

Boys' Clothes

Youth is nimble, full of sport, strength and spirit; boyhood is the May-season of life.

All boys are real boys in the summer time at least.

But don't restrain the boy, rather bring him here and let us fix him out with clothes that will withstand the severe service he is bound to give them.

There's nothing desirable in clothing for the boy, large or small, that cannot be found at this store of good clothes.

Suits $6.50 up to $15.00, and all prices between.

At the Theatres

At the Grand.
Both June Elvidge and Carlyle Blackwell appear in "The Way Out," the surprising new World Picture which was presented at the Grand last evening. These two fascinating stars both had corking roles in this feature, and their many admirers were greatly pleased with their work. Other films on the bill were a Lonesome Luke comedy, an O. Henry story, and the Pathe News. For the vaudeville, the Angers gave a singing, dancing and roller skating act that drew rounds of applause. Don't miss this exceptional programme, which will be shown to-night for the last time.

For the first three days of next week Earle Williams, supported by Grace Darmond, will be seen in the five-reel Vitagraph release, "The Seal of Silence." This picture tells the story of a great secret which was shielded by a woman who placed honor on the same plane as love. There will also be the Pathe News, a dandy single reel comedy, and two thousand feet of other good film. An act of attractive vaudeville will complete this special holiday bill.

"Turn to the Right."
In packing theatres wherever it has been shown, "Turn to the Right," the reigning comedy-drama success to be presented at the Grand Opera House on Thursday evening, Sept. 3th, has demonstrated that the public is incurably religious, and that it is only necessary to get down to where individual religion resides and "mix laughter with the sterner stuff" to evoke its expression. "Turn to the Right" is the New Testament with brilliant comedy and worthily-directed rascality thrown in. But the mother-love that never fails—mother-love linked with the Book and prayer—permeates the play in a way that persuades one that the theatre is not an unfit place wherein to erect a family altar. The central figure of the story, Mother Bascom, is the sort of old-fashioned, praying mother that is enshrined in the hearts of millions of men and women whose environment has dimmed their recollections of Sunday school teachings. Ruth Chester, who appeared as Mother Bascom throughout the twelve months' run of the play at the Gaiety Theatre, heads the original New York company to be seen here.

"Everywoman."
No other offering of the last decade has established for itself such a vogue as has this greatest of all plays. As a drama as a musical comedy, as a spectacle and because of its operatic and orchestral features, as well as by reason of the size and personnel of its cast and the excellence of its enactment, "Everywoman" has been a sensation of international proportions. It ran over one year in New York, playing long engagements at three theatres. The English production which was made at the Drury Lane Theatre was extraordinarily successful.

Mr. Savage, who has a reputation of doing big things and keeping his promises, announces that he is sending here the best organization which has ever played "Everywoman." It is of huge size—the dramatic and musical ensemble numbering 100 people. "Everywoman" is a superb presentation, a mighty spectacle worth white, with its impressive characterizations, dramatic situations, comedy, musical features, pretty girls and its wonderful story absorbing in intensity. The chorus achieves the triple triumph of singing melodiously, dancing gracefully, and being enchantingly vivacious all the while. Accompanying the organization is a special symphony orchestra. "Everywoman" comes to the Grand on Saturday, Sept. 7th, both matinee and night.

At the Strand.
Vital human problems are presented in "A Man's World." The heroine, Frankie Ware, the novelist, tries to solve these both in her books and in her life. Her success in some ways, and her failure in others, furnish strongly dramatic moments. Frankie is loved by Malcolm Gaskell, the publisher who brings out her book, and by David Powell, a poor young violinist. As the story progresses she discovers which man's nature is of pure gold and which of base metal. Emily Stevens as Frankie Ware wears some stunning gowns, and does brilliant acting in the strongly emotional moments. The star has never done better work than this characterization in "A Man's World," not even in "The Slacker" and "Day-break" on the screen, nor in "The Unchastened Woman" or "The Fugitive" on the stage. She is shown as the centre of an admiring throng of Bohemians and artists in the literary circles in Washington Square. "A Man's World" is a worth-while production. It will interest all classes and members of society, because it is essentially human.

This production in conjunction with comedy reels and the first episode of "The House of Hate," the serial supreme starring Pearl White, will be shown on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

At Griffin's.
Again last evening many admirers of the famous George M. Cohan turned out in force to witness his latest triumph, "Hit-the-Trail Holiday." "Billy" Holliday, the famous bartender, will rank as one of Mr. Cohan's finest screen portrayals. The picture is of unusual merit, and may be seen again and again with entertainment and profit. Charming Vivian Martin again received a warm welcome from many admirers last night, when she was seen in "Uncle Sam's Eyes." This picture shows the rollicking adventures of a girl who was shipped by express. It is a cheery picture with a touch of the dramatic to make you think. This unusual programme of good feature pictures and the seventeenth episode of "Uncle Sam's Eyes" will be shown to-night for the last time.

The Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, which has been in training at Petawawa Camp during the summer, returned to the city on Saturday morning. Preparations had been made for their reception at the barracks at Tete du Pont, and the morning was spent in unloading the guns from the flat cars at the C. P. R. station. Only one accident occurred, and it was not serious. One of the guns was overturned at the foot of Brock street, when a sharp turn around the corner was made and a batteryman was thrown into the mud, but escaped with a few scratches on his face and hands. Among the Kingstontians who were working at the station were "Del" Chery, "Fla" Walsh and Gunner Marchand.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of Mildred Beahrook, Sealey's Bay, born April 8, 1917, died Aug. 28th, 1917.

One year has passed our hearts still sore.

As time goes on we miss her more;

One of the dearest, one of the best;

We miss her most, who loved her best.

Her stay on earth was very brief;

She knew no sin or care or grief;

For five short months she here did stay,

And her heavenly father called her away.

We love her well, no tongue can tell;

But longer here she could not dwell;

God loved her too and thought it best

To take her to her heavenly rest.

We should not mourn for all is well,

She was too pure on earth to dwell;

We'll strive to live that when we die,

We'll meet our darling at home on high.

Oh, weep not ye whom God has left,

To mourn a life so early left;

She sits while you are thus bereft,

First of your household safe in heaven—

—Father, Mother and Friends.

Familiar Quotations

I lay me down to sleep
With little thought or care
Whether my waking find
Me here, or there.

My half day's work is done,
And this is all my part;
I give a patient God
My patient heart.

And grasp His banner still,
Though all its blue be dim;
These stripes, no less than stars,
Lead after Him.
—MISS WOOLSEY.
