A CAPTAIN RETURNING.

Capt. A. W. Asselstine, one of the Kingston boys who is returning with the 2nd Battalion, went overseas as adjutant of the 109th Battalion in July, 1916. When that battalion was broken up, he reverted and went to France in May, 1917, to join the 2nd Battalion. Capt. Asselstine was twice recommended for the M.C. after Hill 70 in 1917, and again after the battle of Amiens in August, 1918.

Taking the Correct View

In discussing present industrial conditions, a local business man gives his views as follows: The present attitude of capital and labor towards each other is one of mistrust. This condition must be changed.

We are now approaching the last lap of the reconstruction period but the relationship between the employer and employee has not undergone any material change, and labor should not be under the impression that somewhere is an unlimited wage fund from which they can obtain whatever sum they choose to ask.

This is a delusion and working conditions when the war was at its height was mainly responsible for it, in that, while the war was going on, the demand for all sorts of commodities was tremendous. Meat had to be secured by the hundreds of thousands of tons. Steel had to be furnished by the millions of tons. Powder had to be furnished by the thousands of carloads, and the demand for the immediate delivery of all other necessities was greater than ever before in the history of the world.

Labor was at a premium. Men asked for and received the highest wages ever paid. Increases of wages were the order of the day and now the workers do not see why this process, which was so agreeable to them, should not continue indefinitely.

They forget that the industrial situation which existed during the war was artificial; that the nation was living on its capital and production; and that the high wages were not paid out of the products of industry as in ordinary times.

Labor should not forget that the employer did his full share during the war and that the big business interests of the country were taxed and sur-taxed and income taxed and excess profits taxed and capital taxed to the very last cent of financial endurance, but that labor did not neglect to collect its full toll.

Labor was at a premium then. They could make demands which must be met because owing to the number of fighters sent abroad to do the fighting and with the remainder of our armies in training the ranks of labor were so thinned down that there was not a sufficient supply to fill the demand, while now, when all war activities are suspended and with our returning soldiers coming back to their old employment, conditions are almost completely reversed.

Industrial dislocation and misunderstanding was bound to follow upon the signing of the armistice, just as a radical change in conditions took place with the outbreak of hostilities, and while labor then could make demands of employers, then because there was a real scarcity of men, they cannot afford to be arbitrary and make ridiculous demands when the machines of industry are idle because of lack of work and the unsettled problem of stable prices which causes the employer to fear to go ahead, unless he can feel sure that labor is going to work hand in hand with him.

Whatever injuries or impedes honest capital injures and holds back honest labor. The two are so inter-dependent that the slightest shock to one affects the other.

SAVE YOUR HAIR AND BEAUTIFY IT WITH "DANDERINE"

Spend a Few Cents! Dandruff Disappears and Hair Stops Coming Out.

Try This! Hair Gets Beautiful, Wavy and Thick in Few Moments.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair. Besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots furnish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents; apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. It eventually—why not now?
