

Pimples Broke Out All Over Face, Arms and Neck

Pimples are a sure sign that the blood is not in its proper shape. While the skin is the seat of the irritating, unsightly pimples, the real disease is in the blood.

Medicated lotions and powders may allay the itching and irritation but never cure, no matter how long and faithfully continued, and the condition is often aggravated and the skin permanently injured by their use. The disease is more than skin deep; the entire circulation is poisoned.

Burdock Blood Bitters quickly and effectually cures blood and skin troubles, because it goes direct to the root of the disease and stimulates and restores normal, healthy action to the different organs, cleanses and enriches the blood, and thus relieves the system of all poisonous secretions.

B. B. B. cures permanently because it leaves none of the original poison to ferment in the blood and cause a fresh attack.

Mrs. E. M. Davidson, Daysland, Alta., writes:—"Last summer I was greatly troubled with pimples breaking out all over my face, arms and neck. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after taking two bottles, the pimples had almost all disappeared. I shall always recommend this remedy to anyone afflicted with skin troubles."

B. B. B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Omsk, Kolchak's Capital

OMSK, seat of the Government headed by Admiral Kolchak, as temporary dictator, to which the Archangel, Southern Russia, and other anti-Bolshevik groups have pledged co-operation, is an historic city, despite its comparative isolation.

Located on the Irtysh river, longer than the better-known Volga and approximately as long as the Mississippi, Omsk, erstwhile seat of government of the Steppes region of West Siberia, under the monarchy was the crossroads of the routes to Central Russia, Orenburg and Turkestan.

It lies along the trans-Siberian Railway, running from Moscow to Vladivostok, a 5,385-mile journey, taking thirteen days, formerly made in an express train equipped with bathrooms, dispensary and library.

Amid the ruins of an old fort, behind the museum of the Imperial Russian Geographical Society, stood, until a few years ago, the house in which the famous Russian novelist, Fedor Dostoevsky, spent his four years of imprisonment ten years before the Civil War in America.

Here Dostoevsky wrote his Siberian novel, "Recollections of a Dead House," translated into English under the title, "Buried Alive in Siberia" which is the "Little Dorrin" of the Siberian exiles. Indeed, his subjects and characters have been compared to those of Dickens, though his treatment is far more grim. Out of his experience with criminals while at Omsk also came his "Crime and Punishment," in which, with semi-prophetic vision, he pictured a future Russian people freed from bonds of force but united by ties of mutual trust and kindness.

In the principal square of Omsk stands the Church of St. Nicholas, in which hangs a banner reputed to have been that of Yermak, a Cossack bandit of the Volga, who turned over the vast domain of Siberia to Ivan the Terrible in order to procure his own restoration to Moscow court favor.

Thus that tyrannical and talented Czar came into possession of the extensive territory which had been wrested from the Mongolians by Russians who had fled from the mad ravages of Ivan. This same Ivan, it will be recalled, threw his regents to the dogs, dared to proclaim himself Czar, though his father had not, then summoned the first Russian National Assembly, killed his son in a fit of anger, and took the hood of the strictest monastic order just before the end of a dissolute personal and brilliant political life.

Founded only about 200 years ago, Omsk now is a city approximately the size of Hamilton, Ont. It is neither well built nor industrially important. Its nearest neighbor along the Irtysh is Tara, an older city, where Peter the Great ordered 700 citizens butchered because they declined to take an oath of allegiance.

The Omsk Museum was a principal point of interest for tourists, because of its collection of ethnological relics of the Steppes, or barren plains of Western Siberia, which included many prehistoric specimens.

Long a Cossack centre, the Siberian Cossacks found Omsk a convenient rallying place to resist the Bolshevik influences which appealed strongly to a foreign or mixed element in Russia that has no counterpart in Siberia. Descendants of many of the colonists sent to Siberia by the Government, and also of many political exiles, are of good Russian stock.

Watch Jewels

There are in every good watch from seven to twenty-one "jewels." Sounds rich, doesn't it?

Some of them are rubies, others sapphires—two kinds of gem stones rated much higher in market value than the diamond.

These sapphires and rubies, furthermore, must, to serve the watch-making purpose, be flawless.

How, then, can the watchmakers afford to buy them? Surely they must get them cheap. As a matter of fact, they do, because the gem-stones used for this purpose are of inferior color and brilliancy—useless, even if they were bigger, for jewelry.

Twelve hundred thousand first-class watches manufactured on this continent annually call for 12,000,000 jewels—5,000,000 rubies and sapphires and 7,000,000 garnets.

A watch is said to "run" on so many stones. The more valuable the timepiece, the greater the number of stones used in its make-up. The tiny gems, pierced to receive the axles of wheels, offer a minimum of friction, and do not wear out easily.

Enormous quantities of these watch-jewels are cut in Switzerland and marketed in boxes of 100 and 1,000. To each stone is given a rounded form with a hole through the centre.

The Earliest Elevator.

The earliest mention of a device in any way resembling the modern elevator or lift may be read in Vitruvius, who describes a hoisting machine which was invented by Archimedes. This elevator of the second century B. C. was worked by ropes which were coiled upon a winding drum by a capstan and levers. The same writer refers to another similar machine which was made to rotate by a man who walked inside the capstan. Such a primitive elevator is still in use to lift passengers and luggage from the first to the second story of a convent on Mount Sinai.

Dutch Tanneries.

On account of the inability to import tanning materials overseas, several Dutch tanneries have built small extracting plants at an expense of about $20,000 each.

It is a wise contrivance of nature that prevents a man's slumbers from being disturbed by his own snoring. The nearest approach to a ball-bearing watch is the sign where it is occasionally kept in storage.

Y.M.C.A.'s Good Service

CANADIAN Y.M.C.A.

Help Continue Work for Soldiers and for Canada.

CANADIAN Y.M.C.A.

"I believe," said Lieut.-General Sir Arthur Currie one day in March, 1918, while the fate of the world was trembling in the balance, "that the authorities should recognize the extremely valuable factor the Y.M.C.A. is in winning battles, and I think you ought to have the personnel and equipment necessary to carry on your work.....I do not see how, with the men and materials you have, you can do more than you are doing. But if you can, do so. We need it and appreciate it."

Every public institution is rightfully subject to criticism. The Young Men's Christian Association is no exception. The very magnitude of the Y.M.C.A.'s work for the soldiers brought it under the white light of criticism. But its record of four and a half years has not been successfully assailed.

For every dollar of gross profits made in Y.M.C.A. canteens it was necessary to raise a dollar and a half by public subscription to meet the total expenses of the Overseas services. It will be seen therefore, that absolutely all profits were absorbed in the cost of the service to the soldiers.

The policy of the Y.M.C.A. in its war work was primarily free service, not free supplies, but nevertheless, since December 31st, 1916, soldiers in the Canadian Corps area in France, Belgium and Germany were supplied tea, coffee, cocoa, orangeade and lemonade at the "Y" free. Also cigarettes, chocolate, biscuits, etc. were given free to walking wounded, stretcher bearers, and working parties in cases of emergency. In addition 5% of the sales was distributed among units in the war zone to be spent on extra rations, comforts, etc. for the men. Supplies and cash given away during 1918 amounted to $299,650.28.

The prices charged in the Y.M.C.A. canteens were fixed by the British War office and were the same as those charged throughout the British Army. These prices were fixed for the protection of the soldiers, and were from 50% to 100% lower than prevailing prices in overseas civilian stores. They were also as low or lower than retail prices in Canada.

Remember these facts when Y.M.C.A. canvassers wait upon you for your subscription to the Red Triangle Fund to-day. The Y.M.C.A. Service to soldiers will be maintained until Demobilization is complete—if you will be generous to-day.

Help the Y.M.C.A.'s work for Canada's returning soldiers. Help the Y.M.C.A. extend Red Triangle Service to our industrial workers, and to men and boys of rural Canada.

Help the Y.M.C.A.'s extension of the work for Canada's 300,000 'teen-age boys. Help the Y.M.C.A. construct the men who will reconstruct Canada.

Help the Dominion Council, Young Women's Christian Association care for wives and children of our soldiers on the journey to Canada from overseas. Help the Y.W.C.A. extend its service for Canadian women and girls.
