BROUGHT LIQUOR TO HOUSE

YOUNG MAN FINED $200 AND COSTS IN POLICE COURT.

Young Woman Recently Sentenced was Chief Witness in Case Heard on Monday Morning—Another Charge Was Dismissed.

On a charge of having liquor in a place other than his own private dwelling, George Buell, a young man, was on Monday morning fined $200 and costs or three months by Magistrate Farrell.

Sadie Lawson, recently sentenced to three months in jail for keeping a disorderly house on Johnson street, was the chief witness in the case. She swore that the accused came to her home about four o'clock on the morning of Saturday, May 18th, and that he had a bottle of liquor in his pocket. The bottle was opened, and she, together with the accused and two other men who came with him, had a drink.

Marjory Forsell, Jean Bathgate and Howard Nolan, who were recently before the Magistrate for intoxication, were witnesses, but their evidence had no direct bearing in this case.

T. J. Rigney appeared for the accused, while C. R. Webster conducted the prosecution. The accused gave no evidence in his own behalf.

Magistrate Farrell stated that he found the accused guilty on the evidence. The Lawson woman had nothing to hope for in telling what she did, as she was already under sentence. He was impressed with the way in which she had given her evidence.

The charge against a farmer, that of driving his auto on Princess street on the night of May 18th without the necessary lights was dismissed. A constable swore that the accused was driving the car, but the latter swore that he was not on Princess street at the time.

A HORSE ELECTROCUTED ON CLERGY STREET

As People Were Going Home From Church After Noon Sunday.

A horse drawing a milk wagon for the City Dairy and owned by O. J. Robinson, was electrocuted on Clerk street shortly after noon on Sunday. One of the overhead wires carrying 110 volts into a house opposite St. Andrew's church had broken down a few minutes before and the horse stepped on a portion where the insulation had worn away. It quivered for a moment and then fell dead. At the civic utilities office it was stated that the current was comparatively weak, but that horses were very susceptible to electric currents.

The accident was witnessed by a large number of persons who were coming from the churches and a number hurried to the scene. They were prevented from touching the dead animal by a doctor, as it was feared that contact with the prostrate horse might also electrocute the persons touching it.

The horse was valued at $225, and compensation will likely be asked from the city for the loss.

OPERAS FOR NEXT AUTUMN

Opera Company to Visit Kingston For First Time.

If nothing intervenes Kingston music lovers are to have a treat in the autumn. H. P. Hill, business manager of the San Carlo Opera Company, was in the city on Monday making arrangements for the production next October in the Grand Opera House. It is not yet definitely known what operas will be produced. Only three cities in Canada are to be visited after the engagements at New York and Boston, which open the season, are completed, and Kingstonians are to be honored with the famous San Carlo aggregation of vocal singers. A large orchestra will also appear with the company.
