AN AUSTRIAN MUST WORK

ARRAIGNED BEFORE MAGISTRATE FOR VAGRANCY.

Two Wayward Girls Given Some Good Advice by Magistrate Farrell When They Plead Guilty to a Charge of Vagrancy.

"Why don't you go to work?" asked Magistrate Farrell of a middle-aged man, an Australian who was arraigned before him on Monday morning, charged with vagrancy.

The Austrian simply smiled, and the efforts of the magistrate to get him into some "useful occupation" had no result, and the accused was sent to jail for a week on remand. The Austrian is the one who went suddenly insane the other day, and claimed to have been responsible for the war. He said his Kaiser had nothing whatever to do with the war, and that he alone set off the fireworks. As he has recovered from his "spell," the police wanted him to get busy, realizing the pressing need for men in these days of war, but no sir! Nicholas, for that is his first name, would not make any promises. He and work evidently are strangers to each other. If he is found able to work he will be made to work, for in days of war no person must be idle. The Austrian worked one day at the locomotive works and then threw up the sponge.

Two young women came up in the woman's court. The charge against them was that of vagrancy. One came to court on Saturday to befriend the other, who was accused of securing goods under false pretences from a Kingston shopkeeper, and was held as a prisoner on a charge of vagrancy, and both were registered on the vagrancy charge. When arraigned both entered a plea of "guilty," and as a result it was unnecessary for Police Constable Samuel Arnel to go into the box and disclose a sordid story concerning the manner in which the wayward girls have been carrying on.

Magistrate Farrell gave the girls some good sound advice, and it is to be hoped that they will benefit by it. Late hours, with taxi drives with strange men had much to do in their downfall. Mrs. Smith, the police matron, was present and ready to give the girls a helping hand, and they left the court room with her.

DIED AT PORTLAND.

Late Charles Metcalfe, Father of H. F. Metcalfe, Kingston.

Word reached the city on Monday morning of the death at Portland of Charles Metcalfe, aged eighty-five years, a much-respected resident of that place, and father of H. F. Metcalfe, principal of the Kingston Business College. On Wednesday of last week deceased suffered a broken hip as the result of a fall, and the shock was too much for him, and he passed away on Monday morning.

The late Mr. Metcalfe was engaged for many years as a farmer, but for some years had lived a retired life. He was a member of the Methodist church. Deceased is survived by two daughters and two sons, Mrs. Harry Peters of Portland; Mrs. Alexander McLaren of Chicago; W. H. Metcalfe of Portland; and H. F. Metcalfe of this city; also by several brothers and a sister living in Broughton, Eng. Interment will take place at night. H. F. Metcalfe left on Monday afternoon to attend the funeral.

DID NOT LIKE THE JOB.

Police Constable Miller Resigned After a Week's Service.

The life of a police constable did not appeal to Frank Miller, one of the latest additions to Kingston's "fleet." He handed in his resignation, after serving for a week, and now there is a vacancy for the police commissioner to fill.

It is understood that William Nicholson, who recently resigned from the force, will receive the appointment.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Capacity houses greeted both performances of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Grand Opera House on Saturday. The familiar play never fails to draw large crowds, and successive generations will look upon it as a story of perennial interest. Every available seat was occupied for the production, and considerable enthusiasm prevailed.

Two Operas Coming.

Col. William Franklin Reilly, business manager of the Boston English Opera Company, is in the city making arrangements for his production at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday, May 22nd. Playing the Game.

In a letter written on April 19th to his father, Postmaster James Stewart, Lieut. Col. J. C. Stewart, commanding the 8th Army Brigade, stated that the war is going strong and that all the boys were glad to hear that reinforcements were being sent over from Canada. "We are proud of the Canadians for this in playing the game," said the writer.

Mother's Day in Queen Street Methodist church was marked by a fair attendance, in spite of the storm. A number of elderly ladies were brought to the service in automobiles loaned by members of the church. Rev. J. D. Ellis preached an inspiring sermon.

The Board of Police Commissioners have under consideration the appointment of a woman constable, whose duty it would be to look after wayward girls on the street. It is felt that there is great need for a woman to do work of this kind, but the trouble is in securing a woman who would be able to do the work she would be called upon to do, in order that the service would be satisfactory.

The case of the two girls before Magistrate Farrell, on Monday morning, on a charge of vagrancy, is one that needs the attention of a woman constable—a person who might come into contact with the girls and keep tabs on them.

The commissioners had the matter under consideration at a recent meeting, and while no action was taken, they may make an appointment in the near future.
