CHIEF BAILLIE IS DEAD

PASSED AWAY TUESDAY AFTER A BRIEF ILLNESS.

Served as the Head of the Local Police Force for Nineteen Years—Took Prominent Part in Athletics, and Held Record as Crack Shot With Rifle.

After an illness of only a few days, the death occurred in the General Hospital on Tuesday morning about three o'clock of Chief of Police William M. Baillie, in his seventy-seventh year. For the past nineteen years he had been head of the local police force, and was widely known. For the past twenty-five years he had made his home at the Randolph Hotel.

The late Chief Baillie died as he would have liked to die, in that he was "in harness" up till almost the very last. During last week he was unwell, and on Saturday morning his condition grew quite serious, although he went to his office at his usual time, nine o'clock. As his condition did not improve in an hour's time, he decided to go to hospital. Arrangements were made for an operation, but his condition grew gradually worse, and it was found impossible to operate. He suffered from an obstruction of the bowels. He endured severe pain for a week, but complained very little. He was conscious a good deal of the time during the hours before he passed away.

The late William Baillie was born at Barriefield, a son of the late Thomas Baillie. He was raised on the farm, and had lived in Barriefield and Kingston all his life. His early education was received at Daniel Callaghan's school, in Pittsburgh township. He worked around the farm for some time, but when quite young man served with a surveying party in Muskoka. Later on he went into the boot and shoe business in Kingston with H. M. Rutan, under the firm name of Rutan & Baillie.

The store was destroyed by fire in 1876, and about three years later the business was dissolved. Mr. Baillie then accepted a position as bookkeeper with the Kingston & Montreal Forwarding Company at Portsmouth. He ably filled this position for many years, after which he took a position as traveller for Robertson Bros. crockery house. His next position was that of chief of police, succeeding the late Chief Horsey. When the Board of Police Commissioners, composed of Judge Price, Magistrate Duff and Mayor Ryan, were given the task of appointing a new head for the police force, Major "Bill" Baillie, as he was then known, was decided on as the best man for the position, and he got the approval of his wide circle of friends were well pleased at the choice of the commissioners. Being an old military man, with all the necessary tact and discipline the position called for, the new chief kept up the efficiency of the police force, and during the nineteen years he held office managed well all the affairs that came under his care. He was kind-hearted and genial; in fact, his one fault, if he had any, was that he was perhaps too lenient with by-law breakers. But Chief Baillie believed in giving every offender a chance to make good, and at all times would rather make a settlement out of court than to have a party haled before the magistrate.

For the man or woman who had taken a mistep in ways offered a helping hand, and many men and women have him to thank for kindly advice when in trouble.

The late Chief Baillie was of a very quiet disposition, but his friends were legion. To know him was to love him for his many fine qualities of heart and mind. He had the widest respect of every member of the police force. The news of his passing caused deep regret all over the city, many were the warm tributes paid to his worth when the announcement of his death was made.

The late Chief Baillie was very fond of athletics, and took a prominent part in many sports. He was a celebrated lacrosse player, yachtsman, bowler, and curler, and a crack shot with a rifle, and in his day was the leading marksman in or about Kingston. When the Kingston Rifle Association was formed just a few years ago Chief Baillie was one of the most energetic members, and although at that time he had passed his threescore years and ten, he carried off high honors. He was an expert shot both with targets or birds. He served on the Bisley and also the Wimbledon team. From his boyhood days he was always a lover of a rifle or gun, and was always happy when he had a gun in his hands, even if only for cleaning purposes. He was also a great bicycle rider, and practically up till the time of his death used his wheel to visit the old homestead in Barriefield. It was his usual custom to spend a part of each Sunday at his old home. As a lacrosse player in his younger days he carried off high honors. He played with the old Barriefield team, and had the honor of playing in one game with that team when it went up against a visiting team, and played for three hours without either team making a tally. He was also a good ten bowler and a skilful curler, being one of the most enthusiastic members of the Kingston Curling Club. He also loved horses, and kept race horses for many years.

Deceased also served some time in the militia. His first experience was with the volunteers, joining No. 4 Company of the 14th Regiment, and secured the rank of color-sergeant. Afterwards he joined No. 5 Company of the 4th Regiment, which was formed at Barriefield, and was made a lieutenant. J. J. McCaskey was captain. After serving some few years he was made adjutant, and later given the rank of major. In his entire career, both on the field of sport and in business, William Baillie played the part of the man. He was a true friend, and his memory will long be cherished by the wide circle of friends he made.

Deceased was unmarried, and is survived by two brothers, Frank, residing in the western United States; Reginald, at the Barriefield homestead, and one sister, also on the homestead.

The late Chief Baillie was also prominent in Masonic circles. He was a member of Minden Lodge, A. F. & M., and at the time of his death held the position of treasurer of this lodge. He was a great friend of Chief Ryan, of Gananoque, and a coincidence is the fact that Chief Ryan passed away on Saturday and Chief Baillie on Tuesday.

ROAD TO MOWAT HOSPITAL

NAMED IN MEMORY OF LATE MAJOR J. McD. MOWAT.

Portsmouth Council Makes Changes in Street Names—To Have Road to the Above Hospital Rebuilt.

The Portsmouth Council met Monday evening and decided to call for tenders for a plank walk on Centre street from McDonald to Church street.

A new concrete top will be placed over that portion of the main drain that passes through James Short's property.

One block of the roadway on Centre street is to be granted above McDonald street, and a new walk will be built on Main street from Union to Bay streets.

The clerk was instructed to convey the condolence of the council to the family of the late Thomas Kelly, Ottawa, who was for many years clerk of the municipality.

At the suggestion of Reeve Halliday, the street leading to the Mowat sanatorium, now known as King street, will be changed to Mowat avenue, in memory of the late Major John McDonald Mowat, Front street, which is a continuation of the city's King street, will be changed to King street.

It is proposed to ask the Ontario Government to rebuild the road to the Mowat hospital, the Justice Department having already consented to construct a sidewalk. When this is done the council proposes to plant trees on either side, thus making an avenue worthy of the name.

In Acting Chief. At a meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners, Sergt. Robert Nesbitt was appointed acting chief of police. The question of a successor to the late Chief Baillie will be taken up later on.
