'SMILES FOR WHIG READERS

WELL PREPARED
Bird—How are you fixed for the winter?
Squirrel—Fine, a nice warm home, and plenty of food stored away.

A LUXURY
"My, but these open grate fires are fine these cool days."

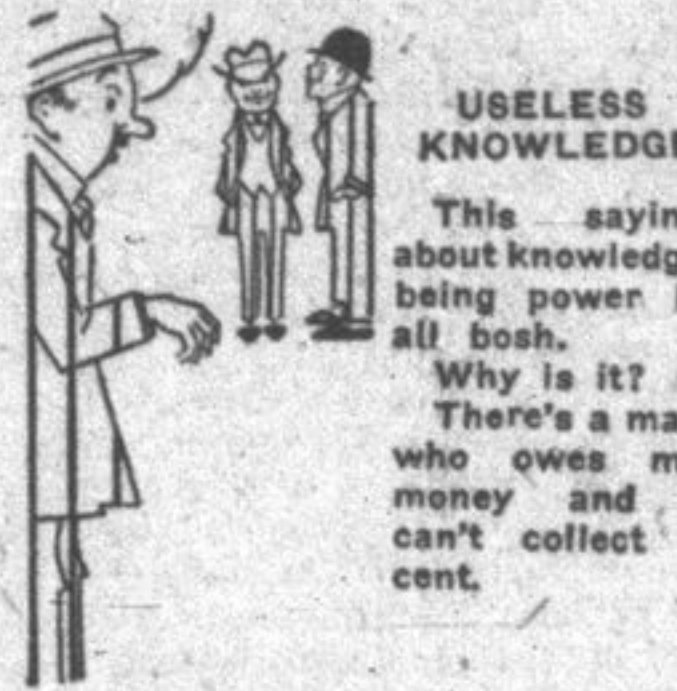

HELP ALONG
Oyster—Well, old fellow, it's up to us to help to conserve meat.

A DISAPPOINTMENT
I never thought a boy of mine would turn out that way. What's the matter?
I sent him to college and he'd rather get his lessons than make the foot-ball team.

HUMILIATING ADMISSION
I'm sorry for his wife. Why?
It must gall her terribly to know that soon she's got to admit that she's dependent on a thing like that for her living.

USELESS KNOWLEDGE
This saying about knowledge being power is all bosh. Why is it?
There's a man who owes me money and I can't collect a cent.

ONLY 'AIR TO FRED
"I've made up my mind to marry Fred."
"Don't you think he ought to be told?"

CHANGED
"War has certainly changed many things."
"Yes. In the old days our dog used to have fleas. Now they're cooties."

"The best the market affords."

COOMBS' BIG TASK

Moran's Successor Enters Quaker City to Avail Chorus.

Jack Coombs, Pat Moran's successor as manager of the Phillies, will have to travel over a hard road before he gains the Quaker City fans' patronage. Few men have taken up the managerial reins under such a handicap. The sudden release of Moran was more than the most pessimistic National League fan had expected, and it now becomes one of Coombs' duties to make the National League routers in this city forget the actions of the club's owner. The only way to do this is to win ball games with a fair degree of consistency.

Coombs goes to Philadelphia with the Avril Chorus, batting well above the .300 mark. The Philadelphia fans have declared themselves against the President, William Baker, regime, but after the season opens and Coombs has the Phillies up in the race it is a safe bet that those who are now swinging the hammers will flock to the National League, park wearing broad smiles.

Before this comes to pass Manager Coombs will have to do considerable rebuilding. There is room for improvement in the hurling department. Coombs will not find anyone who resembles an Alexander when he looks the pitchers over. "Mule" Watson, Oeschger, Jacobs and Rixey appear to be the best of the staff.

Will Play Rugby.

At a special meeting of the Army Rugby Colonels, which included the representatives of the Dominion forces, it was decided to hold a tournament between the British army, New Zealand, Canada, Australia and South Africa. The competition will be played on the league system. A sub-committee on which the Dominions will be represented, has been nominated to make the necessary arrangements.

It was decided to ask the French army to play the winners. Before the war only officers were permitted to play army representatives. In the matches of the future all ranks will be available.

Providence May Replace Hamilton.

The International League at its meeting in New York considered the return of Providence to its circuit. Providence will probably replace Hamilton. William Draper, the former owner of the Providence club, will confer with International League men. Providence is new in the Eastern League and the smaller league is expected to put up a strong protest if it loses this city.

What of Johnson's Plan.

Last fall when baseball was still hobbling around on crutches and with a poultice on its eye as a result of the disgraceful row over the division of world's series spoils, President Van Johnson came to bat with a plan to do away with hag-gling over money matters. New York despatches indicate that Johnson as either endeavoring to "cover up" or divert attention from the plight into which the majors found themselves, or his plan has been shunted onto a siding. The Baseball Club proposed a scheme whereby the players of world's series teams and the clubs they represented were to get nothing, all monies to be turned over to the Government of the United States for the establishment and maintenance of a home for crippled soldiers. The plan was endorsed from coast to coast. What of it?

LIKE AMERICAN STYLE

English Boxing Fans Favor the Referee Being in Ring.

The international service bouts in London, which resulted in a victory for the British army boxers, have had the effect of opening the eyes of English patrons of the sport to the weakness of their system of judging contests and also to the inability of a referee seated in a chair outside the ring to see all that goes on within the ropes. Advice just received from London indicate that there is a general demand among boxing enthusiasts for the adoption of the American plan of the referee getting into the ring and following every move of the contestants.

Dickens Had a Big Day.

Charles Dickens happened to be in Doncaster one Leger day. The story of his "sporting three winners" on that occasion is told in Forster's life of the great novelist: "He bought the card, facetiously wrote three names as the winners of the last three races (never in his life having heard or thought of any of the horses, except that the winner of the Derby, which proved to be nowhere, had been mentioned to him). In a letter to his biographer he says: "If you can believe it, without your hair standing on end, those three races were won one after another by those three horses." Dickens truly described this as a "wonderful, paralyzing coincidence."

New York State Boxing Bill.

Senator L. W. H. GIBBS, of Buffalo, announces that he has prepared a bill designed to legalize boxing, and that he would introduce it in the Legislature within a few days. Among the features of the bill are: Appointment by the Governor of a boxing commissioner for the term of two years at a yearly salary of $4,000; minimum age limit of eighteen years for contestants; only licensed referees to be allowed to be in charge of exhibitions; no official decisions to be rendered; clubs to pay ten per cent. of total receipts to State. All matches would be limited to ten three-minute rounds and the rules regarding gloves and other details are similar to those previously in force when boxing was sanctioned in the State.

Usually the man who says he can drink or he can let it alone is so busy demonstrating the first proposition that he never gets around to the second.

Someone designates the small army of unemployed as "warriors." The weapon they use is talk.
