

Fall Weight Overcoats

A light weight overcoat isn't a luxury these cool autumn evenings. It's a necessity.

We've a fine showing in all the correct styles. You'll be wise if you select your fall overcoat right now before that cold catches you. $15.00 to $30.00, and all prices between.

RAIN COATS! YOU'LL NEED ONE

While you can never depend on the fall weather, you can always depend on our raincoats.

They are guaranteed in every way, and they are absolutely waterproof. $13.50 to $28.00.

The raincoat is just the trick for the cool raw, wet fall weather. They protect a man's clothes and keep his body dry, warm and comfortable.

SHIPYARD WORKERS OUT

WALKED OUT IN SYMPATHY WITH M.T. CO. EMPLOYEES.

Said That Latter Demand Better Conditions and Had to Quit—Shipworkers Want Their Reinstatement, With Union Standards Adopted.

The shipyard employees who walked out on Thursday afternoon from the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company's drydock did not return to work on Friday morning.

The walkout appears to have been done because of sympathy with some of the Montreal Transportation Company's employees. Some weeks ago the steamer Avon was taken to the M.T. Co. here for repairs. The overhauling was partially completed when the men at work asked for the same conditions that prevailed in the yards of the Collingwood Shipbuilding Co. Their demands were refused, and it is understood that a number were ordered to quit work.

The boat was then taken to the shipbuilding company's drydock for the completion of the repairs, and it has been there practically all summer, as there is a great amount of work to be done on it. When the employees of the shipyard, who are members of the Iron Workers, Shipbuilders and Helpers' Union, heard of the demands of their brethren in the transportation plant they backed them up and demanded their reinstatement. A meeting was held on Wednesday night of the union members, and they decided to go out in sympathy until the M.T. Co. had acceded to their demands. Efforts were made to get in touch with H. M. McMaster, marine superintendent, who was out of the city, but without avail. Accordingly, about thirty of the union men walked out on Thursday afternoon and are now awaiting the reinstatement of their brothers at the transportation company's plant.

It is understood that the shipyard men are also standing by the M.T. Co. workers for an eight-hour day, and that the matter will be further discussed at a union meeting.

Military News

Despite a wind storm which made the big canvas crack and slap, the Military "Y" held a very successful concert Thursday night at Barrieffield camp. Miss Devlin, who was in charge of the program, arranged for a downpour of rain, but arrived happy and smiling. George Smith acted as chairman and kept the boys laughing with his stories and recitations, while his Chinese song was the hit of the evening. Miss Lillian Fairful scored a decided success with her selections, as did also Miss Agnes Lemmon. Miss Phyllis Devlin was enthusiastically received, and made a big hit with her encore "Goblins." Miss Francis presided at the piano.

To-night the "Y" is showing movies at Barrieffield.

A course of instruction for quartermasters and A.M. sergeants and those acting as such for all units in the Kingston garrison will commence Monday, the 16th inst.

Lieut.-Col. Smart, O.C. 1st Depot Battalion, E.O.R.; Lieut.-Col. W. D. Boggs, A.J.A.G., and Captains Pows and Lancaster proceeded to Ottawa on Wednesday on duty.

Work on Barrieffield is going on apace. One hundred men are now employed, and the number will be increased to two hundred next week. M. P. Reid has secured the contract to feed the employees, who will be quartered on the grounds when the sufficient housing accommodation has been provided for them.

The following officers have proceeded overseas as conducting officers with drafts: Major R. Bird-whistle and Lieut. H. J. Wilson, part of draft No. 80, E.O.R., 2nd Battalion.

Lieuts. J. R. McMurrich and C. E. Hastings, draft No. 93. Lieuts. L. A. Bissell and W. J. Barrett, draft No. 100, E.O.R., 1st Depot Battalion.

Lieuts. W. C. Miller and S. Appleton, draft No. 85 Engineers, Brockville.

Pte. Otis G. Hamilton Wounded. Mrs. James Hamilton, 25 Stephen street, received a cable Friday morning informing her that Pte. Otis G. Hamilton, her eldest son, lies in the General Hospital, Boulogne-sur-Mer, France, suffering from gunshot wounds in his right elbow. He is well known in the city, having served his time with Taylor & Hamilton, for whom he worked until he joined the army. Before going overseas he married Miss Margaret Stevenson, a nurse at Brockville, also a native of Kingston. Pte. Hamilton was attached to the 48th Highlanders, Canada.

Excursion to Picton. In connection with Picton fair, steamer Brockville leaves Kingston, Wednesday, Sept. 18, at 7.30 a.m., calling at bay ports. Fare from Kingston, $1.00 return; from bay ports, 75c; children, half fare. Boat leaves Swift's dock.

The members of the Dominion Police in Kingston handed over an absentee to the provost marshal on Friday morning. The man was employed as a clerk in a local dry goods store.

F. W. Davie died in Toronto, on Sept. 9th, aged fifty-eight years. His remains were taken to Belleville for interment.

At the Theatres

At The Grand.

Bessie Love came back again to the Grand last evening in a truly wonderful play, "A Little Sister of Every-body" and this winsome, adorable girl made the hit of her career with this Pathe feature. In this picture the charming little star had the role of an orphan, who was brought up by her grandfather and they lived in the foreign section of a great American city. Life was happy until the war broke out and then came the rumblings of anarchism in the air. Just at this time there entered into the scene a breezy young youth who was in love with the girl and between the two of them they managed to capture the enemies of their country and bring happiness once more to their home. Other reels on the bill, besides this fascinating feature, were the Pathe News, a Lonesome Luke comedy, an O. Henry story and a good scenic. Dick and Alice McAvoy, with their novelty singing, talking and dancing act, made an immense hit. This programme will be repeated for the last time this evening, so don't miss it.

"A Daughter Of The Sun." "A Daughter of the Sun," the story of an Hawaiian Butterfly, will be the attraction at the Grand on Saturday, the 14th, both matinee and night. The story turns on the love of Dr. Edward Grant, an American, for a Hawaiian girl, "Loa," known as "The Daughter of the Sun." She is the sweetheart of "Kama," a descendant of Kalaheko. The plot is fostered and nourished by a Japanese of high birth, posing as a scientist, who plans to aid a rebellion and then take the islands in the name of Japan. Meantime X-17 secret service has been sent down to get evidence. The Jap persuades "Kama" to give the young American doctor a cure of leprosy as a favor for his tea, but "Kama" loses his nerve. Nevertheless, he retains the black bottle in his possession, and when the arch villain requests it, "Kama" yields and Dr. Grant is inoculated. He is sent to Molokai, a deadly quarantine, but he escapes. The physician comes back bravely to face the villain and then it is that X-17, who is a young woman posing as a Broadway actress, reveals her identity and interferes with the Jap's schemes.

At Griffin's.

Douglas Fairbanks, he of the genial smile and athletic prowess, attracted a large audience to his theatre last evening to witness his very latest production, "Bound in Morocco," and that they were immensely pleased by this photograph was evidenced by the hearty outbursts of applause which greeted the unfolding of the picture at frequent intervals. No need to enumerate on the virtues of "Doug" as an actor, as he is too well known, suffice to say that "Bound in Morocco" is a typical Fairbank picture, and that stands for all the requirements of a first class production. Another pleasing feature of our programme is "Gail Kane, in 'Souls in Pawn,'" a delightfully appealing drama in which this charming star plays a most suitable role in a manner beyond criticism. These two features, and the eighteenth episode of "The Eagle's Eye" go to make up a bill that compares favorably with any to be seen anywhere at popular prices.

At The Strand.

The giant redwoods that form the background of the production, "The Half-Breed," starring Douglas Fairbanks and Alma Rubens, offered a striking opportunity to the public for the study of natural history. The world offers no spectacle grander or more awe-inspiring than the redwood trees of Calaveras county, California. These trees are peculiar to California and are the property of the United States Government, to be kept intact and inviolate from the woodman's axe. Attaining a height very often of three hundred and fifty feet, these trees are said by scientists to be as old as five thousand years. A butt diameter of fifteen to twenty feet is common, and their clean, straight fluted trunks often rise two hundred feet below the lowest trunk. It is in the midst of this grandest of nature's cathedrals that Douglas Fairbanks, as Low, the Half-Breed of Bret Harte's wonderful tale, lives in solitude, and sadness, the victim of the whiteman's intolerance. Pathos and laughter, love, jealousy and hate figure in this terrific story of social injustice which holds the audience in breathless suspense to the very end. "The Half-Breed" will be shown at the Strand Theatre to-day and Saturday, also a high-class comedy featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, and topical reels.
