WOULD SELL OUT HOLDINGS "B" ON OATS YEARS AGO

CHANGES PLANNED IN T. I. PARK STOCK OWNERSHIP.

A Catholic Summer School May Be Started There—Negotiations Said To Be Pending With This End In View.

Waterbury Times. Negotiations are pending for the sale of the controlling interest of the stock of the Thousand Island Park Association which is owned by E. T. Shepard, of Oneida. Several deals are pending, and a meeting of the directors and cottage owners will be held to-night. At this meeting it is possible that a decision may be reached.

Mr. Shepard has been anxious to dispose of his holdings for some time on account of ill health. He owns the controlling interest in the association, which is incorporated for $50,000. One proposition is for the cottage owners at the park to put up $1,000 each to the extent of $25,000.

Mr. Shepard has been frank in saying that Catholic interests are negotiating for the purchase of the property, and that if the control does not pass to the cottage owners themselves it may go to representatives of the Catholic Church.

It was hinted that the park might be made the location of an extensive Catholic summer school. Bishop Henry Gabriels of the diocese of Ogdensburg this afternoon told the Times correspondent at Ogdensburg that the local diocese was not interested in the purchase of a site for a summer school at the Park inasmuch as it already has property at Plattsburgh valued at half a million dollars which is used as a summer school and takes care of all local requirements.

It was pointed out at the park that the purchase might be in the interest of some diocese other than Ogdensburg.

The officers of the association are: President, R. P. Gault, of Clayton; vice-president, E. T. Shepard, of Oneida; secretary and treasurer, Felix Hagadorn, of Oneida, son-in-law of Mr. Shepard. Mr. Shepard has owned the controlling interest for the last five years, having purchased the stock of Mrs. E. M. Gridley.

The property at the Park has suffered heavily from fire in the last five years. In August, 1912, the Umban Hotel was burned to the ground, together with a number of cottages, with an estimated damage of a quarter of a million dollars. About a year later a number of boat houses were destroyed with a loss of $15,000. After these fires the summer population at the Park dwindled somewhat and plans were discussed to bring it once more in popular favor. One of the plans was for a new club house to be erected over the water, but on account of the war this project was abandoned.

The Park lost none of its popularity on the part of the cottage owners, and they continued to spend their summers there even after the hotel had been burned.

It was said to-day that in any event there would be a revival of the activities at the Park, and that more amusements would be provided. Tali S. Morgan, director of music at Ocean Grove, N.J., who also directs the music at Thousand Island Park, plans to establish a summer conservatory of music there, teaching both vocal and instrumental music. Mr. Morgan plans to have an elaborate school there and have professional artists give concerts from time to time.

Thousand Island Park seems to have been an outgrowth of the wave of religious sentiment which swept over the country in about 1874. The Park is the outgrowth of the idea of Rev. J. F. Dayan, a Methodist minister, who conceived the idea that the Methodist denomination would support such a resort. He selected the south-westerly end of Wells Island as the best spot, and the land was purchased from Capt. Troop, consisting of about a thousand acres.

The original capitalization was $15,000. The first trustees were Chancellor E. D. Haven, Willard J. Col. A. D. Shaw, John F. Moffett, J. F. Dayan, E. C. Curtis, E. Remington, James Johnson and M. D. Kingston. A large tabernacle was erected and religious services were held each Sunday.

The rules and regulations during the early days were so rigid that it was some time before the park grew into public favor, but of recent years the policy has become more liberalized. It was not until four years ago, however, that a resolution was adopted allowing steamboats to land at the park on Sundays.

CAPE VINCENT MAN SAYS IT IS NOTHING UNUSUAL.

Is Common Imperfection—Is Only Sure Way in Which to Distinguish Oats Before the Heads Appear.

H. A. Ainsworth, Cape Vincent, N.Y., says that there is nothing unusual in the letter "B" which many people report having seen on the ends of oat leaves. He says that he has noticed it in some cases for the last thirty-five years. In a letter Mr. Ainsworth says:

I have read many articles in the papers this summer about a letter "B" on oat leaves.

Now, I was reared on a farm and one of the first things that I learned, as a boy, was how to tell the different grains as they started growing and before the heads appeared on the straw. Oats, barley and wheat are very similar up to a certain stage of their growth. Barley has a slightly wider leaf than oats and wheat a slightly narrower. Therefore there is quite a difference between barley and wheat. But it is always hard for an inexperienced person to distinguish oats from barley or oats from wheat. There is one way in which to distinguish oats at all stages of growth. Each and every leaf of the oat leaf has a slight imperfection about two-thirds of the length from the plant to the end. And while all have not got a perfect letter "B" on them they all have the same imperfection, and one has only to examine a few leaves in any green oat field to find one which has a very perfect letter "B" on the leaf.

It seems strange to me that others have not been taught these simple distinctions in so common a grain as oats. I can remember that oats had a letter "B" on each leaf as long ago as 185 years, so I can see no reason that it should have any connection with the present great war.

PUMPING OUT THE WATER.

Firemen Used Two Engines at the New Gas Tank.

The firemen took down the two engines from the stations to pump out the water from the new gas tank that is being constructed on the corner of King street and Place d'Armes. Some days ago the tank was filled with water for testing purposes and it was found that it leaked badly. After the water was pumped out, a dressing three-quarters of an inch thick will be laid on the walls to prevent further leakage.

Mr. Knight said that Mrs. Tait had fully recovered upon her arrival.

The Darkey's Will.

A particularly true impression of the quaint humor and simple philosophy commonly found among the less-educated negroes of the United States is afforded by the following: One negro advised another, who had been drafted to make a will before going to the war. "I hain't got no use, nohow, for dat kind of a will," said the second; "de only will I knows anything about is, Will I come back?"
