OTTAWA TALKS, BASEBALL.

Shaughnessy Said to Have Been Offered Hamilton Franchise.

Ottawa is being considered as a candidate for the International League, which meets at New York on Wednesday. It is learned that representatives of the International League have recently written to Frank Shaughnessy, stating that there was a good chance of Ottawa being chosen to succeed Hamilton, and requesting him to purchase the franchise.

Shaughnessy has taken up the matter with his associates in the Ottawa Baseball Club and will give the International magnates a reply this week. He may go to New York to discuss the situation with them. It is understood that Montreal and Scranton are also being considered as possibilities, but neither has yet shown much enthusiasm. Locally it is felt that Ottawa would make good in the International if given material for a successful team, but not one has yet been discovered who shows any eagerness to buy the franchise which Hamilton passed up. Shaughnessy said that he was undecided, though he thinks he could finance the enterprise if the International gave him the franchise at a reasonable sum.

Killing That Goose.

Toronto Globe. Another "harney" was foisted on the boxing-going public of Montreal Monday night, when Eugene Brousseau beat Frank Loughrey in ten rounds. Loughrey had defeated some very capable boxers in the United States and Australia and is a veteran of the ring who might be expected to at least make Brousseau extend himself. Instead of that the pair gave a very unsatisfactory exhibition, and Brousseau is blamed for allowing his opponent to stay ten rounds when, it is said, he could have put him away at almost any stage of the bout.

It is to be hoped that Brousseau is not being badly advised and that Montreal promoters will not be allowed to exploit boxing at a time when it is enjoying unprecedented favor as a result of the efforts of its real friends, military and civilian. The appointment of an independent, unbiased commission for the governance of the game in Montreal appears to be necessary. Recent bouts in that city, particularly those in which Brousseau has been engaged, has assailed the olfactory organs of the admirers of the manly art there.

Opposed to Patrick Plan.

The Patrick idea of having the Stanley Cup series decided by a two out of three competition at the Pacific coast is going to meet with strenuous opposition in Montreal. George Kennedy says that it will take at least four thousand dollars for bare expenses to take the team out there, and two matches could never produce gate money enough to allow for a $4,000 percentage for that purpose. Even if it did the players would not get anything. The east may agree to the idea if the Patrick will put up a liberal guarantee and a fair sum for the players.

Aimed At Baseball.

That old blue law which now stands in the way of Sunday baseball would be quickly repealed if it was equitably enforced to include, as it does, golf, lawn tennis, fishing and other forms of amusement on the first day of the week. The discrimination has come to be galling to those who prefer baseball. Public opinion has made the law inoperative for golf, lawn tennis, etc., but by some queer freak any form of professional baseball has aroused the police to quick activity. Those who have no conscientious objection should hardly be chained to those who have on the strength of a law which is honored only in the breach, says George Daley in the New York World.

For Sunday Baseball.

Col. T. L. Huston, half owner of the New York Yankees, before he went to Dover Hall, Ga., last week established himself as a strong advocate for the Sunday baseball bill which has just been introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman Malone. Colonel Huston favors the sport on Sunday because it has become such a popular pastime among the soldiers.

Colonel Huston, more than year ago, made the remark when these was some objection raised because of a Sunday benefit game at the Polo Grounds, that soldiers fight and die on Sunday, so it seemed out of proportion to deprive them of the little pleasure which baseball affords.

No Title Involved.

When Joe Lynch, New York, bantam, beat Tommy Noble, bantam champion of the British navy, he put himself in line for a long match with Jimmy Wilde, world's flyweight champion. This was Lynch's ambition, for Wilde had beaten him in a three-round bout at the intercollegiate tournament in London.

The American boxer will have plenty of time to train for Wilde, the bout being set for March 31st in London. As the New Yorker is a bantam and Wilde a flyweight, no title will be involved in the match. Wilde does 112 pounds handily, which Lynch cannot make less than 118.

Nevada Boxing Law Changed.

An amendment to the Nevada boxing law, allowing twenty-five-round boxing contests, was passed by the State Senate ten to five. The Senate amended the bill to prevent a white man from contesting a negro.

The measure was passed by the Assembly last week, and it is expected the House will concur in the Senate amendment. It is said that Governor Boyle will sign the bill, although he has given out no statement.

Wagner in Politics.

Hans Wagner is about to enter politics. The former Pittsburgh star, who makes his home in Carnegie, a suburb of Pittsburgh, is a candidate for commissioner of Allegheny county, and as he is extremely popular, his political sponsors are confident that he will be elected.

Fashions in Dogs Change.

Fashions in dogs change almost as quickly as fashions in clothes. For instance, a glance over the records of the Westminster show, which is held yearly in New York show a big change in the last twenty years. The pug dog, for one, appears to be passing out of style. In 1890 there were forty-two pugs entered; many a pug this year. The mastiff also has passed, for there weren't any at the last two shows, while there were forty-six in 1890. There were nine Newfoundlandians in 1890, and only one last year, and in comparison to 1890 there were sixteen scribe terriers entered to none this year or last. And there are many other breeds that used to be all the rage and now they are practically extinct. Alredales appear the favorites now. In 1890 they were looked upon as a mongrel, while this year there were seventy-four entered. Perhaps twenty years from now people will wonder what kind of dogs, collies, bull dogs, setters and pointers were.

Hatch is the "Daddy."

Sidney Hatch, the veteran Chicago Marathoner, who has been decorated for bravery overseas, is the "daddy" of the grinders. For the past fifteen years Hatch has been winning Marathons. So-called modified Marathons are not in his list. He ran a regulation Marathon—twenty-six miles three hundred and eighty-five yards—in 1904 at the St. Louis exposition Olympic games, and was close to the front at the finish. One of his greatest feats was performed as recently as 1918, when he ran from Milwaukee to Chicago, 964 miles, in 14,500 to 30 1-5. The grit, stamina and endurance developed in the Marathon game were useful on the field of battle.

Donaldson Wears Well.

The famous runner, Jack Donaldson, who is a sergeant-instructor in the A.G.S. in England, is looking very fit and well, and, although now in his 33rd year, which for the slender path as "getting on," he seems equal to repeating the feat of beating Postle and Reggie Walker in 9 3-4 seconds once again.

Walker, of course, was the 100 yards Olympic games champion about ten years ago. Donaldson might, in fact, since his return from the front, be equal to repeating his feat of running the 100 yards in 9 3-4 seconds, for he looks as hard and fit as ever he was in his life.

Commander Ross Not Alone.

Commander J. K. L. Ross of Montreal, whose stable earned $99,179 last season, is the second Canadian tycoon who has led the list of winning owners on this side of the border.

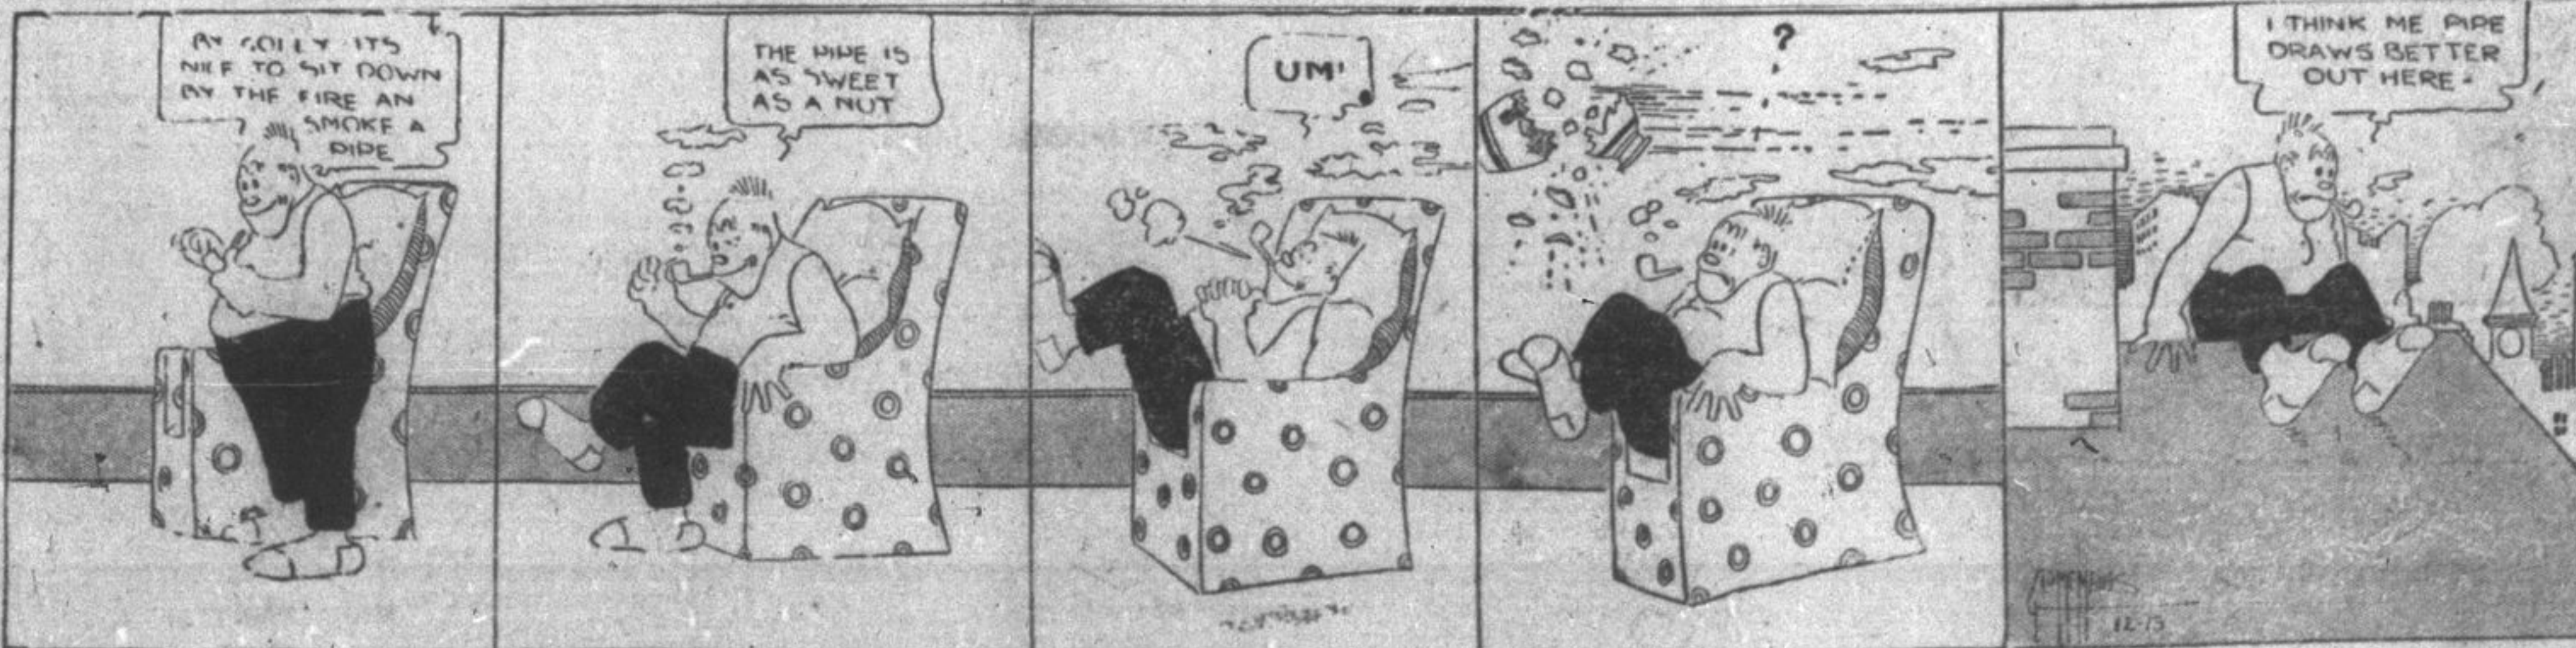

William Hendrie, of Hamilton, was the first. Back in 1898 his stable won $51,361, including the Futurity, then worth $36,610, which fell to Martimas. He was the only one of Mr. Hendrie's thirteen winners not bred by the Ontario horseman, and Martimas cost him only $750.
