The Germans Have Removed Their Artillery to the East of the Lys River-The Germans Are Destroying Everything in the Most Vandal-like Manner.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

With the British Armies in France, Sept. 9 .- Field Marshal Haig's forces this morning advanced in the area west and north-west of St. Quentin and are now five miles from the Hindenburg line. They are still pressing forward. The British made a formidable thrust this morning north of the Arras-Cambrai road. In Flanders it is stated that the Germans have removed their artillery to the east of the Lys river.

> French Have Made Advances, (Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, Sept. 9 .- North of the Somme, French troops have made further advance in the direction of Clastres and have occupied Lomot farm. French troops have crossed the Crozat canal, opposite Lys, three repulsed by the French in the Laffaux region, north-east of Soissons. The French took eighty prisoners belonging to five different regiments.

Germans Destroying Everywhere.

Paris, Sept. 9 .-- A semi-official despatch states that the enemy is destroying everywhere in the most vandal-like manner. When he has not time to burn down houses, he removes the furniture and makes a great bonfire of it. He blows up the most important buildings and pillages everything, removing agricultural machinery and destroying everything else which he has time to remove. Nevertheless, our advance into this forest of Coucy was so rapid that the enemy had to abandon very large quantities of war material and important ammunition depots.

The sight of such devastation ordered by the leaders of the German army kindles in our soldiers a determination to punish such crimes. They know no fatigue in pursuing.

OBJECTIVES WITHIN STRIKING DISTANCE

Germans May Have to Retreat Anew With Greater Rapidity Than Ever.

(Canadian Press Despatch) New York, Sept. 9.—The Associated Press to-day issued the following: As the Allied armies draw IIII nearer to Cambrai, St. Quentin and the natural defensive positions of the Germans in the St. Gobain forest. the offensive movement begins to lose much of the momentum it gained and maintained while less important enemy positions were being taken Slow progress continues to be made by Field Marshal Haig's British and St. Quentin, and if the operations of French armies under Generals Humbert and Mangin are successful in over-running or encircling St. Gobain massif, the German retreat must begin anew and with greater rapidity than at any time since the Allied counter-offensive started in the middle of July. Cambrai and St. Quentin, the immediate objectives of the British forces in the present phase of the offensive movement, are almost within striking distance. They are within six miles of St. Quentin at Villevque brilliant and fearless work on the and they have captured Roisel and St. Emilie. Along the line between Cambrai and St. Quentin the British advance has carried them into their old defence positions from which they were driven by the Germans last bitterly contested by the Germans.

Proposals to have the Indians on the reserve surrender the land and move to some other district, with a view to opening the reserve up for other settlers, have been before the Minister of the Interior. The main difficulty at present, however, seems to be that the Indians will not consent to the surrender of their lands.

Having the benefit of attacking from high ground, the British are likely to make comparatively short work of the intervening distances. What opposition the line itself offers remains to be seen.

The fact that the Hindenburg line is not a great system of concrete tunnels and underground chambers is indicated by descriptions of certain portions. Concrete is little used. The Germans built wide trenches instead.
