PSYCHOLOGICAL TEST

Interesting Love Theory Advanced in Girl Shot by Lover. Baltimore, Md., March 20.—Medical and surgical experts at the Hopkins Hospital, and particularly an United States army surgeon, who is taking a special course of study at the institution with reference to the effect of gunshot wounds are watching closely the condition of Miss Margaret Bamberger, a maid at the institution, who was shot three times yesterday by Lee Ehrlinker, her sweetheart. They believe that the results in the case will help to prove or disprove an interesting psychological theory.

The theory according to statements made by the physicians, is that if the young woman truly loves the man who shot her she will most probably die, while if she does not love him she will then have a better chance for life. The reasoning in the first instance is that the mental depression caused by the fact that the one she loved had injured her would prove to be too great, in addition to the shock of her injuries. Her hate for him, they said, would naturally cause her fighting instincts to be aroused and she would battle for life.

With a jagged hole through her windpipe, caused by one of the bullets, and a large wound in her abdomen, caused, it is thought, by the other two entering at nearly the same spot, the girl's condition is regarded as critical.

PLOUGH VERMONT FIELDS. Granddaughter of Abraham Lincoln Will Do it in Auto. Washington, March 20.—Mary Lincoln Beckwith, great granddaughter of Abraham Lincoln, who has been representing the women's division of the Committee on Public Information in Cuba and who has just returned to this country, intends to plough the fields of the family farm at Vermont as part of her war work this spring. She has bought a tractor which will be attached to her automobile, and believes that the work of ploughing can thus be done without undue effort or discomfort. She will take a short agricultural course at Cornell in preparation for her field work, and hopes to organize a unit of young women to aid farmers in the section of the country lacking male labor. Miss Beckwith is the granddaughter of Robert T. Lincoln, of Chicago, Abraham Lincoln's eldest son, and at one time Secretary of War.

A Drop On a Touchy Corn

Instant relief! Then corn or callus lifts off with fingers. Just think! You can lift off any corn or callus without one twinge of pain. A Cincinnati man discovered this ether compound, it is named, it freezes. Any druggist will sell a tiny bottle of freezeone for very little cost. You apply a few drops directly upon a tender corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it right off. Freezeone is wonderful for corns between the toes, as well as painful calluses. Lift right off. There is no pain before or afterwards. No soreness or smarting. Women should keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn ache twice.
