DON'T NEGLECT YOUR HAIR

To relieve itching of the scalp, falling hair and dandruff, use Velnor. You will find it far more beneficial to your hair and scalp than prepared liquid shampooing preparations which chemical analysis proves to contain too much alkali—a harmful irritant that rots the roots of the hair and causes it to fall out. Velnor is sold by all druggists in a convenient carton and by simply dissolving one of the small packets in a half-glass of fresh water you have an abundance of pure non-injurious liquid that aside from cleaning the hair properly will leave it soft, lustrous and wavy—revivified with all the natural charm it should have.

THEY WERE BADLY TREATED

MAJOR HOOPER TELLS OF BRUTAL USAGE IN GERMAN PRISON CAMP

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—Major W. H. Hooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hooper, 11 Monkland Avenue, arrived home Saturday evening, with the breeches showing where the bayonet penetrated his back, and a bullet which laid him low went through, as one of his souvenirs of the war. A crowd of relatives and friends of the popular officer were down to give him an effusive "welcome back to civilization" after his long sojourn in a German prison camp.

Major Hooper brings home further testimony of the brutality of the Hun. He spoke of the bayoneting of the unarmed soldiers, which took place at the first battle of Ypres, corroborating the previous tales which have been related of the atrocious actions of the Hun soldiers. There may be some explanation for the bayoneting of himself while he was lying on the ground bleeding from his wounds, in the fact that he was still carrying his weapons, he thinks, but he declares that it is no excuse for the bayoneting of the other unfortunate soldiers.

Ill-usage of Prisoners. Another instance of Hun "kultur" which he related occurred in the hospital at Roulers, in which he was taken after being caught by the English soldier lying in another bed was being operated on by a German doctor, and was crying from the pain, when an English soldier with both legs off in another bed called out to him not to cry. The German doctor, asked an interpreter for a translation of what the English soldier said, and the interpreter made a false translation, telling the doctor the English soldier said, "Don't squeal; be an Englishman." The doctor evidently took this for an insult to German soldiers, because they squeal, Major Hooper said, and picking up a sharp instrument he prodded the wounded Englishman until he yelled with pain.

When Major Hooper was brought into Roulers hospital he found D'Arcy Latimer, another well-known Ottawa man, in a bed close beside his. Major Hooper had a rough time before he reached the hospital, the German handling him brutally, alleging that he had refused to surrender when the other soldiers had done so. This, Major Hooper declares, was a trumped-up charge.

After some time in Roulers, Major Hooper was taken inland and given better surgical attention at Heidelberg, and in July, 1916, hopes of a transfer to Switzerland were falsely aroused when he was notified to be ready to go there. But there was a misunderstanding somewhere or another, and after keeping him at Constance on the German-Swiss border, he was sent back into Germany again and kept there until December, when he was sent to Switzerland to be interned.

One thing of which Major Hooper is proud is that the advanced-outpost which he was occupying at the time he was wounded is now known on official war maps as Hooper House, called after himself because it was one of the most advanced posts taken up by the Canadians in that battle.

Of Prince Maximilian. Referring to Prince Maximilian of Baden, who has been appointed German chancellor, Major Hooper said he was a very democratic man and one of the "whites" and most popular there.
