DR. BELAND ARRIVES AT ATLANTIC PORT

Canadian M.P., Long a Prisoner, Says the Hung Are On Last Legs.

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 5.—Bearing 400 passengers a huge British transport steamed into port here Saturday. Among her passengers were many British and American army officers and Dr. H. S. Beland, former Postmaster-General of Canada and a former member of the Canadian Parliament.

Dr. Beland described conditions in Germany as very bad and expressed the opinion that the nation could not long hold out with food so scarce, prison camp conditions, he said, horrible.

Several attempts were made by the British and Canadian authorities to obtain Dr. Beland's release through the exchange of prisoners, but none was successful until early this year.

In 1915 the German Government offered to liberate Dr. Beland upon agreement for like action by Great Britain in the case of Franz Von Rintelen, then a prisoner in England serving a sentence in this country for plotting destruction of Allied ships leaving American ports. The proposed exchange did not materialize.

BANK ROBBERY ALARM

Two Policemen Dashed Into Bank of Montreal Monday Morning.

Passersby on King street were startled at an early hour on Monday morning, when they saw Constables Mullinger and Downey rush across the market square from the police station to the Bank of Montreal.

Visions of a daring robbery in the bank during the night were brought to mind, but quickly dispelled when the police came out in a few moments and announced that the burglar alarm wires connected with the station had crossed, with the result that a warning was given in the police office.

Lance-Corporal Joseph Dowling, Connought Rangers, who landed on the coast of Ireland from a German submarine three months ago, was pronounced guilty and sentenced to death. The sentence, however, was commuted to penal servitude for life.

IS MAJOR W. J. SHARP ALIVE?

It was thought that perhaps Major Sharp might have been shell-shocked at the front and that in a temporary relapse he had wandered from the city. Mrs. Sharp stated, however, that his wounding was the reason for his return, and that he had not been suffering from nervous disability.

It is understood that a strict investigation into the mystery of his disappearance will be instituted. The fact that the diving and the blasting revealed no trace of his presence has strengthened the opinion that Major Sharp has either been made the victim of foul play or that he has left the city. The place where he was supposed to have been drowned is in a secluded spot where he might easily have been attacked by thugs walking along the railroad tracks. It is certainly not an enticing bathing beach, for the water is muddy and stagnant and weeds infest the place.

George Coxworthy, who found the clothes, stated that a man answering his description was seen in the vicinity on Friday night and he must have gone by automobile from the city, as he did not buy a ticket at the local G.T.R. office. His clothes were not seen at the intake pipe dock until nearly ten o'clock, though Mr. Coxworthy had been in the vicinity in the early morning.

The air is thick with surmises as to the causes of his disappearance and his whereabouts. Every person has a different version, based in the majority of cases on insufficient and unsubstantial information. It is understood that a detective from the Thiel Agency has been engaged to work on the case and is following up all possible clues to get at the bottom of the mystery.

The articles found on the bank were his tunic, trousers, shirt and other apparel, his watch, his spectacles, his cane, his boots and the sum of thirty-five cents in his pockets. His fountain pen as well as his money belt was missing, and this leads to a suspicion that there may have been foul play. It was said that when he left his office he had the sum of four hundred dollars in his wallet, which was missing when his clothing was found.
