Pretty Brunette Already Seven Feet Six Inches Tall.

(Philadelphia Record.) Mabel Johnson, 25 years old, 7 feet 6 inches tall, is in St. Bernard's Hospital recovering from an operation intended to stop her growth. The operation consisted of removing two sections of the femur bone.

Miss Johnson is a pretty brunette and is unusually bright mentally. Her parents, it is said, are both under-sized.

Miss Johnson is a sufferer from aeromegaly, a very rare disease, where growth is continuous. There have been but one hundred of such cases reported in all medical history.

Miss Johnson is the only one recorded in America.

Limit of Patriotism. (Philadelphia Ledger.) "Don't you love our song, 'Star Spangled Banner'?" "I do," replied Senator Sorghum.

"Then why don't you join in the chorus?" "My friend, the way for me to show real affection for a song is not to try to sing it."

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

EVELYN REEVE COMFORTS

CHAPTER XX. All the rest of the dinner hour George let me feel that I had displeased him, although he didn't mention the matter again. But it was a way he had that I felt but never could describe. A sort of holding off, or pushing me away. Immediately after dinner he went to the club as usual, I was so lonely, so sore at what I considered his unfair treatment of me that I felt I should cry again if I sat down alone. So I went to the telephone and called up Evelyn Reeve.

"Oh, I am so glad you called me up! I am all alone and having the most awful fit of the blues. Kurtis never goes out evenings unless I am with him, but his father is ill, and he had to attend to some business for him. Come on over and stay with me, can't you?"

"Could I? Dared I? I would! It wasn't far, I would take Annie with me and walk. I knew George wouldn't like it if I went alone. I'll only stay an hour, Annie, and you can visit with Mrs. Reeves' maid," I told her as we walked along.

Evelyn and I had the nicest chat possible. We curled up on the big library lounge with a box of chocolates between us, and just talked as fast as we could talk. Finally I told her of my experience with the etiquette books, first making her promise not to laugh at me.

"I think Madge Loring was horrid!" she explained when I told her that Mrs. Loring had made fun of me and before George. "It was an odd thing to do, I don't see how you ever came to think of it. But it was none of her business. Somehow I don't care much for her and her set. I suppose it is because they are older and know so much more than I do. But really, Helen, I shouldn't feel badly about Mrs. Sexton. Learn all you can from her, then pass it on to me."

An Eased Mind "Honestly do you care, too, about knowing things?" I asked in surprise. Somehow it never had entered my head to think Evelyn also might not be up in social matters, any more than I was.

"Of course I do! Don't you suppose I know that all Kurtis' people as well as everybody else think he married beneath him? His is such an old family, you know."

"Oh, aren't they nice to you?" I gasped, glad that George's family did not live in the same town.

"Yes, very nice. But I often do things that cause them to raise their eyebrows. Little things that don't amount to much, wouldn't have been noticed back home, but here where every one is so precise I feel awfully embarrassed when I make a faux pas."

"I wish you could come over when that horrid woman is here, but I suppose George wouldn't like it. She isn't supposed to tell, and of course he thinks I will be too proud to say anything! I would be, to any one but you."

"Now don't feel badly about it any more," Evelyn said as I rose to go. "You will be glad of it some day. I have heard of Mrs. Sexton, and she used to be a very great society woman. You can't help but learn from her, then you can tell me all the things she says and we'll talk them over and perhaps by the time we are old and homely we'll know enough so our respective and respected families won't be ashamed of us."

"Oh, you are such a comfort!" I exclaimed as I kissed her goodbye. "It was so cross and upset when I came."

George had not come in, and I went right to bed. In the morning he was still stand-offish. So I said to him thinking he would be pleased:

No More Than George Expected. "I shall try to learn all I can from that Mrs. Sexton, George, then she won't have to come many times."

"I expected you would, or I should not have engaged her. The length of time she comes will be my affair. I don't propose to again subject myself to anything like that book performance of yours."

I made no reply. What could I say? I had made an overture and been rebuffed. I wondered idly if ever I should become accustomed to such rebuffs. I should. I had them often enough. But each one seemed just as hard, or harder, to bear than the last. Perhaps when I had gained that poise which George considered so necessary I should not care. It seemed to me that Madge Loring, Julia Collins and the rest of that crowd didn't care very much for any one but themselves.

"Feel all right this morning?" she asked.

"Oh, yes," I replied, without much enthusiasm. George's reception of my little avowal hadn't left me feeling very gay.

"Well I'm coming over in a few minutes—that is, if you want me. I want you to help me plan a birthday dinner for Kurtis."

"That will be lovely!" I exclaimed, happy that she was coming. (To be continued) pipes and screws. "I mean it, straight!"

"Well, why don't you choose time for love-making when I'm not busy?" answered the basement Venus, with a pout. "Can't you see I'm washing up?"

"All right, Susie; don't get cross. Look 'ere, if I spins out this 'ere job so that it lasts till to-morrow afternoon, will yer promise to get yer work out of the way so that we can chat things over like?"

"To-morrow afternoon, indeed!" snarped Susie. "You ain't in a hurry, I must say! What's the matter with to-night?"

"To-night—what, in my own time?" retorted the plumber scornfully. "I don't think!"

Paper and ink are sometimes necessary to make promises materialize.

Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy

Thousands of families swear by its prompt results. Inexpensive, and saves about $1.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose. Nothing better, but why buy it? You can easily make it yourself in five minutes.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous the world over for its prompt results. Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Told In Twilight

On Thursday evening, February 28th, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Crumley, 2283 West 21st street, Los Angeles, California, there was a gathering of Canadian friends to honor Dr. and Mrs. Sparks, Kingston. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wallace (Mr. Wallace was formerly lieutenant governor of California, and now state organizer for California dry), and Mrs. B. F. Monroe, both graduates of Queen's. Of no other two people, it was said, could it be said more truly than of Dr. and Mrs. Sparks that time has changed them only for the better. This is specially applicable to the doctor, for after having worn a Canadian beard for over forty years he is now like the priest in the "Hobbit's Tale" Jack Built" all shaven and shorn. The evening was one of rare enjoyment.

The girls of the Victory Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire are giving a dinner at the Belvidere tonight in honor of Miss Marjorie Campbell.

The Country Store

IN the evening, when the day's work is done, men like to stroll over to the village store to discuss the war, politics, or whatever may be of local interest.

It is under these circumstances that the health of the family is referred to and experiences are interchanged in regard to medicines that have proven particularly effective.

After Dr. Chase had introduced his medicines to the druggists he found that many who wrote to him for treatment lived many miles from doctor or druggist, and had to depend on the country store for their medicines. Thus it came about that Dr. Chase's medicines were placed in general stores, and you can now obtain them wherever medicines are sold.

Instead of trying to imagine what the man in the picture is saying about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, we shall publish a letter from Mr. James Carr, who attributes his good health and that of his large family to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

18 Miles From Drug Store.

Mr. James Carr, Maynooth, Ont., writes: "About nineteen years ago I received an envelope containing two of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I was doctoring at the time with two doctors and, as they did me no good, I used the pills, and by the time I had finished one box I was cured of the pain in the back and shoulders.

"We have great confidence in Dr. Chase's medicines. I have a family of ten children and have never had a doctor in the house for any of them. We live eighteen miles from a drug store, and find that these pills cure nearly all the ordinary ills by regulating the liver, kidneys and bowels. That we are all well and sound I attribute to their use, and I have recommended them to hundreds and given away many a box because I believe there is no medicine so good."

After long experience with Dr. Chase's Medicines we have found that people who try them are soon convinced of their exceptional merits.

We have published thousands of letters to give you an idea of the benefits others have obtained by their use, but if you are still skeptical we shall be glad to send you

CORN THE STAPLE FOOD

Cartier found the Indians at Hochelaga (Montreal) eating corn in 1536.

If the secret of making corn palatable, appetizing and delicious had been known in those days, potatoes would not have become a staple food, because corn is four and a half times more nourishing than potatoes.

For twelve years the Battle Creek Toasted Corn Flake Co., London, Ont., has been making corn a delectable and nutritious food, more economical in actual food value than cooked oatmeal, beefsteak, eggs, milk, chicken, and many other foods.

It is a staple, three-times-a-day food, and Sold only in the original red, white and green package.
