BEST OF FEATHERWEIGHTS

"TERRIBLE TERRY" McGOVERN WAS A GREAT FIGHTER.

Smashing Irishman Battered Down All Opposition Until He Met Cool, Deliberate Young Corbett—Story of McGovern's Fall.

Terry McGovern who died last Friday in New York, was the greatest of all featherweights who ever held the title.

"Terrible Terry" McGovern is known only by name to the younger generation of ring followers, but there never has been another McGovern in the featherweight class. For years after McGovern's time every manager of fighters searched the country for "another McGovern." None was ever found.

Terry was the greatest and most sensational fighter that ever held a featherweight title. His finish, like that of Hannibal, Napoleon and other great conquerors in history, was sudden and complete. It came when Young Corbett, an unknown from the West, knocked him cold in the second round of the fastest and most furious battle ever seen in a ring.

Held Two Titles

It came about when Terry McGovern was regarded as the one absolutely invincible champion. His career had gone through several stages then. He had been bantam champion, had whipped the bantam champion of England, Pedlar Palmer, in a round and had become featherweight champion by knocking out the famous George Dixon. After a while McGovern found himself in the same position sometimes occupied by a heavyweight champion. There was no one left to give him a fight. And in those days the country was full of first-class twenty-round fighters in every class.

Enter Young Corbett.

Out in the west, around Denver, was a fighter calling himself Young Corbett (his real name was Billy Rothwell) and just to get Terry a fight, he was offered a couple of thousand dollars, and came to New York all alone. People liked him, and felt sorry for him. They had seen McGovern fight.

Thanksgiving day of 1901 at Hartford was cold and snow covered the ground. But a crowd came out from New York to see McGovern, and the arena was packed. "Come on out, you Terry," shouted Corbett, "and take your licking!" Terry came with a rush, eyes blazing. No one had ever talked to him like that before. It was the first move in the plan by which Corbett meant to win.

Then came the fight. Those who saw it will remember it to this day as the greatest two rounds ever fought.

Young Corbett's Nerve.

The first round was a terrific fight, with McGovern being forced near the finish. But it was in the second round that the sensation came. Just when the fighting was at its hottest Young Corbett did an amazing thing—a thing that showed him to be a ring master with no equal. Suddenly he stopped hitting and reached out slowly with his left arm. Terry, astonished and wondering what this new manoeuvre meant, hardly moved as Corbett deliberately clucked him under the chin with extended finger tips and tilted his head back. When Terry's chin was placed to suit him, Corbett whipped over a terrific right-hander. Down went McGovern, flat on his back. They crowd gasped.

Terry rolled over, got to his knees, and shaking his head to clear his numbed brain, crawled to the ropes and pulled himself up to his feet. Standing erect, still holding the ropes, he turned his head to look for Sam Harris, who was running frantically around to throw water on him. Young Corbett meanwhile calmly stepped back and waited.

A Finish Never to be Forgotten.

Terry turned and saw Corbett smiling at him. New fury blazed from his eyes. Letting the rope go he charged straight at Corbett. McGovern was a fighter. He proved it now. Slam, bang, he battered Corbett to the ropes and backed him up against a ring post. Corbett could do nothing but cover and stall, while Terry tried to beat him down. It looked sure that Corbett would be knocked out. Half a minute or so he weathered the battering, then managed to slip away from the post and escape to the middle of the ring. He was a little dazed himself. Terry turned and dashed at him.

Terry's left hook started for Corbett's jaw. Then, so suddenly that the flying fists passed in mid-air, he whipped that overhand right across inside of Terry's hook. Corbett's blow slugged fairly on Terry's chin. Terry fell at full length, flat on his back—knocked out cold for the first time in his life.

HALF MILLION TO FEDS

Fine Bump to Big Leagues Under War Conditions.

Elimination of the Federal baseball league will cost the National and American leagues $550,000, it is learned officially. The first payment was made yesterday when John C. Toole, attorney for the National League, presented a cheque for $55,000 to James Hindman, attorney for the Federals.

President E. B. Johnson of the American League will send a similar cheque to the Federal League attorney in the near future, as the American League's share of the Federal League peace indemnity, and will duplicate the annual payment to be made by the National League under terms of the agreement made two years ago.

Of the amount, $25,000 goes to the Pittsburgh Trust Company, receivers of the former Pittsburgh Federal League club, which settles in full the National League's obligation to that club; $20,000 goes to the Robert B. Ward Estate for two years' rental of the Brooklyn Federal League ball park, and $10,000 to Harry Sinclair for two years' rental of the Newark Federal League grounds.

It was also announced that the National League has eighteen more annual payments of $10,000 each to be made to the Ward Estate and eight additional payments of $5,000 to Sinclair.

THREE KINGSTON BOYS

Who are in the Toronto Dental Hockey Team.

Three of the champion Toronto Dental Hockey players are Kingston boys. Here is what the Toronto World says about them:

Charlie Stewart (goal)—comes from Kingston, Ont., and played his first hockey on the defence for Kingston Collegiate Institute and later with Kingston Frontenacs. His first attempt at goal-keeping was with Argonauts, three years ago, when he was pressed into service when Gilbert was taken ill. He made good in his first game and has starred ever since. This is his second year with Dentals.

Rupert (Ruby) Millan (centre) is another Kingston product. He started with Regipolis College of that city and later played with the Frontenacs. While small of stature, he is a great stick-handler, and has a faculty of always being in the proper place and being able to score goals.

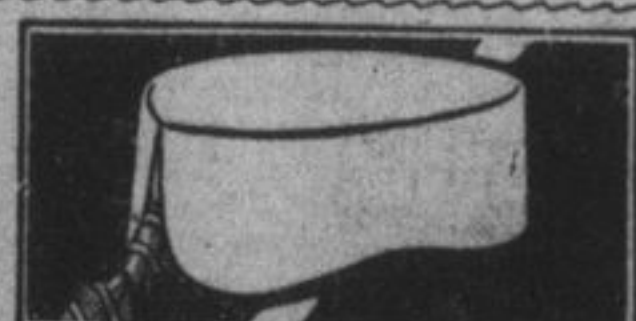

Jimmie Stewart (forward) is a brother of the goalkeeper, and also started playing with Kingston Collegiate Institute and Kingston Frontenacs. He was with Argonauts three years ago, and has since been with the Dentals.

DATES FOR ALLAN CUP

Elimination Contests Will Commence This Week.

Secretary W. A. Hewitt of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association announces that arrangements have been finally completed for the Allan Cup elimination games and finals for the amateur championship of Canada.

The trophy will be defended by the O.H.A. champions, either Dentals or Kitchener, and four games, the semi-finals and finals, will be played on Toronto ice, which will mean four great games for the cup.

BOXING AND BAYONET FIGHTING MUCH ALIKE

Ring Champions Illustrate the Different Blows Before the Camera.

Films showing the relationship between boxing and bayoneting and demonstrating the methods of using the bayonet have been prepared by the Commissions on Training Camp Activities of the War and Navy Departments and distributed for exhibition in the various National Army and National Guard cantonments and Naval stations to facilitate the education of the soldiers and sailors along those lines.

Johnny Kilbane, Benny Leonard, Kid McCoy and James J. Corbett posed for the pictures illustrating in detail the proper way of starting and landing the different blows and how to put the full force of the body behind them. Their counterparts in bayoneting are demonstrated by Captain James Donovan, of Toronto, who was instructor in bayoneting fighting at Shorncliffe, England. Captain Donovan spent twenty-two months in the trenches and was wounded at Ypres. "Bayoneting is boxing with a gun in your hands," is one of the expressive sub-titles of the film, which afterward shows Johnny Kilbane starting a left hook for the head of Benny Leonard, and Captain Donovan using the same movement in sending his bayonet slashing for the neck of an armed antagonist.

The similarity between other blows in boxing and bayoneting is also shown in the film. For instance, a soldier using the right hook to the jaw duplicates the blow when he swings the butt of his gun on the jaw of a foe. In addition, the pictures make clear that a man who has developed speed on his feet through boxing has a decided advantage over his opponent in a duel with cold steel.

ALL HAVE NOT DECIDED HOW TO USE SURPLUS

The Cubs and the Giants Will Give It To Charity.

The New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs—both clubs of the National League—are the only major league organizations that have formed any definite plans for the use of the surplus pennies which will come from the war tax and the added few cents decided on recently at a meeting of a committee in New York.

Reports received today by the United Press show that the club owners, with these two exceptions, either have formed no definite plan, or see no reason why they should donate their surplus to charity. Even the Washington club, of which Clarke Griffith is manager, has done nothing. Griffith is in charge of a fund to supply baseballs, bats and gloves to soldiers in cantonments.

Secretary John B. Foster of the Giants, said that club had donated about 40,000 free admissions to soldiers last year, and in addition, had given a large sum to charity. The fund from surplus pennies will be laid aside solely for charitable purposes.

Walter Craighead, secretary of the Cubs, favors giving the whole thing to charity.

President Navin, of the Tigers, hasn't made up his mind yet what he will do. President Haughton, of the Braves, is waiting for the American League to do something. Harry Frazee, of the Red Sox, will do as the others do. No answer was received from the Cleveland club. Garry Herman, of the Reds, has not made a reply. Harry Grabiner, of the White Sox will not be found wanting, pointing to Comiskey's donations last year. No one could make a reply in St. Louis. Barney Dreyfus, of the Pirates, was ill and could not answer. The Dodgers are waiting and so are the Yankees.

Dye Is Recovering.

"Babe" Dye, of the De la Salle team, who was injured in Kingston Friday night, is in St. Michael's hospital, Toronto, but will probably leave that institution today. It was a first feared that a bone in his instep was broken, but an X-ray examination showed that these fears were groundless and that a slight sprain existed. McCurry's hand is healing fast and he will be ready for the return game at the Arena on Thursday. The Irish have to overcome a three-goal lead.

BREWERS ARE ATTACKED.

Object of Rebuke for "Beer Party" To Football Men.

Scathing rebuke of the brewers who, he said, entertained the players of the Syracuse University at a beef-steak dinner with beer at the close of the 1917 season, was administered in emphatic terms by Chancellor James R. Day in a sermon in the First Baptist Church at Syracuse, N. Y., last Sunday.

Dr. Day declared the entertainment took place at a brewery or adjacent thereto at a time when all were enthusiastic over the most successful year in the history of University athletics and that the affair was unknown to the administration of the institution at the time.

"I had rather there never be a football team in connection with Syracuse University than to have this sort of thing made an annual practice," declared the chancellor, "and with the help of the good Lord, I assure you it will never occur again."

At the conclusion of this sentence the congregation of more than 1,800 persons broke out into hearty applause.

Eddie Collins Demon Sluggers

A demon statistician comes along with some mighty interesting dope on Eddie Collins, the great second sacker of the White Sox. Eddie has always been considered a wonderful swatter, but these figures show that Columbia Eddie smacks the wonder box workers as well as he does the ordinary performers.

Collins clubbed Rube Waddell's offerings for 400 in nine games. Joe Wood was always a cinch for Eddie. He smashed the speed king's offerings for an average of 380 in 28 clashes. Eddie Cicotte never had any terrors for Collins, who amassed a mark of 365 against his present teammate in 29 games. Walter Johnson is the real jinx for Collins. Eddie has been unable to cripple Johnson's speed as the record shows. In 53 games in 12 years, Collins has made but 40 hits off the Washington star for an average of .219.

Showing Those New Yorkers. Haymarket, Fauquier, a white bull terrier, owned and bred by R. H. Elliot, of Ottawa, stepped into the forefront among the contenders for highest honors in the Westminster Kennel Club show at Madison Square Garden, New York. He swept everything before him in his classes, and competent judges declared that it would take a truly wonderful dog to defeat him in the contest for the best of all breeds in the show.
