FAILURE OF GERMANS TO CROSS THE MARNE

Prussian Battalion Crossed Two Men Abreast and Advanced on the Railway.

French Headquarters, June 7.—The attempt of the Germans to cross the Marne river at Jaulgonne was more serious than appeared from first reports. The enemy threw 12 ladder foot bridges across the river. Four were destroyed by gunfire. A Prussian battalion crossed on the remainder, two men abreast, and advanced immediately on the railway, installing a machine gun detachment at the station, the remainder spreading along the line behind the sheltering embankment.

We decided to throw the enemy back across the river at all costs, and this was carried out on Sunday night by dismounted dragoons, supported by American machine gunners. The latter engaged in a duel with the Germans at the station, enabling the French to work behind the enemy, who incontinently fled, headed by their officers, some of whom plunged into the river and swam across. The remainder of the battalion were killed or captured.

The enemy losses in the machine gun battle with the Americans were also very heavy. Over a thousand German dead lay on the bank of the river and the streets leading thence.

The Theatres

At the Grand.

Elizabeth Risdon has a unique role in her new McClure picture entitled "Mother," which will be shown at the Grand to-night and Saturday only. Throughout the course of the entire production the various situations, which at times border on the tragic, are leavened by a delightful strain of natural comedy which lightens greatly the heavier moments of the drama. George Loane Tucker, who produced the picture from the popular novel "The Mother," by Eden Philpotts has displayed an unusual talent in the handling of the comedy scenes, all of which possess a legitimacy and naturalness so often absent in situations of a like nature. "Mother" will hold your interest from start to finish and bring back to your mind the real meaning of that small six letter word that is the greatest in all the world. The Pathé News, two thousand feet of the best of the O. Henry stories, a Lonesome Luke comedy and other films along with the musical shirleys will complete this special attraction.

At Griffin's.

In spite of the expectations that we had of the new William Fox production, "For Liberty," that was shown yesterday for the first time, the actual viewing of the film was a delightful surprise. This new picture has a wonderful story to tell, and it is set in surroundings that are bound to be of the utmost interest to every one. "For Liberty," it must be understood, is first and foremost a story of the life of an American woman of the highest instincts, who is taken to her country and to her affections. Gladys Brockwell, who is the star of this brilliant play, does her very best work in it. All that she has done previously only gives a forecast of the ability which she shows in this new drama.

At the Strand.

Theatre critics have pronounced the splendid picture now running at the Strand, "Babbling Tongues," with James Armstrong in the stellar role, ably supported by an all-star cast, as one of the greatest of the recent achievements of the film. The audiences speak highly of its excellence. Inconsiderate remarks, while not exactly malicious, are calculated to bring trouble, disappointment and ruin to innocent ones who have no means of defence, and who often realize the fact when it is too late to correct false impressions. The whole plot is excellently filmed. It will be repeated to-night and tomorrow afternoon and evening. In addition there will be the Screen Telegram and comedy and topical reels shown.

Familiar Quotations
Do not be troubled because you have no great virtues. God made a million spears of grass where he made one tree. The earth is fringed and carpeted, not with forests but with grasses. Only have enough of little virtues and common fidelities, and you need not mourn because you are neither a hero nor a saint.
