Bombardment followed bombardment at great and lesser intervals, in a scientific, careiullythought-out programme of destruction, designed to silence enemy guns and kill the gun crews, or at least to make the operation of their batteries impossible. The success of the bombardment was early seen in the lessening hostile fire, while some estimate of the likely damage caused may be gathered from the results of a similar shoot on April 8th, in which 22 out of 32 of the enemy batteries were put out of action and have not since fired a shot.

In the few seconds occupied in releasing the gas flares, which went up all along the enemy front line, the men in our trenches could distinctly hear the cries of distress from the enemy caught without masks. When quiet had been restored and the Germans were presumably emerging from their dugouts and other special retreats. our artillery sprayed the hostile front, support and assembly areas to Europe shelled and sank a Gerwith shrapnel

All Quiet So Far In Ireland.

(Canadian Press Despatch.) London, April 22,-Military authorities have taken over control of the principal Irish railways, the post offices and telephone exchanges. The police on Saturday removed all arms and ammunition from gunsmith shops in Dublin, where it is reported that similar action will be taken throughout Ireland. Nowhere does any disturbance or even excitement seem to have occurred either at pledgetaking meetings or at the numerous political gatherings throughout Ireland Sunday at which conscription was denounced in strong terms.

fourteen days before it can be issued. In that debate the members, who in the recent division did not wish to embarrass the fate of the man-power scheme in England by giving effect to their opinions against conscription in Ireland, can vote on Ireland alone. Before that stage is reached the Government has promised to introduce a Home Rule bill and also do its best to pass it and presumably put it in operation not merely on the statute book, where, of course, there is a good Home Rule Act already, the withholding of which has caused so much trouble. This all involves time and it may well be months before there is tual application of conscription Ireland. Unless, therefore, Irishmen should "shoot before they are shot at," as the labor Minister put it immediate apprehension of bloodshed in Ireland.
