KINGSTON Y.M.C.A. WINS PLANT SENT TO THE FRONT

THE JUVENILE BASKET-BALL GAME WITH TORONTO.

By 23 to 19—Plays Return Game in Toronto Next Friday—Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. Wins Junior Round.

In the Ontario Basketball Association semi-finals Saturday night, the juvenile team of the Kingston Y.M.C.A. defeated the Toronto Playgrounds, 23-16, and will take their seven-point lead to Toronto next Friday when they will meet the Playgrounds again. The winners will meet either Hamilton or London, in the finals for the cup.

The Playgrounds displayed some fast basketball but the locals always broke up their combination with very little difficulty and are confident of holding their lead in Toronto. It is hard to pick out the best player for the "Y" as everyone played a good game, although McKinnon was not as effective as usual, as he had sustained an injury to his hand in a previous practice.

In the junior game of the semi-finals with Toronto, the Toronto Central "Y" defeated the local "Y" 20-17 and win the round by 33 points. At half-time the score was 9-7 for Kingston. In losing this game Kingston is eliminated from the semi-finals and Toronto and London remain. The line up:

Juvenile Y.M.C.A.—Forwards, L. McKinnon and R. Sutherland; defence, S. Gibson and B. Morris; centre, C. Drury.
Toronto Playgrounds—Forwards, G. Baxtm and S. Gald; defence, H. Brown and B. Levi; centre, W. West.
Junior Y.M.C.A.—Forwards, Sugal and Paynter; defence, Clark and Morris; centre, Ellis.

Toronto "Y"—Forwards, Smith and Johnson; defence, Graham and Wilson; centre, Willis.

"Oh Boy" Coming to Grand. A very welcome attraction, "Oh Boy" will be at the Grand next Friday and Saturday, March 29th and 30th, with a special matinee Saturday. The book and lyrics by Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse are exceptionally bright and witty, while the music by Jerome Kern, is of the hummable, whistly kind that lingers long in the memory. Doubtless all Kingston will be fox-trotting to the strains of "The Clouds Roll By," and waltzing to the rhythm of "An Old Fashioned Wife" this winter. One can hardly keep from dancing while hearing these charming selections, as well as many others in the score of "Oh, Boy." "Oh, Boy" is the fourth of a series of intimate musical comedies to be produced at the Princess Theatre, New York, and all the critics are generally agreed that it is the best of them all. Kingston has been fortunate in securing the excellent cast which is presenting "Oh, Boy!" it coming direct from a five months' run at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston. In it are Harold Crane, Helen Shipman, Joseph Allen, Irene Haisman, Charles Compton, Jack Raffael, Harry Quealy, Stella St. Audrie, Evelyn Dorn, and Jack Osterman.

Miss Marjorie Joyce, Napanee, has undergone an operation in the Kingston General Hospital for appendicitis.

FOOD SOURING IN STOMACH CAUSES INDIGESTION, GAS

"Pape's Diapepsin" Ends All Stomach Distress in Five Minutes.

Wonder what upset your stomach — which portion of the food did the damage — do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; belch gasses and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul; tongue coated — just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful — it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

INNOCENT LITTLE SPHAGNUM GOES FROM KINGSTON.

It Grows in Obscurity in the Sour and Stagnant Waste of the Peat Bog — Its Properties in Surgery.

The great war has tested man's ingenuity in almost every direction and every department of science has contributed to practical measures in offensive, defensive and recuperative power. But one of the most useful articles now in great demand is provided by nature herself. This is the innocent little plant growing in obscurity in the sour and stagnant water of the peat bog, sphagnum. Botanists describe it as a moss of the genus Sphagnaceae, — peatmoss, which enters largely into the composition of peat.

The growing, living odour of matted sphagnum moss makes even the sultry moisture of the entangled swamp an irresistible attraction. The perpetually damp and spongy moss growing up in a tangled, spreading clasp and hollow, while lying at the roots, slowly converting ancient ponds into peat bogs and nourishing a heterogeneous gathering of seedlings into elbowing, struggling trees, seems a perpetual fountain of vegetable life.

S. J. Wood, a Canadian naturalist, describes it fully in his volume "Rambles of a Canadian Naturalist." He says: "The usual marsh vegetation is enriched by flowers that only the sphagnum can sustain. The sun-dew lays down its leaves like open hands ready to clasp and hold the unwary fly, and there is abundance of insect life for carnivorous propensities. The richest treasure of the sphagnum swamp is the showy Lady's Slipper, the most beautiful of our wild Orchids. Deep in the secluded and protected recesses, while stooping, climbing and straining overcome the barrier of interlaced branches, these flowers hide the beauty that threatens their destruction. Their sturdy, leafy stems bear large, rich, moss-like, wax-like white hairy markings of pink. This is a beauty of nature that no cultivation could improve, and when discovered repays the sustained effort of a day's search where nature struggles to repel invaders. Only the ardent lover of the sphagnum swamp and its treasures can appreciate to the full this abundant fruition of a year's expectancy."

It grows only in the stagnant water of the peat bog. Its decay sours the water and destroys bacteria of every kind. No-finger can exist in it. In Alaska and Northern Russia extinct mammals were found in a high state of preservation. In one instance the flesh was so well preserved that it was eaten by dogs. Timber has been found in a complete state of preservation that had been imbedded for many years in peat bogs. This resistance to bacteria makes it valuable as a surgical dressing, but its peculiar cell structure makes it a valuable absorbent. There is reliable evidence to the effect that our Indians knew of its properties and used it as a dressing for wounds. Mrs. Constantine, whose husband was one of the commandants in western Canada, has personal knowledge of its use by the Indians.

To Miss Mary Going, who directs the Blue Cross work here, belongs the honour of identifying Kingston with sphagnum and the war. By the direction of botanists at Queen's University, she found a supply near the Rothwell farm at Collins Bay and organized collectors. She had it gathered and placed in the sun to dry. When thoroughly dried it was made up in dressings by sewing it in gauze. These she sent to Lieut.-Col. Walsh, Assistant Director of Veterinary Services and Remounts who sent it on to the Canadian Divisions in France. This work was done in July and September of last year.

Professor MacClement, Botanist at Queen's University used to take his classes to the peat bog at Collins Bay. He states that there is a plentiful supply of sphagnum moss in the Rideau district and also about ten miles from Kingston in the direction of Division street.

When the war began absorbent cotton was the principal dressing in use and its preparation involved great expense. Sphagnum, better than cotton because it requires no medication, and has greater absorbent qualities.

To Use Hydro Power. The power committee of the Board of Trade has decided to cooperate with the Utilities Commission in an endeavor to induce manufacturers and other users of power to use Hydro-Electric power.

One of the largest manufacturers, the Kingston Hosiery Co., has under consideration the alteration of its plant in order to employ electric motor power. An immense saving in fuel will be a direct result and also a saving in the cost of manufacture. Soft steam coal that could be obtained a few years ago at $2 per ton now costs $8 and $9 per ton.

The cost of current will be reduced to the consumer as the number of consumers increase. This is an assured fact which should be seriously considered by all users of power.

Albert Brown Welcomed. Albert Brown, the noted versatile actor, appeared at the Grand on Saturday afternoon and evening in "The White Feather," the British spy play, and was greeted by large audiences. This was a return visit of Mr. Brown who is always welcome in Kingston. A strong association with him and the production was greatly enjoyed.
