EIGHT STURDY CHAPS PUT IN FORT HENRY

From His Majesty's Merchantmen at New York

Eight sturdy young chaps, taken charge for deserting His Majesty the King's merchantmen at New York, were taken in charge across the border and afterwards handed over to the Canadian Government and brought to Fort Henry. The eight men were brought to the police station on Monday morning presumably for trial, but it appears that there was a hitch, the local court finding that it had no jurisdiction to act in the matter. As a result the men were taken back to Fort Henry o awat further orders from Ottawa.

Noel Pemberton-Billing, Member of Parliament for East Hertfordshire and publisher of the newspaper Vigilante, opening, his defence in his trial in the Bow Street Police Court, in London, on the charge of libelling Maude Allan, dancer, and J. T. Grein, manager of the Independent Theatre, called Mrs. Villiers Stewart to prove the existence of a book which Pemberton-Billing alleged had been prepared by German secret agents containing the names of 47,000 British persons said to be addicted to vice and held in bondage to Germany through fear of exposure. Mrs. Stewart, under examination by Mr. Pemberton-Billing, said the book which she had seen, but which was not produced, contained the names of Herbert Asquith, formerly Premier, and Mrs. Asquith; Lord Haldane, formerly Secretary for War, and Justice Darling, who is trying the case against the Member of Parliament.
