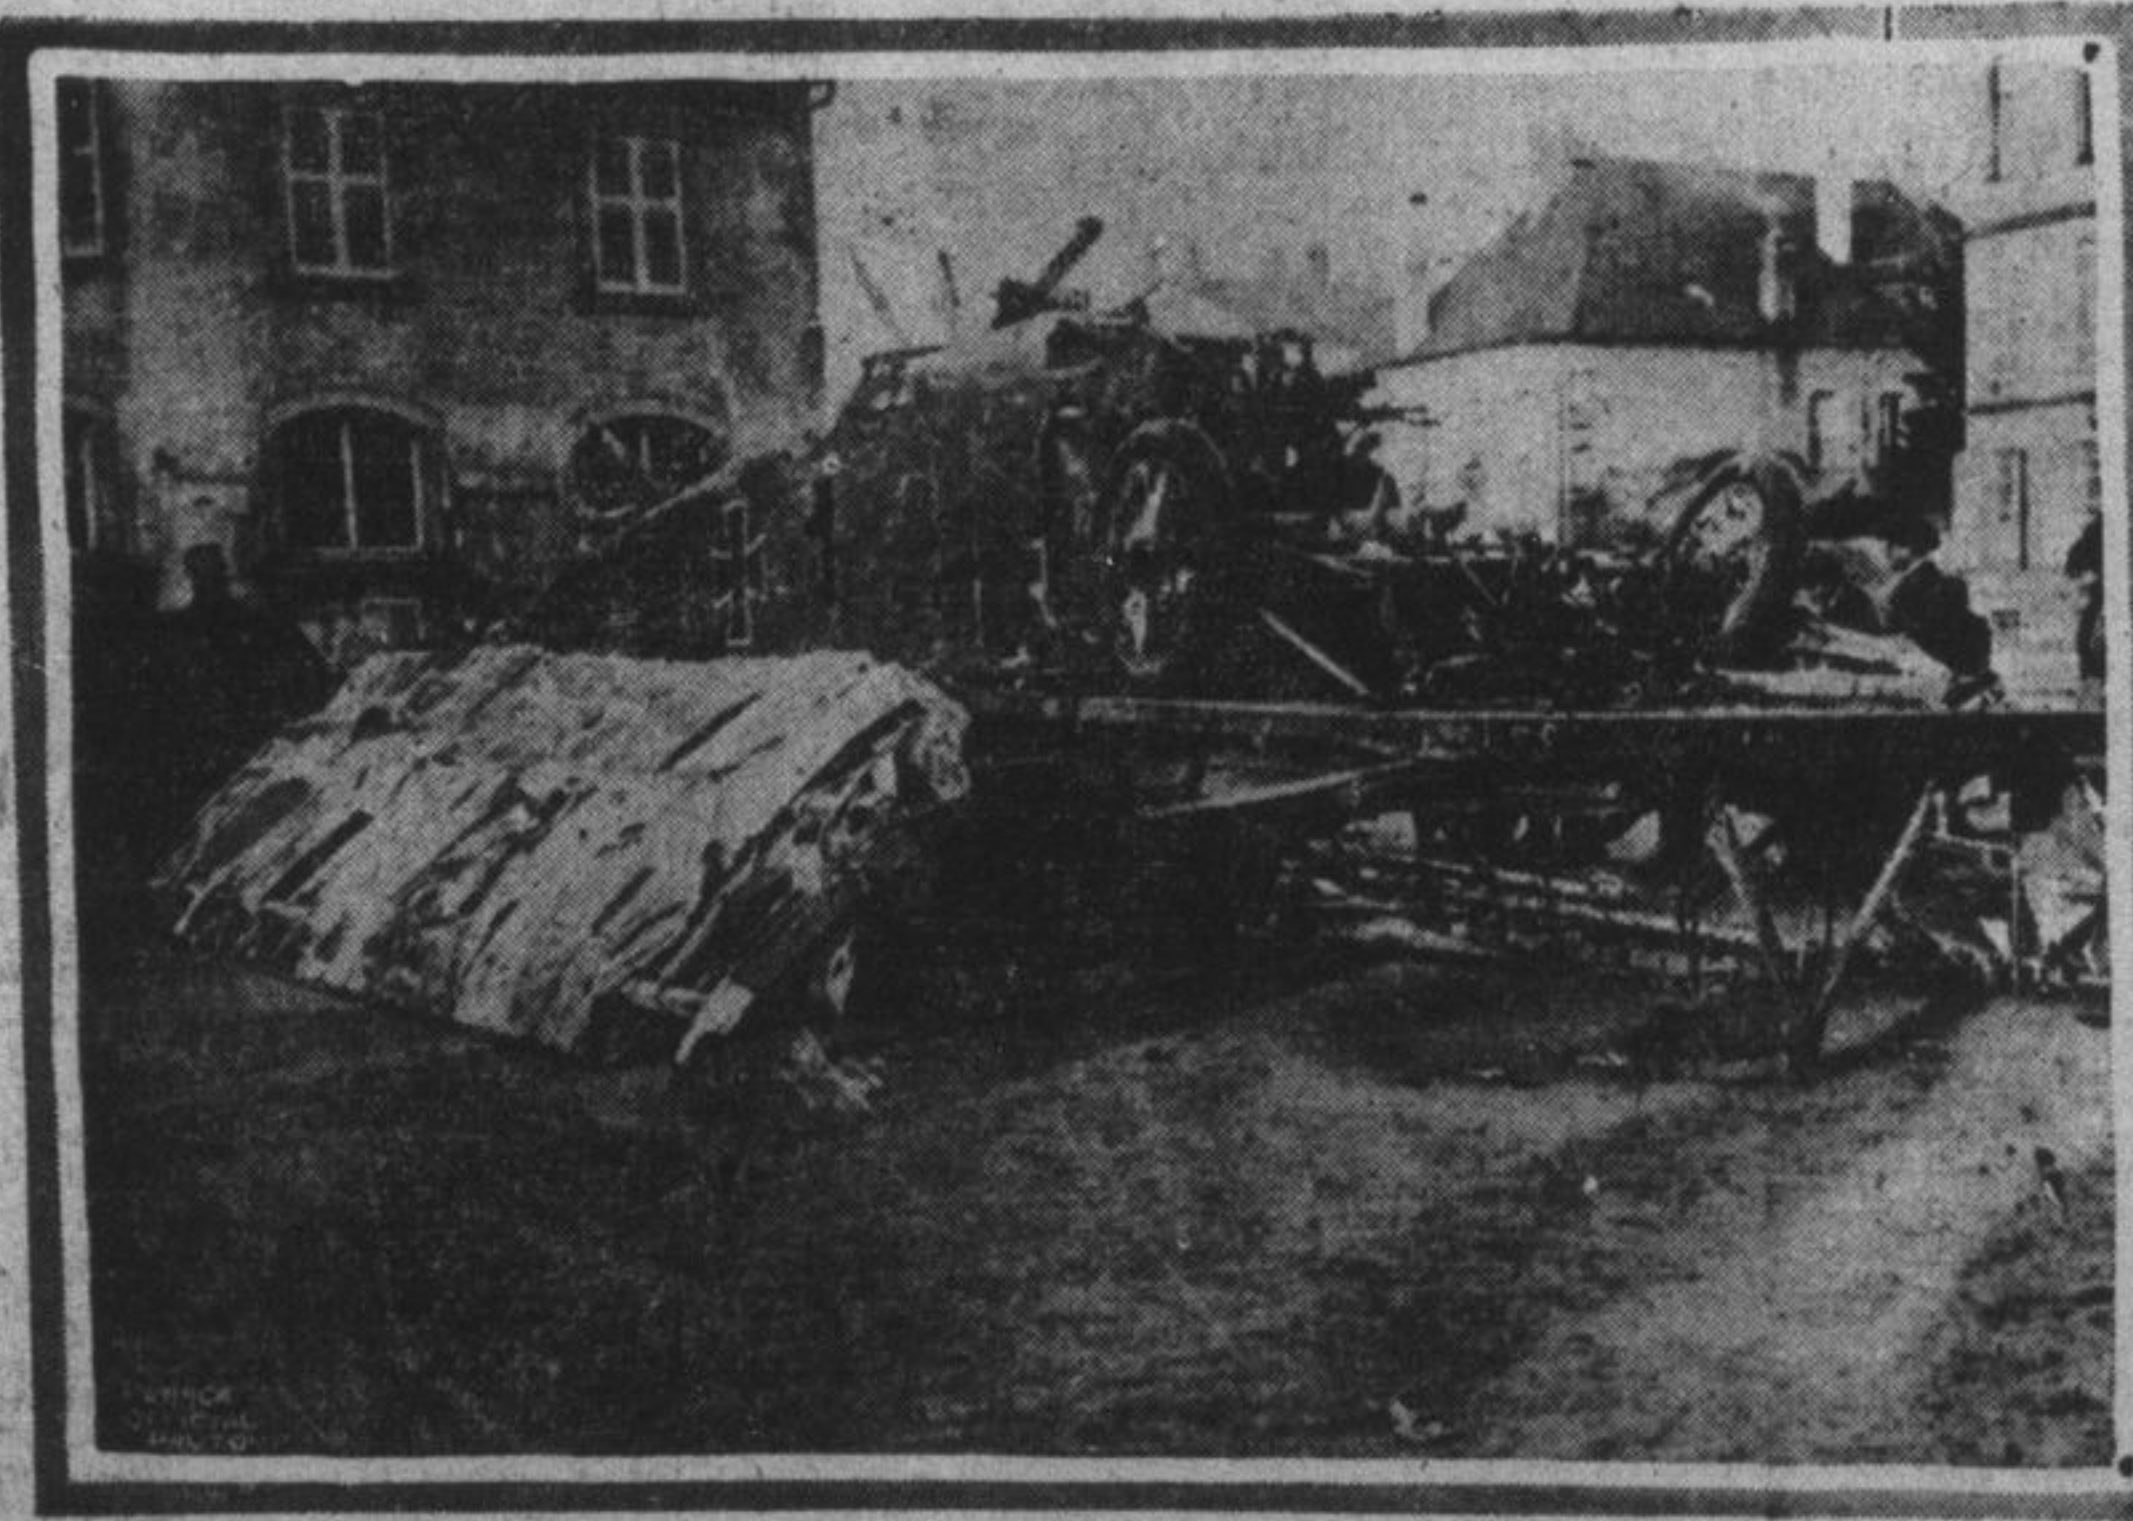

The others are Wagner, who only played part of the season; Lobert, who was in less than 20 games at New York; Evers, who was out of the game a great part of the season; Turner, who played in an utility role with Cleveland, and Chase. The latter was the only regular of the outfit.

Five Still Playing.

In the outfield, we find five still in the game. Cobb is among them, and is still the greatest of all ball players. The others are Crawford, who has about reached the end of the road; Hinchman and Schulte, who had unsatisfactory seasons last year, and Sherwood Magee.

Others still in the game, but not actively, are Fleider Jones, manager of the Browns, and Bob Wallace, who will be back in the big tent next year, but only as a coach.

This is a striking picture of the length of time a big leaguer may hope to last in fast company. Most of them are gone, and all, with the exception of Cobb, are fading. Twelve years means a great deal to a ball player.

A Jack Dunn Product.
Connie Mack, it is believed, has secured a star shortstop in Morris Shannon, who was with the Baltimore last year. Shannon and his twin-brother were tried by the Boston Braves several years ago, but Stallings turned them adrift. Morris Shannon made a rapid progress under Jack Dunn, who strongly recommended him to the veteran manager of the Athletics. Dunn predicts that within a year this twenty-year-old colt will be one of the best shortstops in the American League.

First Baseman Walter Holke of the New York Giants was one player who got a big boost in salary from his club for this year.
