WALKOUT OF CARPENTERS

AT THE NEW SYDENHAM MILITARY HOSPITAL.

The Contractors Refuse to Pay the New Local Wage of Seventy Cents an Hour.

The carpenters in the employment of the contractors for the Sydenham Military Hospital, walked out on Thursday morning. The men asked for seventy cents an hour and this wage is being refused by some contractors.

About March 1st, the carpenters decided that owing to the great advance in the cost of living they were compelled to look for an increase in wages. Everything required to sustain life had advanced and not only have prices not declined since March 1st, but have actually advanced further.

One official of the carpenters' union stated that it was impossible for them to support their families on a wage of sixty cents an hour. It was a misrepresentation to place the blame for the high cost of living upon the working men, for wages were always the last to advance.

When interviewed, George Wright stated that the contractors advanced the carpenters' wages last year from fifty cents an hour to sixty cents. This year they did not anticipate an advance and consequently the contracts entered into were upon last year's basis of sixty cents an hour to the workmen, and the company is, therefore, not in a position to accede to the request of the carpenters for the increase.

THEATRICAL

"Lord and Lady Algy.

The star production of "Lord and Lady Algy," with William Faversham and Maxine Elliott in the leading roles, supported by a notable company will be seen at the Grand Opera House to-night. "Lord and Lady Algy" tells of the marital differences between Lord Algernon Chetland and his wife. They have agreed to separate because of lack of funds and opposite opinions as to the value of race horses and cigarettes. Algy's brother, Quarmby, is infatuated with Mrs. Tudway, the wife of an old friend of Algy's. Taking advantage of Algy's "bachelor" position, Quarmby, without revealing the identity of the woman, arranges to meet Mrs. Tudway as Algy's guest. Quarmby poses as a lamb and Algy gets all the blame, which nearly results in serious consequences to the reconciliation between Algy and his wife. Lady Algy however, grasps the situation in time not only to save Algy but Mrs. Tudway. Faversham's playing is one of the finest pieces of delicate, light comedy acting to be seen on the stage to-day.—Advt.

At the Strand.

Bert Lytell, star of the Metro presentation, "Blind Man's Eyes," a strong, dramatic play of power and romance which will be shown at the Strand theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday has reached an enviable position in his screen career which is due to hard work and dramatic genius. Mr. Lytell comes of artistic lineage and is an actor by inheritance as well as education. His mother and father were both known to stage fame and his grandfather was J. K. Mortimer, for many years one of Augustin Daly's most brilliant stars. He was born in New York but was educated at Upper Canada College. Upon his graduation he gave himself up to drama where he has attained well-merited fame in many successful plays, the latest being "Mary's Ankle," in which he was co-starred with Irene Fenwick. His motion picture debut was made with Metro in "The Trail to Yesterday," since when he has appeared in such productions as "No Man's Land," "Boston Blackie's Little Pal," "Unexpected Places," "Hitting the High Spots," and "The Spender."—Advt.

At Griffin's.

The name of Henry B. Walthall is an important one in the motion picture world. It stands for artistry, personal appeal and talents of the highest order. He was announced in a photoplay is sufficient to fill any theatre, but when it is announced that Mr. Walthall is to be seen in a Thos. H. Ince picture production, and in the case of "The False Faces," which will be displayed at Griffin's to-day, Friday and Saturday, his drawing power is doubled. Louis Joseph Vance is author of the story, which is a second series of exploits involving that fascinating character "The Lone Wolf," and which appeared serially in The Saturday Evening Post. The screen version offers the most elaborate entertainment that could be devised, particularly at this time. Some time ago the first exploit of this story entitled "The Lone Wolf," and attracted widespread interest and no doubt this second series "The False Faces" will arouse deep interest. Henry B. Walthall is the hero, and his portrayal of "The Lone Wolf," is as masterly as his previous creations for the screen. This picture is one which could rank with the very best, and will appeal to anyone who likes action, excitement and romance. You cannot afford to miss it.—Advt.

OBITUARY

Late Mrs. Ann Draper.

An old and much-respected resident of Glenburnie passed away on Thursday in the person of Mrs. Ann Draper, widow of the late Richard Draper, following an illness extending over two weeks. Deceased was a daughter of the late William Patterson, was born in the township of Storrington, and was in her 76th year. She was married to the late Richard Draper in 1876, and had lived in Glenburnie all her life. Her husband died fifteen years ago. In religion deceased was a devout member of the Church of the Holy Name at Kingston Mills, and was also very active in patriotic and charitable work. She was a member of the local Red Cross Society. Surviving are one son, Richard J., and three daughters, Mrs. A. Medley, and the Misses Mary and Alice, all of Glenburnie.

STRUCK HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW.

And Was Called Upon to Pay a Fine in Police Court.

It is very often the case that the peacemaker in a "scrap" gets the worst of it.

A case before Magistrate Farrell, on Thursday morning, worked out this way. Albert Duffy, pleaded guilty to a charge of assaulting ra. J. Leonard, his mother-in-law. He was fined $10 and costs.

It appears that Duffy and his wife had some trouble when the mother-in-law tried to make peace, with the result that Duffy got angry and blackened her eyes. Duffy was placed under arrest Wednesday night by Sergt. Marshall Armstrong, on a warrant.

Hugh Thompson arrested by Constable Cotter, on a charge of being intoxicated in a public place, was remanded for a week. He said he got liquor on a doctor's order, but the magistrate was not satisfied with his story.

A meeting of the harbor improvements committee was held in the council chamber at noon. A government engineer was present and the situation was fully discussed. Plans are to be at once prepared embodying the views of the committee.
