felt that you couldn't have them because you were going out for the afternoon and wouldn't have time to mix the dough after you returned?

Why not use Egg-O Baking you go, putting the dough in a cool place until you return? Then put into the oven and you'll have

BARBARA OBJECTS TO ENTERTAINING NEIL'S BUSINESS ASSOCIATES

CHAPTER I.
I tried to sleep, but was restless and uneasy all night. I had liked Mr. Frederick immensely after I had become better acquainted with him.
He had impressed me as wonderfully dependable and straight-forward.
He had long ago warned me to try to stop Neil in his attempt to make money so quickly and—so much of it.
Evidently he now had tried to warn Neil.

I wished I knew something about Mr. Black. Frederick had said that "540 per cent. men" never got off with their crooked deals—whatever he meant by "540 per cent. men"— and had then added: "To be frank, they are no worse than the deals you and Black are putting over."

I was sorry I had listened. To know a part of anything, is always an aggravation. One is so inclined to try and guess the rest, or in lieu of that, to put a wrong construction upon it. I could not help but feel that the latter was what I was doing; consequently I had a feeling of guilt toward Neil.

Another thing that added to that feeling was his generosity and kindness to me. I had learned to love luxury only a little less than he did, and I spent money recklessly to gratify my now extravagant tastes. No one would have dreamed I was the same girl who, a few years before, had been satisfied with a home-made trousseau, and who had objected to the hotel bill when on her honeymoon. I now spent lavishly—partly perhaps because there seemed always to be "more where that came from," as Neil sometimes had told me. I had a lovely home, yet it was, even so, a constant temptation to buy things to make it more attractive.

Then baby—I was horribly extravagant for him. Even the best was scarcely good enough for him, and I searched the shops, and ordered made the most elaborate and expensive things imaginable.

I had learned to have the same careless feeling about money that Neil had. I sometimes wonder, as I look back upon our lives together, which is the worst attribute of the two—to be a miser, or to lack perspective where money is concerned.

Told In Twilight

Nursing-Sister F. Hazel McLeod, who recently returned from overseas, has joined the staff of Queen's Military Hospital. Miss McLeod, who was a member of the original Queen's 1915, and has seen continuous service with them in Egypt, France, and latterly in England. She is the youngest daughter of the late Donald to for the 19th, 19th and 20th.

Mrs. Clarence Chown, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lambert, Clergy street, for several weeks, has returned to Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. James Reid, Earl street, are visiting their daughter in Galt.

England on the Celtic.

Nursing-Sister Helen Gleeson, engaged in the Kingston Military Hospital for some time, is expected in the Capital soon.

Lieut. and Mrs. Lorne I. Johnson, Ottawa, are the guests of Major and Mrs. S. H. Simpson, Albert street.
Lieut. Johnson has just returned from France, where he served with the Canadian Engineers.

Lieut. Leslie Meek, at his home for the past two months since his return from overseas, left on Friday for Fort William.

Col. Birkhead, Kingston, is in Ottawa for a few days.

Col. R. J. Gardner is in Ottawa this week.

Nursing-Sister Marion Ruddick is returning to Canada on the S.S. Me-

The breezy Western Way.
They were playing poker in a Western town. One of the players was a stranger, and was getting a nice trimming. Finally, the sucker saw one of the players give himself three aces from the bottom of the pack.
The sucker turned to the man beside him and said: "Did you see that?"

"See what?" asked the man.
"Why, that fellow dealt himself three aces from the bottom of the deck," said the sucker.
"Well, what about it?" asked the man. "It was his deal, wasn't it?"

HERE'S a welcome to the returned soldier and his bride. May their wedded life be a long and happy one.

If she is a "British Bride" she will be very fond of tea—and good tea, at that.

She will first be attracted to Red Rose Tea by the name which will remind her of the "Red Rose" of "Old England".

And when she tries it she will again be reminded of the "Homeland", for she will find Red Rose Tea the same kind of Tea that she has used at home—a rich, full-flavored blend, consisting chiefly of ASSAM teas grown in British-owned plantations in northern India.

Red Rose Tea is sold always in sealed packages.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"
