KILLING GERMANS

General Currie's Stern Message From the Canadian Army Corps.

Just before the Canadian entry into the present battle General Sir Arthur Currie, during a short visit to London delivered the following message from the Canadian Army Corps under his command. A summary of it was cabled at the time. This is the full text of what will be regarded years hence as an historic utterance:

"The situation is a serious one, and it is better for all people to know the fact. Germany has struck four mighty blows with success on each occasion, and it is just a question how many of these blows we can stand. Personally I think that the factor that can be turned in our favor is this: If we stop and fight the Boche, we will kill a sufficient number to make him silly, while America develops enough strength to turn the man power in our favor. The British soldier realizes that he is a better man than the Boche, and he believes that the German army can be beaten. Our men do not regard the Boche as a super-man, and, remembering the crimes they have committed, we shall never take such a delight in killing them as when we next meet them. Germany is simply a mad dog that must be removed!

Sir Arthur Currie.

For everywhere he went men spoke of the deeds of the Canadian Army Corps. When the women with their children and the old men were fleeing before enemy forces on the Western Front on a not very distant occasion, and learnt that the troops meeting them were Canadians, they turned round and went back home. On another occasion when visiting a British headquarters, I saw a Brigadier sitting by the roadside, tired and dirty and wan. He called out, 'Who's that coming along?' and when the reply was 'Genl. Currie,' he said: 'Are the Canadians coming down here?' Told that they were, he threw his hat in the air, and declared: 'Then we are all right now.'

"When we came to England first we were not regarded as the finest fighting soldiers. We had many things said about us unjustly, and suggestions were put about that it was improbable we should ever become good soldiers. Everywhere to-day, at G.H.Q. and all other places, it is recognized that Canadian soldiers are fit to take their place beside the veteran soldiers of the British Army, with whom we are proud to serve.

"I know it has been said that Canadians and other overseas troops are placed in the hottest parts of the war area. That is all poppycock. The greatest fighting in the war has been this year, and we have not taken any particular part in it. The Boche has not attacked the Canadian front. He knows that he has never yet met the troops from Canada without suffering severely. The turn of the Canadian corps must come. The temper of the Canadian soldier is that there is no position he is asked to take that he will not take; and I know that the Boche will not take any part our line except over the dead bodies of your Canadian fellow citizens. This is why I am not the happiest man in the British Isles to-night. The Canadian Corps is going to die. It is simply a question of who can stand killing the longer.

"I have never seen the Corps in finer fighting fettle than it is to-day. The Canadians in France are now more efficient than ever, and we could not be in that position unless we were back up by Genl. Sir Richard Turner and his staff in England. There is a feeling of co-operation now that never existed before, and the better the liaison we have between France, England and Canada, the better it is for the fighting forces.

"And so we stand in a great cause, on the eve of great events. We have to preserve the British Empire. It would be a terrible calamity if anything should happen that would make the peoples of the British Empire hesitate at such a juncture. The British Empire must be saved."

REPLY OF BARBER TOOK BREATH AWAY

Had Never Heard Before Of a Barber's Pole as a Tombstone.

The following interesting communication, purporting to be signed by the general superintendent, has been received by a number of officials of the C.P.R. Railway Company and has been much enjoyed by them:

In accordance with our policy, our solicitor was instructed to notify certain parties who were conducting different lines of business using the letters, C.P.R., such as C. P. R. Hotel, C. P. R. restaurant, barber shop, etc., that the use of the sign was illegal and they should be prosecuted.

One person received this notice who had a barber shop bearing the sign. "C.P.R. Barber Shop—Cut Rates." Our solicitor has sent his reply, which reads as follows:

"Dear Sir: I got yure nottis, I dont want no law soot with yure big company, or I dont want to paint a new sign on my shop. Times is bad and I have a large wife and family to spore for. I no yure company owns most everything—railerods, steamers, most of the best land and the time, but I dont no as you own the hole affabet. The letters on my shop dont stand for your railerod, but for something better. I left a matter in ouid Ireland. She is dead and gone, but her memries dere to me. Her maiden name was Christina Patricia Reardon, and what I want to no is what you are going to do about it. I suppose you wont argue that the balance of my sine what refers to cut-rates has got anything to do with yure railerod. There aint been no cut rates around these parts that I no of.

(Signed) "TIMOTHY O'BRIEN."
There is an element of reason in Tim's argument and defence that I find difficult to combat, and if the trial were before a jury I am rather inclined to think we'd get the worst of it and Timothy would continue to do business at the old stand and under the old name.

I have heard of various methods of perpetuating the memory of departed relatives, but this is the first instance I have known of using a barber's pole as a tombstone.

With the numerous intricate problems that come before your department, perhaps you would favor me with some advice as to what we should follow in dealing with this gentleman from Emerald Isle.
