Military Matters

Captain Clement King, 61st Battery, C.F.A., was decorated at Buckingham Palace a few days ago with a military cross for gallantry in action. While with the 45th King's Battery on August 29th, 1918, his battery was caught by a creeping barrage, and by his coolness he kept his men steady and passing several times through the barrage led out horses and wounded, and eventually cleared the line. Captain King was a lieutenant here in the 33rd Battery after he was graduated from the Royal School of Artillery. He has a wide circle of friends locally who will be pleased to hear of his splendid work.

Twenty-six men who were stationed at the "Willows" training camp for the Siberian force returned to the city on Thursday morning for disposal on the demobilization of the camp strength. Five of the men are being transferred to the 1st Battalion, R.C.H.A., to relieve other men for discharge.

An investigation has been made into the fact that soldiers often arrive here and elsewhere without proper notification being received to give them a welcome. It has been found that the soldiers' Aid Commission is doing everything possible and the responsibility is placed upon the soldiers themselves for not filling in certain cards which are distributed for the purpose.

SMASHED A POLICEMAN AND SHOT ROAD CLEANER But a Russian "Bootlegger" Was Finally Landed in Toronto Police Station.

(Canadian Press Despatch.) Toronto, March 6.—Police Constable Holmes has a badly battered face. William Meade, street cleaner, is in hospital with a bullet wound in his arm, and Basil Belenski, a Russian, an alleged "bootlegger" from Montreal, is under arrest on three charges, following an hour or so of West excitement on down town Toronto streets this morning. The policeman suspected Belenski when he got off a train at the Union Station, and was escorting him to the police station when the prisoner smashed him in the face and made a break for liberty. Meade, who was working on the roadway, tried to trip Belenski with his shovel and the fugitive shot him through the arm. Holmes finally captured and handcuffed Belenski, who was found to have several gallons of liquor on him in a life preserver-shaped arrangement around his chest.

THEATRICAL.

Fiske O'Hara To-night. Fiske O'Hara comes to the Grand Opera House to-night. This popular romantic actor is this season appearing in a new romantic farce called "Marry in Haste" by Anna Nichols, and is declared to be the best play he has ever presented. It has all the ingredients of a popular success—romance, mystery, witty dialogues and amusing situations—in addition to which the star sings a number of delightful new songs, among which are "The Kind of a Girl I Mean," "Peggy McVey," "I'm Falling in Love With You, Dear," and "There's a Charm of Dear, Old Ireland in Your Eyes." O'Hara plays Lord Richard Leigh, a young scion of a titled Irish family, who contracts a hasty marriage with the first woman he meets, after his father has insisted that he renounce his bachelorhood in order to perpetuate the family name.—Advt.

The Pierrot-Players. Refreshing and brilliant are the many musical numbers of which the Pierrot Players will present at the Grand Opera House this coming Friday and Saturday with a special matinee on Saturday. The Pierrot Players are a company of star artists presenting the brightest and most brilliant comedies, picturesque costumes, mirthful pantomime, graceful dancing, and singing, assisted by an augmented orchestra of ladies, make this somewhat different attraction the greatest novelty of the present season. Taken as a whole the Pierrot Players are something away out of the ordinary and their coming will be a treat to the theatregoers who have had so many disappointments in other shows.—Advt.

At The Strand. In Triangle's great seven-reel feature play, "A Soul in Trust," featuring Belle Bennett, a peculiar superstition is revealed at the Strand Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The negro mammy announces, "I 'saw heard a screech owl last night, sayin' 'Trouble, trouble,' and here the bridegroom done seen the bride in her wedding dress 'fore de marriage." A laugh follows these words, but a grim tragedy is the sequence.

While many profess to disbelieve omens, history is replete with accounts of prominent men and women influenced by them. One of the best known is Calpurnia's. She warned her husband, the great Julius Caesar, not to attend the Senate the day of his death. Shakespeare's play, Macbeth, contains the significant reference to the King's assassination in the hoot of the owl. The dreams of the Pharoah as interpreted by Joseph are universally known. Abraham Lincoln uttered a premonition of his own death.

Soothsayers of the olden times held lucrative posts, their sole duty being to interpret hundreds of so-called omens. Civilized man to-day is somewhat skeptical of these mystic warnings but the dark recesses of the African jungles, the country sides of Europe, and the haunts of the South-sea folk still seem with quaint beliefs. "A Soul in Trust" sweeps from the tragic significance of the omen uttered by Mammy Jody to a story of sorrow and intrigue, over which hovers the spirit of fear expressed by the devoted servant. Few plays have had such gripping and absorbing qualities as this seven-reel feature. With such masterful portrayals of emotion as Belle Bennett, J. Barney Sherry and Darrell Foss, Triangle may be said to have artistic importance.

"A Soul in Trust" will be shown at the Strand Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.—Advt.

At Griffin's. The name of William S. Hart, popularly known to his hundreds of thousands of admirers the world over as "Big Bill," shines like a beacon in the film firmament, and the announcement that he will be seen at Griffin's to-day, Friday and Saturday in "Branding Broadway," his new photoplay, is sure to be received with enthusiasm and serve to bring out his admirers in full force. In this picture Mr. Hart is seen in dress suit for the first time in his screen career, but strangely enough, he is not out of his element. This is a tribute to his versatility, and that his latest characterization will add greatly to his prestige, there is little doubt. Another feature on our programme for the last three days of this week is Ethel Clayton in "The Mystery Girl." There are few more talented, charming or popular screen players than this winsome star, whose work in previous photoplays has gained her many admirers, who find in her finished acting and vivid personality a never-failing attraction. In "The Mystery Girl" Miss Clayton has an ideal role, which, coupled with the absorbing interest of the story, doubtless will prove a decided attraction.—Advt.
