SAVED FROM DROWNING

THREE LADIES FROM GENERAL HOSPITAL HAD NARROW CALL.

Robert J. Reid and Two Soldiers From Queen's Military Hospital Made Thrilling Rescue.

Only for the quick intervention of Robert J. Reid, the well-known Princess street furniture dealer, and two soldiers from Queen's Military Hospital, Air Mechanic H. Steer and Pte. Wyatt, a triple drowning would have been inevitable at Macdonald Park about half past eight on Monday evening.

Mr. Reid was sitting with his wife in his automobile along the lake shore, when he heard the cries of three young women, Mrs. G. Wright, wife of Dr. G. Wright, superintendent of the General Hospital; Miss Daisy MacNamee, a graduate nurse from the hospital, and Miss Robinson, the dietician, who were swimming near the hockey mill. There were scores of people sitting on the benches at the time looking at the ladies, but apparently they were under the impression that they were only joking. When their cries became more insistent, however, Mr. Reid realized that they had gone beyond their depth. Without waiting to pull off more than his coat he went after the girls and was followed by the two soldiers, who were sitting on one of the benches.

They swam to the nearly exhausted women and each man took hold of one. It was quite a distance from shore and all the rescuers could do was to keep their heads above water until assistance from passing boats reached them. Mr. Reid and one of the soldiers managed to hold on to one of the motor boats that came in and they were towed to shore.

The rescue was witnessed by scores on the banks and for several moments there was a silence as they watched the efforts of the three men. Then as it was realized that they had been successful in saving the ladies there was a loud cheer for their brave work. The ladies and soldiers were rushed to the hospital by Mr. Reid in his car, where they received attention from physicians.

Those who witnessed the accident are loud in their praises of the action of the three men and state that for a time it looked as if nothing could be done to save the ladies. Several times they had gone under and before Mr. Reid reached the first one who was so exhausted that she could not even cry out. Impeded by the weight of the water, that soaked into their clothes, the men had great difficulty in effecting the rescue, and that it was accomplished is a matter of congratulation.

On Tuesday morning the ladies were recovering from the shock of the occurrence and they will be around again in a few days. They are very thankful to their gallant rescuers who were able to be around and attend to their duties on Tuesday.

Citizens who saw the accident stated to the Whig that with the great number of adults and children that are swimming every afternoon and evening in front of the lake, it is essential some sort of life saving devices should be installed for their protection.

At the Theatres

At The Grand. Gladys Leslie, the dainty and diminutive Vitagraph star, was presented in one of her most charming roles, as Marjorie Sanford, in "The Soap Girl," which was the attraction at the Grand last evening. Marjorie wants to break into society because the youth she loves is firmly entrenched there. But as her father manufactures soap she is considered "impossible" in the eyes of society's arbiter, Mrs. Van Ruhl. But Marjorie learns that her adversary's ancestors made their pile by selling rum to Indians and so she buys a distillery and has for her trade-mark the on-pretty face of Mrs. Van Ruhl. This quickly gained for her a place among the four hundred and also the love of the young man who helped her in her scheming. Other films shown were the Pathé News, a Judge Brown story and a good comedy, "The Vaudeville consisted of Glenn and Ford in their truly wonderful and novel comedy acrobatic act, that drew many cores. This bill will be given another showing to-night and also to-morrow, both matinee and night, so don't miss it, as the Grand is the coolest spot in Kingston and you won't mind the heat.

At Griffin's. A highly delighted audience, last evening witnessed the initial presentation at this theatre of the famous Thomas Ince star, Charles Ray, in his newest Paramount picture, "Playing the Game." It tells the story of a city youth who has inherited millions which he is wasting in night life dissipation along the great wide way, the agency of a fight wherein he believes he has killed a man the hero is forced to seek new fields and goes to an Arizona ranch. There he develops his manhood and remains to marry the daughter of the ranch manager. The contrast between the life of the city's white lights and the healthful, expanding existence in the open country is decidedly marked. "Playing the Game" is said to be one of the best pictures in which Mr. Ray has been seen in many months.

OBITUARY

The Late Sergt. McNaughton. The death occurred in the Mowat Memorial Hospital on Sunday of Sergt. Archibald McNaughton, whose home was in Finch, Ont. Deceased was thirty-two years old, and unmarried. He was a member of the 59th Battalion, but was taken ill, and was unable to go overseas. He was admitted to the Mowat Hospital on July 26th, 1917. The remains were forwarded to his home in Finch by James Reid & Sons.

The Late Mrs. A. D. Menzies. The remains of the late Mrs. Menzies, wife of the Rev. A. D. Menzies, a graduate of Queen's University, who died some time ago at Swift Current, Sask., reached the city on Saturday evening and were interred on Monday afternoon in the family plot in Cataract cemetery, the funeral taking place from the residence of her sisters, the Misses Allen, Alfred street. The service was conducted by the Rev. J. W. Stephens, pastor of St. Andrew's church, of which the family were lifelong members, the deceased also attending until her marriage. The late Mrs. Menzies was the eldest daughter of the late Aid. William Allen and Mrs. Allen, her father being Cataract ward's representative in the City Council for thirty-four years, and one of Kingston's best known citizens. The deceased was of a bright and sunny disposition and was held in high esteem by all who knew her. Her death came as a shock to her relatives who were unaware that her illness was so serious. Although Mrs. Menzies did not take a full course at Queen's University, she obtained the highest honors in all subjects she took up. The sympathy of many friends goes out to the bereaved husband, her sisters and other relatives in the city in their sorrow.

Members of the Oddfellows' Relief Association from all parts of the country arrived in the city on Tuesday to attend the annual meeting on Wednesday. Committee meetings were held on Tuesday to draw up the reports to be presented at the annual meeting. About 150 delegates are expected to be in attendance. The London Central News Berns despatch says Von Hindenburg is seriously ill and has taken no part in military operations this year. He attended some Imperial receptions with difficulty, but did not speak, and is quite incapable of writing.
