SMILES FOR WHIG READERS

IN COMPLIMENT
Jack—I'd like to have a street named for me.
Maud—You have—easy.

TRYING IT OVER
"How are you observing Lent?"
"Trying over again to give up the things I swore off on New Year's Day."

DOMESTIC FINANCE
"What is a revolving fund?"
"What your husband gives you and then borrows back."

SECURITY
Did you lend that forgetful friend of yours the book he asked for?
Yes, but I took care to borrow his umbrella the same day.

BOTH SORRY
Sorry I had to ask you for that five I lent you, old chap.
Well, I can sympathize with you. I'm sorry you have to too.

ACQUIRED TASTE
He—Did you love me when you first saw me?
She—Oh, no. I had to get used to you first.

MEAN
Spiteful old cat! She spreads it around that I make up my face.
Never mind, dear; nobody believes it. They know if you did you'd make a better job of it.

SHE'S RIGHT
He: I'd be content to sit at your feet and worship you for life.
She: How, like a puppy?

OBEYING ORDERS
"You know what I told you about coming into the parlor last night when George called?"
"Yes, you said don't let me see you in this parlor again when George is here, an' that's why I hid under the couch."

BEAR SPORTING GOODS

Will Not Affect Canadian Sportsmen It Is Said.
Sportsmen who are exponents of baseball and other athletic games, need not worry over the proposed tax on athletic goods which will go into effect this summer on all goods manufactured in United States. Enquiry elicits the information that most of the sporting goods used in Canada are manufactured either in Canada or England and hence will have no effect on the Canadian public. A. G. Spalding, who supplies a great deal of the sporting goods used in Toronto and other parts of Canada, has factories in Brantford and Montreal and will be able to cope with the demand although it may be necessary to import the better kind of baseball bats from United States. Golfers, however, may have to pay a slight increase on golf balls or golf clubs if they cannot get the necessary material from England.

Racing May be Resumed

While the Government has announced no decision in regard to racing, all of the tracks throughout the country are apparently arranging for their meets this spring, lining up the horses and engaging new staffs. The ban has been on since August of 1917. It provided that during the war and "for six months after its conclusion," racing with the privilege of betting should be prohibited. A good deal turns on what the six months refers to. If it be six months from the cessation of hostilities, the ban will be raised automatically next month. If the six months date from the declaration of peace the situation will be different. From all that can be gathered here racing will come back. The Government inclines to the view that many restrictions imposed as a matter of war expediency may now properly be lifted.

There Must Be Play

On its editorial page The Ottawa Journal says: Members of Parliament who suggested that it is the wealthy people and the golf players who are the chief advocates of daylight saving in Canada do not show much sense. The wealthy are probably the least interested—they can set their own times for work or play. Nor are the bulk of the golf players very deeply concerned, because, unfortunately, the enjoyment of that healthy game is confined in Canada largely to those who can accommodate their working hours to their own convenience. Even modern economics recognizes the money value of play. What is the object of the universal movement for shorter hours if it is not that the workers may have more time for recreation? It has been realized as never before that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and that better work comes from men and women who have learned how to play and been given opportunities to play. The sooner we have more golf, more baseball, more play, more pleasant communion with each other, unalloyed by thoughts of dollars and cents, more joy in living, the better for the world.

Nightshirt Race

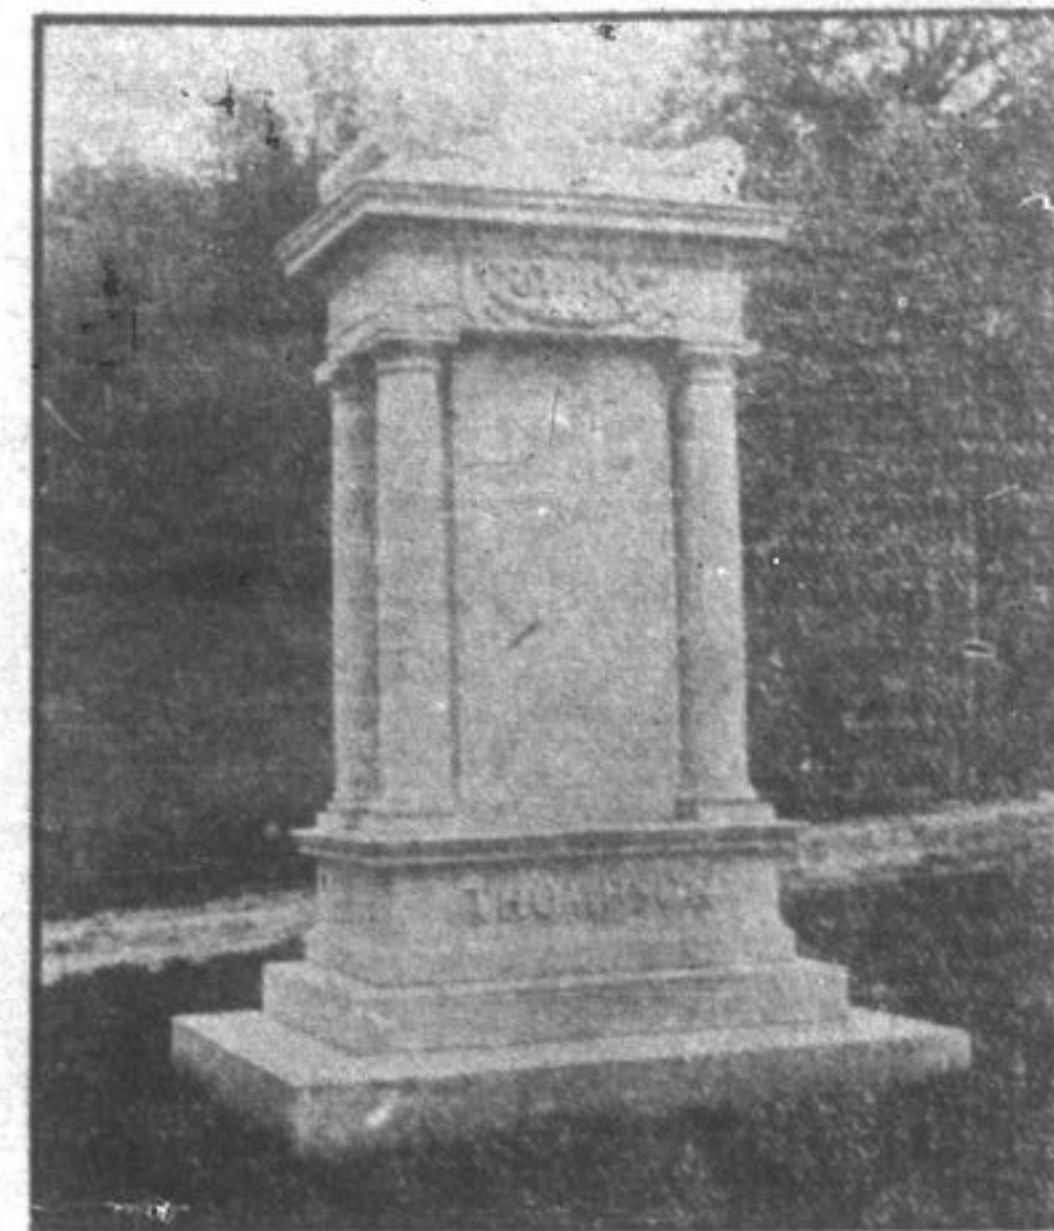

One of the season's novelties in water sports was introduced by the New York A. C. at its swimming carnival. It was called a nightshirt race. The conditions called for the contestants to swim 25 yards in regulation swimming costume, then rest long enough to get a nightshirt and a pair of women's stockings. This formality over, all the competitors again took to the water and swam 50 yards.
