Run-Down People Vinol is What You Need

Weak, run-down, nervous men and women need Vinol because it contains the most famous reconstructive tonics in an agreeable and easily digested form: — Beef and Cod Liver Peptonates, Iron and Manganese Peptonates and Glycerophosphates.

We guarantee there is no tonic equal to Vinol.

Detroit, Mich.
"I got into a weak, run-down condition, no appetite, tired all the time and headaches — but had to keep around and do my housework. I read about Vinol and tried it — within two weeks I commenced to improve, and now have a splendid appetite and feel stronger and better in every way."
— Mrs. John F. Watson.
For all run-down, nervous, anaemic conditions, weak women, overworked men, feeble old people and delicate children, there is no remedy like Vinol.

Texas, Texas.
"I keep house and I was weak, run-down and nervous, back ached a good deal of the time, so it was hard to take care of my chickens and do my work — Vinol has restored my strength, and my nervousness has gone, so I can do my work as well as ever."
— Every run-down woman should take Vinol. — Mrs. Emma Britt.

"The Wife" By Jane Phelps

RUTH'S AUNT MEETS ARTHUR MANDEL.

CHAPTER LXXXV.

Arthur Mandel had looked into Ruth Hackett's eyes and had divined something not quite happy in their depths. It troubled, while in a way it encouraged him to believe the time might come more quickly than he had dared hope when he could call her his own.

Now as he sat opposite her at luncheon, he was sure he had read her aright. Something had caused that haunting look of unhappiness in her eyes. Had he been still more keenly alive to her moods, he would have noticed that it followed some reference to either her husband, or some man who was in the same profession, and who was making a success.

The luncheon was perfect, and perfectly served. Mrs. Clayborne beamed. She was delighted with the employer of Ruth's. He was the sort of man she understood; and of whom she approved. As the meal progressed she became more positive that she had been right; that Mandel was in love with Ruth. At the same time she discovered that Ruth herself was totally unconscious of it.

"Clever man!" she said to herself. And he rose still higher in her estimation.

Mrs. Clayborne was a clever intelligent woman. She knew that it took tact and poise for a man to be, day after day, in the company of the woman with whom he was in love, and keep it from her.

"Yes, I'll make quite a star," she decided. Just as Mr. Mandel said: "I hope you intend to remain with Mrs. Hackett some time, Mrs. Clayborne? And that I shall have the pleasure of helping to entertain you."

He had sensed this woman's liking for him at once. The good impression he had made. It would be easy to turn it to his advantage with Ruth, did she remain long enough.

"I shall be here some little time," she replied, to Ruth's astonishment. (She had said nothing about making a long visit, and had brought very little baggage.) This she went on to explain: "I am in need of many things. I shall replenish my wardrobe while here. I brought very little, with that end in view."

"You will wish Mrs. Hackett to shop with you." Then he turned to Ruth: "Whenever Mrs. Clayborne wishes, please feel entirely free to accompany her on her shopping excursions."

"That is more than kind," Mrs. Clayborne returned. "But I shall not require Ruth to neglect her work for me. I have bought my clothes in New York many years. I shall have no trouble outfitting myself alone." She would not be the means of taking Ruth away from this man even to help her.

Mrs. Clayborne was a good woman; but a worldly one. She had realized something was not quite right with Ruth and Brian, and had immediately jumped at the conclusion that it was Brian — that Ruth had worked because Brian could not provide for her; and that her love for the work was only a pose to excuse his deficiency.

That Ruth really loved her work — that she preferred to do it, even though she had not felt it necessary, to her aunt. She had not, understood things, very well, when so far away. She still felt it was beneath Ruth to work, yet if she must, there would be no place she could be where she would be treated as she was by Arthur Mandel.

To-morrow — Mrs. Clayborne decides to Prolong Her Visit.

Talking it Over

With Lorna Moon.

Six Yellow Daisies.

She got up very important and mysterious this morning — the big eyed little girl with the long slender limbs. The lady with the autumn colored hair is sick. The big eyed little girl is idolatrous, the autumn haired lady is one of her idols.

The little girl is nine years old, she had eighteen cents all her very own, so she questioned her Mother persistently in her determination to find out the exact purchasing value of that sum. "Mother, could I buy a hand-made blouse with eighteen cents?" She knew by being audience to many clothes discussions that a hand-made blouse was greatly to be desired.

"Oh, no dear," mother answered discouragingly. "Cuffs there?"

"No, not even cuffs, I fear."

"Then a bunch of roses?"

"You couldn't buy a bunch of roses with eighteen cents."

The little heart was perplexed — surely eighteen cents was a vast sum, yet mother seemed to think it was useless. But a loving heart that is bent on giving is not so easily dissuaded.

She left her discouraging family behind and set off with all her wealth in her slim hand. To find a florist who would realize that eighteen cents was not a sum to be lightly set aside.

Back she came with a triumphant strut, and the light of a conqueror in her eyes. She carried something wrapped in white wax paper — six yellow daisies.

They are standing very modestly beside a tall vase of stately roses, on the autumn haired lady's table. Six little yellow daisies — they represent all the wealth of one little girl, given gladly and eagerly.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save four-fifths of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap to make, but it really has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex (30 cents worth) from any druggist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's a truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs — loosens the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

UPSET STOMACH

Pape's Diapiesin at Once Ends Sourness, Gas, Acidity, Indigestion.

Don't stay upset! When meals do not sit on your stomach, when you eat one of these pleasant, harmless tablets all the indigestion, gas, acidity and stomach distress ends. Your druggist sells them.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

When Cross, Feverish and Sick Give "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so easily. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally. (Breath is bad, system full of cold, has a sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs," because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by the California Fig Syrup Company. Refuse any other kind with contempt.

DEMORILLATION COMING.

35,000 Soldiers Stationed in Canada at Present.

Ottawa, Nov. 13. — Although no official statement is yet forthcoming from the Department of Militia and Defence, it is understood that demobilization of the Canadian forces as present in Canada will be proceeded with practically immediately.

At present, according to a statement by an official of the department, there are some 35,000 soldiers of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in Canada. The maintenance of such a large number of men necessarily involves a huge expense, which will not be borne by the Government if the men are not required for service in France.

There are at present large numbers of young men called up for service by the provisions of the Military Service Act, who, being engaged in agricultural pursuits, have been granted harvest leave. These men will, in all probability, not have to serve at all. It was stated at the department that the situation of the men who have enlisted in the "Siberian Expeditionary Force" was more or less definite. It seems likely that there will be no change as far as the men are concerned, and that arrangements made with regard to them will be carried out.
