

PORTLAND MAN GAINS 24 POUNDS

Was Hardly Able to Work Before He Began Taking Taniac.

"When I started taking Taniac I was so weak I could hardly do anything at all, and it has not only almost gained a new man of me, but I have gained twenty-four pounds besides," said Charles E. Shaffer, an employe of the Grant Smith-Porter Shipbuilding Company, living at 508 West Charleston street, Portland, Ore., the other day.

"A little over a year ago," he continued, "I suffered from a bad case of the grippe that pulled me down till I was hardly fit for a thing. I lost my appetite and what little I managed to force down soured on my stomach and felt as hard as a lump of lead in me, and I was miserable night and day. Then several weeks ago I had an awful attack of tonsillitis that had me so bad I couldn't swallow a bit of nourishment for ten days, and it came near putting me out of business. I felt tired and worn out all the time and lost every spark of energy I ever had. When I went to bed I would roll and toss so much that I never got a good night's sleep, in fact I haven't been able to sleep much in the last three or four years, and I always got up in the mornings feeling just as bad as when I went to bed. I lost considerable in weight and got so weak and rundown that at last I just had to quit working altogether.

"I read so much about the good Taniac was doing others that I decided to try a bottle. I began to pick up right smartly from the very first, and in a little while I had my appetite back and was eating and enjoying my meals, and everything now agrees with me. A get as hungry as a bear in three hours after eating a hearty breakfast, and my food is building me up something wonderful. I sleep like a log all night and get up in the mornings feeling just fine and dandy. I am fast getting back my old time energy, and have already got a number of my friends started on Taniac and expect to keep on boosting it."

Taniac is sold in Kingston by A. P. Chown, in Plevna by Gilbert Oster, in Battersea by C. S. Clark, in Fernleigh by Ervin Martin, in Ardooch by M. J. Scullion, in Sharnbot Lake by W. Y. Cannon.

"The Million Dollar Doll."—Coming to the Grand Opera House next Thursday evening, Oct. 3rd, is an imaginative, melodious, tuneful musical extravaganza, regally arrayed in costumes of great beauty and variety, presenting a picture of color, light, movement and melody almost beyond imagination. The changes of costume and scenes and bewildering in their frequency and the final picture of the famous "Joy Zone" at the Panama Exposition and illumination of the "Tower of Jewels" presents as brilliant a spectacle as anyone could desire.

ARTHUR BURGESS. Leading comedian with the "Million Dollar Doll" at the Grand Opera House, Tuesday, Oct. 3rd.

Tuneful songs that will start your feet going, hilarious dancing, by people who have forgotten all of their troubles and look only for the gayeties of life, costumes of great splendor presenting a riot of color and beauty, all presented by a company of people who look only upon the gay side of life, carry the audience along until one can almost imagine the life is really on the joy zone at the exposition. It is one of the biggest musical offerings of the season.

"The Bird of Paradise."

Life in the Hawaiian Islands is the feature of "The Bird of Paradise," Richard Walton Tully's play that will be seen at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 4th and 5th, with a matinee Saturday. This charming story of Uncle Sam's possessions has created favorable comment wherever it has been played. Dealing as it does with the subject of whether a woman can hold a man's love with just her lips and her arms, or whether there is something stronger than that to hold this love, is the whole subject of the play. The scenic artist, and electrician have outdone themselves in depicting pictures that are perfect reproductions of the Hawaiian Islands. One of the spectacular scenes is the last act showing Kilauea in eruption. A native band of Hawaiian musicians are carried, and they sing and play their native music throughout the different scenes. Miss Rita Romilly, whom Mr. Morosco discovered this season, will be seen in the leading role of Luana, and others of the cast are made up of metropolitan favorites.

Sweet's Corners Wedding.

Sweet's Corners, Sept. 26.—A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of E. T. Mainse, of Sweet's Corners, on Wednesday, Sept. 25th, at eleven o'clock, when his eldest daughter, Laura Mildred, became the bride of David Howard See, son of Mrs. See, of Pine Grove. Rev. T. O. Roe, of Carleton Place, performed the ceremony. The bride was prettily gowned in Belgian blue satin embroidered in blue and gold and wore the gift of the groom, a gold pendant set with emeralds and pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and asters. Miss Jennie Galway acted as bridesmaid, while Fred See, brother of the groom, acted as groomsmen. Miss Iva Edgers, cousin of the bride, played the wedding march.

Immediately after the ceremony dinner was served in the dining-room which was tastefully decorated. The groom's gifts to the bridesmaid and organist were gold pens and to the groomsmen pearl cuff links. The bride was the recipient of many useful and costly presents, among them being two beautiful leather chairs given by the young men of Sweet's Corners. During the afternoon the happy couple left for a short honeymoon. The bride travelled in a navy blue suit with black picture hat and a white fur. On their return they will reside at Pine Grove, where the groom is a prosperous young farmer.

CANADIANS WON THE KEY

TO THE CITY OF CAMBRAI IN SPEEDY STYLE.

To Have Gained Bourlon Wood in so Short a Time is a Marvel—Its Capture is Very Important.

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—The director of public information issues the following article by Roland Hill, former Canadian war correspondent: In capturing Bourlon village and Bourlon wood, which presumably includes Bourlon hill, the Canadians have gained the key to Cambrai. They are only three thousand yards from St. Oille, the western suburb of the great railway junction. If they hold on they can entangle all the roads which run from Cambrai to the crumpled fortress villages of Fontaines and Cantaing, and with these strong points which held up General Byng's tremendous attack when the Canadian cavalry got through, now taken, there is little to stop the British reaching the great railway centre with only moderate fighting, except to the St. Quentin canal. There are no natural defences to Cambrai besides Bourlon wood, which is a hill very similar in height, size and shape to Mount Royal at Montreal, and very few trench lines. The eastern end of the wood is a network of tunnels and cement strong points, and although the British Guards gained possession of it they were finally driven out, the Germans never counting the cost of tremendous importance. We may thus expect terrific counter-attacks on the Canadians now they have gained the positions.

Pulling Out in Haste.

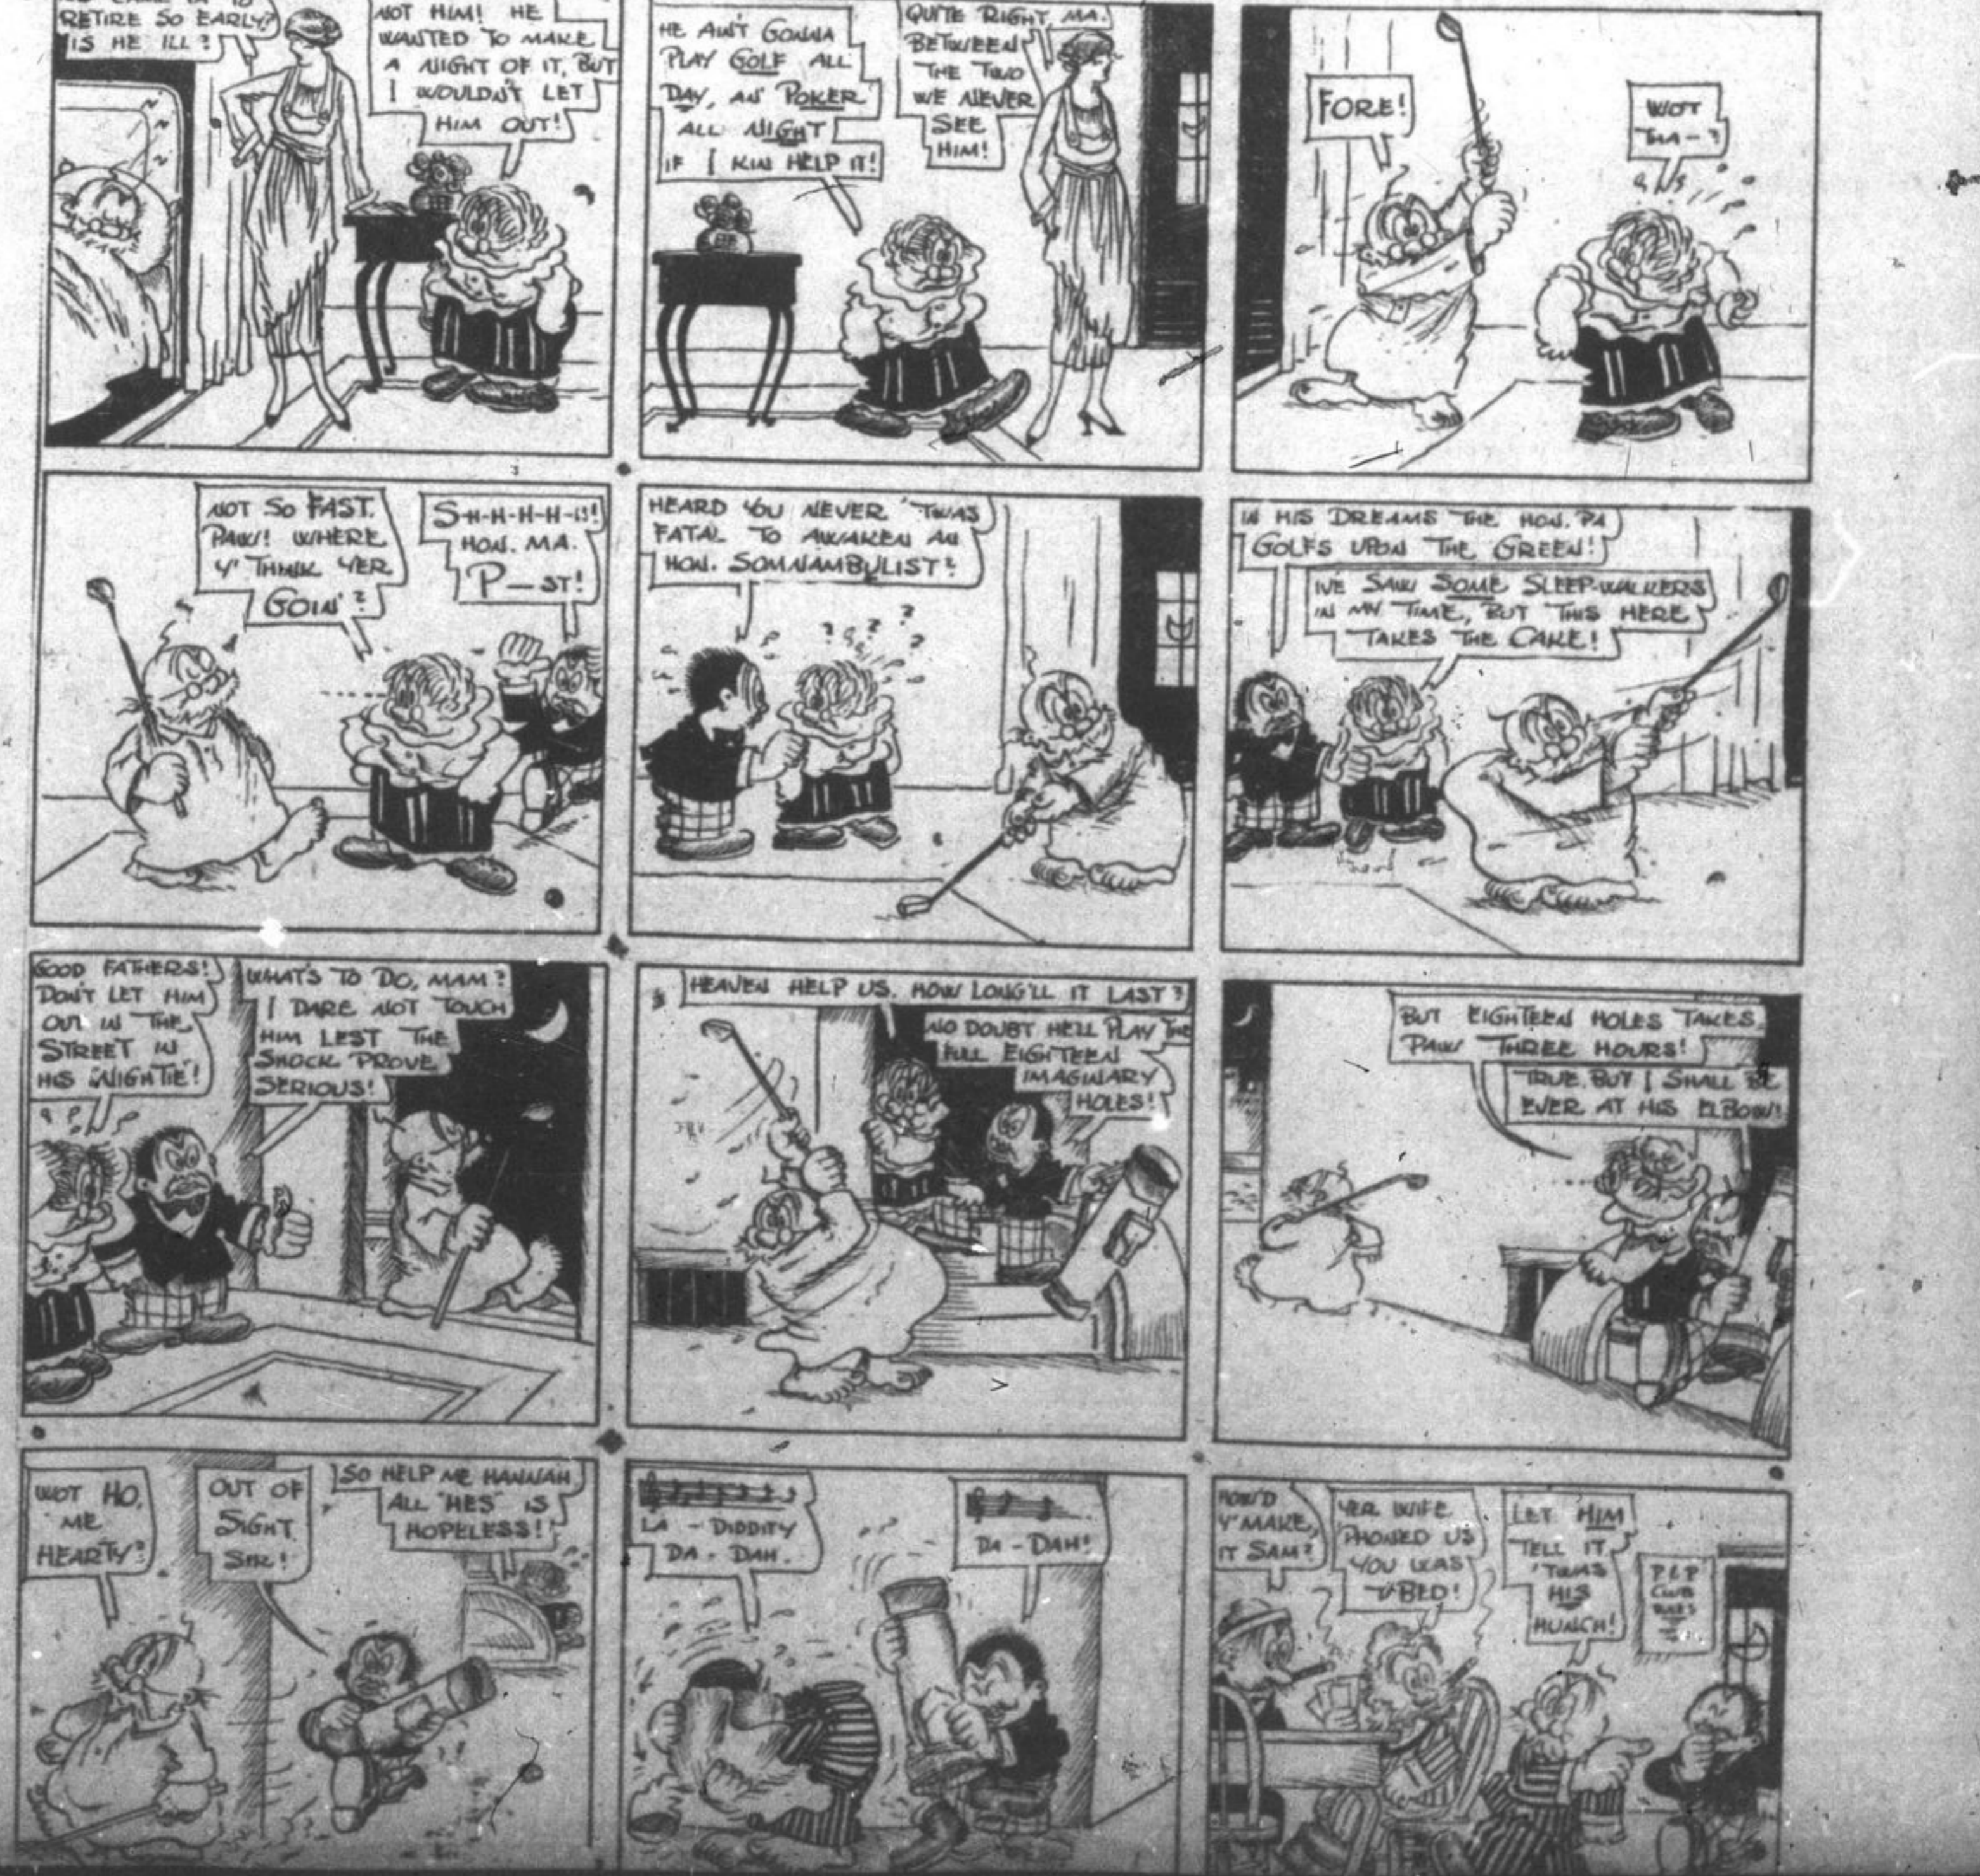

From the western end of Bourlon wood, during the former Cambrai show, I could look down the strong Marquion line of trenches straight into Marcoing, which the Canadian cavalry brigade under Brig.-Gen. Paterson had just captured. Through glasses we could see Hun batteries limbering up and pulling out in desperate haste from Cantaing. A big German aerodrome at Provillo, just on the outskirts of Cambrai, had been set alight by the Huns, and was blazing merrily. Another big aerodrome at the Champ de Manoeuvres was also set on fire.

To have gained Bourlon in such a short time is a marvel. It took Imperial divisions, when the enemy was disorganized by the breaking of the then much-vaunted Hindenburg system, four days to win their way up from Havincourt and Graincourt. The Canadians have attacked from the north-west, through Moeuvres and across the Nord canal. The canal itself is a tremendous obstacle. At its part down to below Havincourt excavation has not been captured and it is a huge dry ravine of uneven ground, at least eighty feet deep and about a hundred feet across. All the bridges across have been destroyed. When we held this section of the canal last time the Canadian overseas construction corps managed to build a bridge that would take light guns across in less than five hours.

across give splendid shelter for a attacking infantry. The Canadians have overcome all these obstacles the line now shows and Bourlon is added to their laurels. It is quite as big an achievement as their other great successes in these happy days. Belleville Knights of Columbus campaign to raise $5,000 was more than realized as upwards of $10,000 was secured. A tag day in connection with the campaign realized $712. It is likely the Canadians got through this barrier in the early morning fog. Bourlon village is a mass of concrete and steel with tremendously strong trench systems at the western end which have been there since 1916, but were always kept in shape. I happened to see air photographs of them taken by a Canadian observer only a few weeks ago. There is a quarry on the edge of the town which held up the British in the last show for over a day. North of it is a wrecked chateau which was once German headquarters and which has elaborate underground tunnels running back into the town itself. The Cambrai railway at this end of the village runs through a deep cutting another obstacle to
