Prisoners in Switzerland

HERE is a striking contrast between the attitude of Canadians who have just arrived in Switzerland and those who have been in the land of William Tell for a year or more. Those who had just escaped from the Hun internment camps when seen at Berne by Lt.-Col. Claude Bryan, assistant commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross, declared that they would be happy there forever, that they wanted nothing better. But those who had benefited by the exchange some months back were suffering from ennui and chafing to get back to Canada. They were tired of those wonderful mountains which in peace time caused Murren, Chateau d'Ouchy, and Montreaux to be invaded by tourists from the entire globe. Beyond this homesickness and certain minor matters connected with the administration, there was little to grumble about, and on the other hand, much for which they should be grateful.

There are approximately in these internment camps of the little republic 15,000 French, 8,000 Germans, 2,000 Belgians and 1,200 British, and the last number embraces about 100 Canadians.

The hotel and pension keepers being deprived of their tourist business have been glad to accept belligerents as paying guests and they are, on the whole, giving a square deal. For men who have been on the banting system of the Hun internment camp, the primary recommendation of the Swiss camps is that food is good and plentiful. Col. Hodgetts showed me the following dietary, which he, as a medical man, declared ample and, in fact, more generous than many English people now obtain:

Meat, bread, 10 ounces; potatoes, milk, 30 ounces; flour, 8 ounces; sausages, cheese, 2 ounces; lard, about 2 ounces; butter, just over 1 ounce; with coffee, jam, fruit and sugar. In addition, sick men are given more delicate foods.

The Canadians, stated Col. Bryan, were exceedingly popular with the authorities, and this he attributes largely to their readiness to undertake any task assigned to them. Some of the most responsible appointments were held by Canadians. Capt. W. H. Hooper, of Carleton Place, Ont., is chief paymaster and personal attendant to Col. P. C. Col, military attaché of the British Legation, who has charge of all British interned, and in the ordnance department the chief assistant is Capt. T. V. Seadmore, of British Columbia.

That no man need regard his internment period as lost in future years. Many facilities have been given for learning trades and industries, of which Col. Bryan made a personal inspection. The most mechanical school at Vevey is in charge of Lieut. A. McLurg, of Sault Ste. Marie, and one of his graduates is now driving the car of the American Legation at Berne, while another is chauffeur for the British Legation. The Hotel Alpenruhe was in charge of the senior N.C.O., Sergt. Edwards, of Montreal, whose administration was highly spoken of, and in this establishment Pte. Strachan, of Toronto, was in charge of the tailoring outfit. Pte. Taylor, of Montreal, was chief clerk to the Swiss commandant, who declared he did not know how he would get on when Taylor came to be repatriated. A bright monthly publication known as "B. I. M." (British Interned Murren) is edited by Pte. Tyler, of Nelson, B.C.; Pte. Foyster (7th) runs the cinema and surveying class; Pte. Wright manages the Y.M.C.A.; Pte. Lusted, of Toronto, the carpenter shop; Pte. McElroy, of Vancouver, the barber shop, and Pte. Coats, of Toronto, is an orderly. "These cases are cited," said the assistant commissioner, "as examples of Canadian industry, and the result has been to procure a very cheerful lot of fellows who otherwise would find their internment exceedingly tedious."

While waiting at Berne Central Station, Lt.-Col. Bryan saw a trainload of new arrivals come in from Germany, and in this convoy were five Canadian officers and 38 other ranks. Col. Uscher was one of the officers. Mrs. Fraser, an Ontario worker in the Canadian Red Cross in London, was also there in charge of a party of relatives of prisoners. Most of these new arrivals were in good health, and they reported that their treatment by the enemy had improved considerably in recent months; moreover, it appears that the nearer they draw the border, the better they are treated, so that the last impressions shall dwell with them. One thing they reported was that the representations which are being made as to certain urgent cases for repatriation do not appear to have much effect.

In one respect these men in Switzerland have a reminder of home. Snow was on the ground, and they were enjoying the winter pastimes of Canada.

Venician Glass.
Glass-making in Venice is of remote antiquity. By a law of November 8, 1291, the authorities of Venice, to avoid the risk of fire, ordered the glass-making industry to be transferred to the adjacent island of Murano. Ever since Murano has been the most important centre for hand-made glass and glass-bead manufacture in the world.

What She Wanted.

Mrs. Parvenu—Couldn't you make me look as though I'd been rich all my life?

J. G. Turritt, M.P. for Assinibois, is mentioned as a likely appointee to the senatorial vacancy in Saskatchewan.
A. H. Foster, Fuel Controller at Guelph, has resigned, as he thinks the need for the office has passed.

The Vote at Alexandria Bay.
Alexandria Bay, N.Y., March 21.—The citizens' ticket had no opposition here but propositions for appropriations developed a difference of opinion. ## The Theatres

At Grand.

As a general rule, one star is enough to make any picture a success, but in the World picture (Brady made), which is to be shown at the Grand to-night and Friday, matinee and night, there are three stars, each with a large enough following to "make" the picture in which they are appearing. Carlyle Blackwell is one of screen-dom's most popular and talented leading men. In "Good For Nothing" he has the part of the debonaire young hero, a role that suits him to perfection. Muriel Ostrich is well-known for her exceptional beauty and talent, while Evelyn Greely has recently been starred in a number of picture successes. They both have parts in this picture which enables them to display their respective talents. Lonesome Luke appears in his greatest two-reel laugh-producer, "Birds of a Feather." Other interesting reels and an act of high-class vaudeville completes this double programme for to-night and Friday.

"The White Feather."

On next Saturday, March 23rd, matinee and night, at the Grand Opera House Albert Brown will receive "The White Feather," which deals with the present European conflict and is described as the greatest detective war play ever written and which is now in its third year of unprecedented success. The play contains all the ingredients and thrills necessary to satisfy the most blasé theatre-goer, including German submarine and English warships, four German spies, two English secret service agents, a new recruit, an irascible M.P., and his daughter who, of course, is in love with the secret service chap; a wireless outfit concealed in the drawing room where the scene of the play is laid; a wonderful dictograph; an always-to-be-forgotten pipe; a code book of signals which falls into the wrong hands; carrier pigeons, a cane shaped gun which works wonders at the proper time all add to the great success and endless thrills of this big secret service drama. Mr. Brown will be supported by an all English company. Bargain prices prevail for this engagement.

At Griffin's.

In "Stella Maris," the Aircraft picture which is being shown at Griffin's this evening and also Friday and Saturday, matinee and night, Mary Pickford plays a part wonderfully adapted to her. In fact, the illustrations in the novel by Wm. J. Locke, show Stella Maris as a replica of Little Mary, golden curls and all. The portrayal of two characters so vastly different by Mary Pickford will probably stand as a wonderful achievement in screen art. Those who have seen Mary only as the "beloved curly head" will be amazed at the art she displays in this picture. "The Babes in the Woods," William Fox's latest kiddie picture, is a masterpiece that will live for years, is another feature of our programme. It is a photo-fantasy that will carry floodlight before it or with it. It is a story that is old in origin but always new in the telling.

At the Strand.

For the last three days of this week a double feature bill of exceptional merit will hold the boards at this popular theatre. Madge Kennedy will be seen in her latest Goldwyn screen vehicle, "Our Little Wife," from the stage success of the same name by Mary Hopwood. "Our Little Wife" is the story of a beautiful bride who cheered her rejected lovers by taking them on her honeymoon. Can you imagine the feelings of the husband with three love-sick rivals at his elbow? Can you picture the many plots, the jealousies, suspicions and accusations? And can you imagine anyone who can get the drama and the fun out of this role so wonderfully as Madge Kennedy with her eyes and her smile? Baby Marie Osborne will also be seen in "A Little Patriot," a delightful and timely picture, which tells how Baby Marie Osborne and her band of juvenile patriots cap hold a spy kit, Marie's Gotha comes, and after a thrilling fight make him a prisoner. Comedy reels will also be shown.

Election at Clayton, N.Y.

Clayton, N.Y., March 21.—The Clayton village election was very quiet. There were only sixty-nine votes cast. The women did not vote as there was a question whether they could vote without registration. The officers elected were: William D. Lantier, president; Dr. William Gillick, trustee; J. M. Linnell, trustee; J. E. Swartout, treasurer; Calvin Shire, collector.

Navigation opening on the great lakes takes place next Monday, the earliest in eight years.
