

In the Realm of Women --- Some Interesting Features

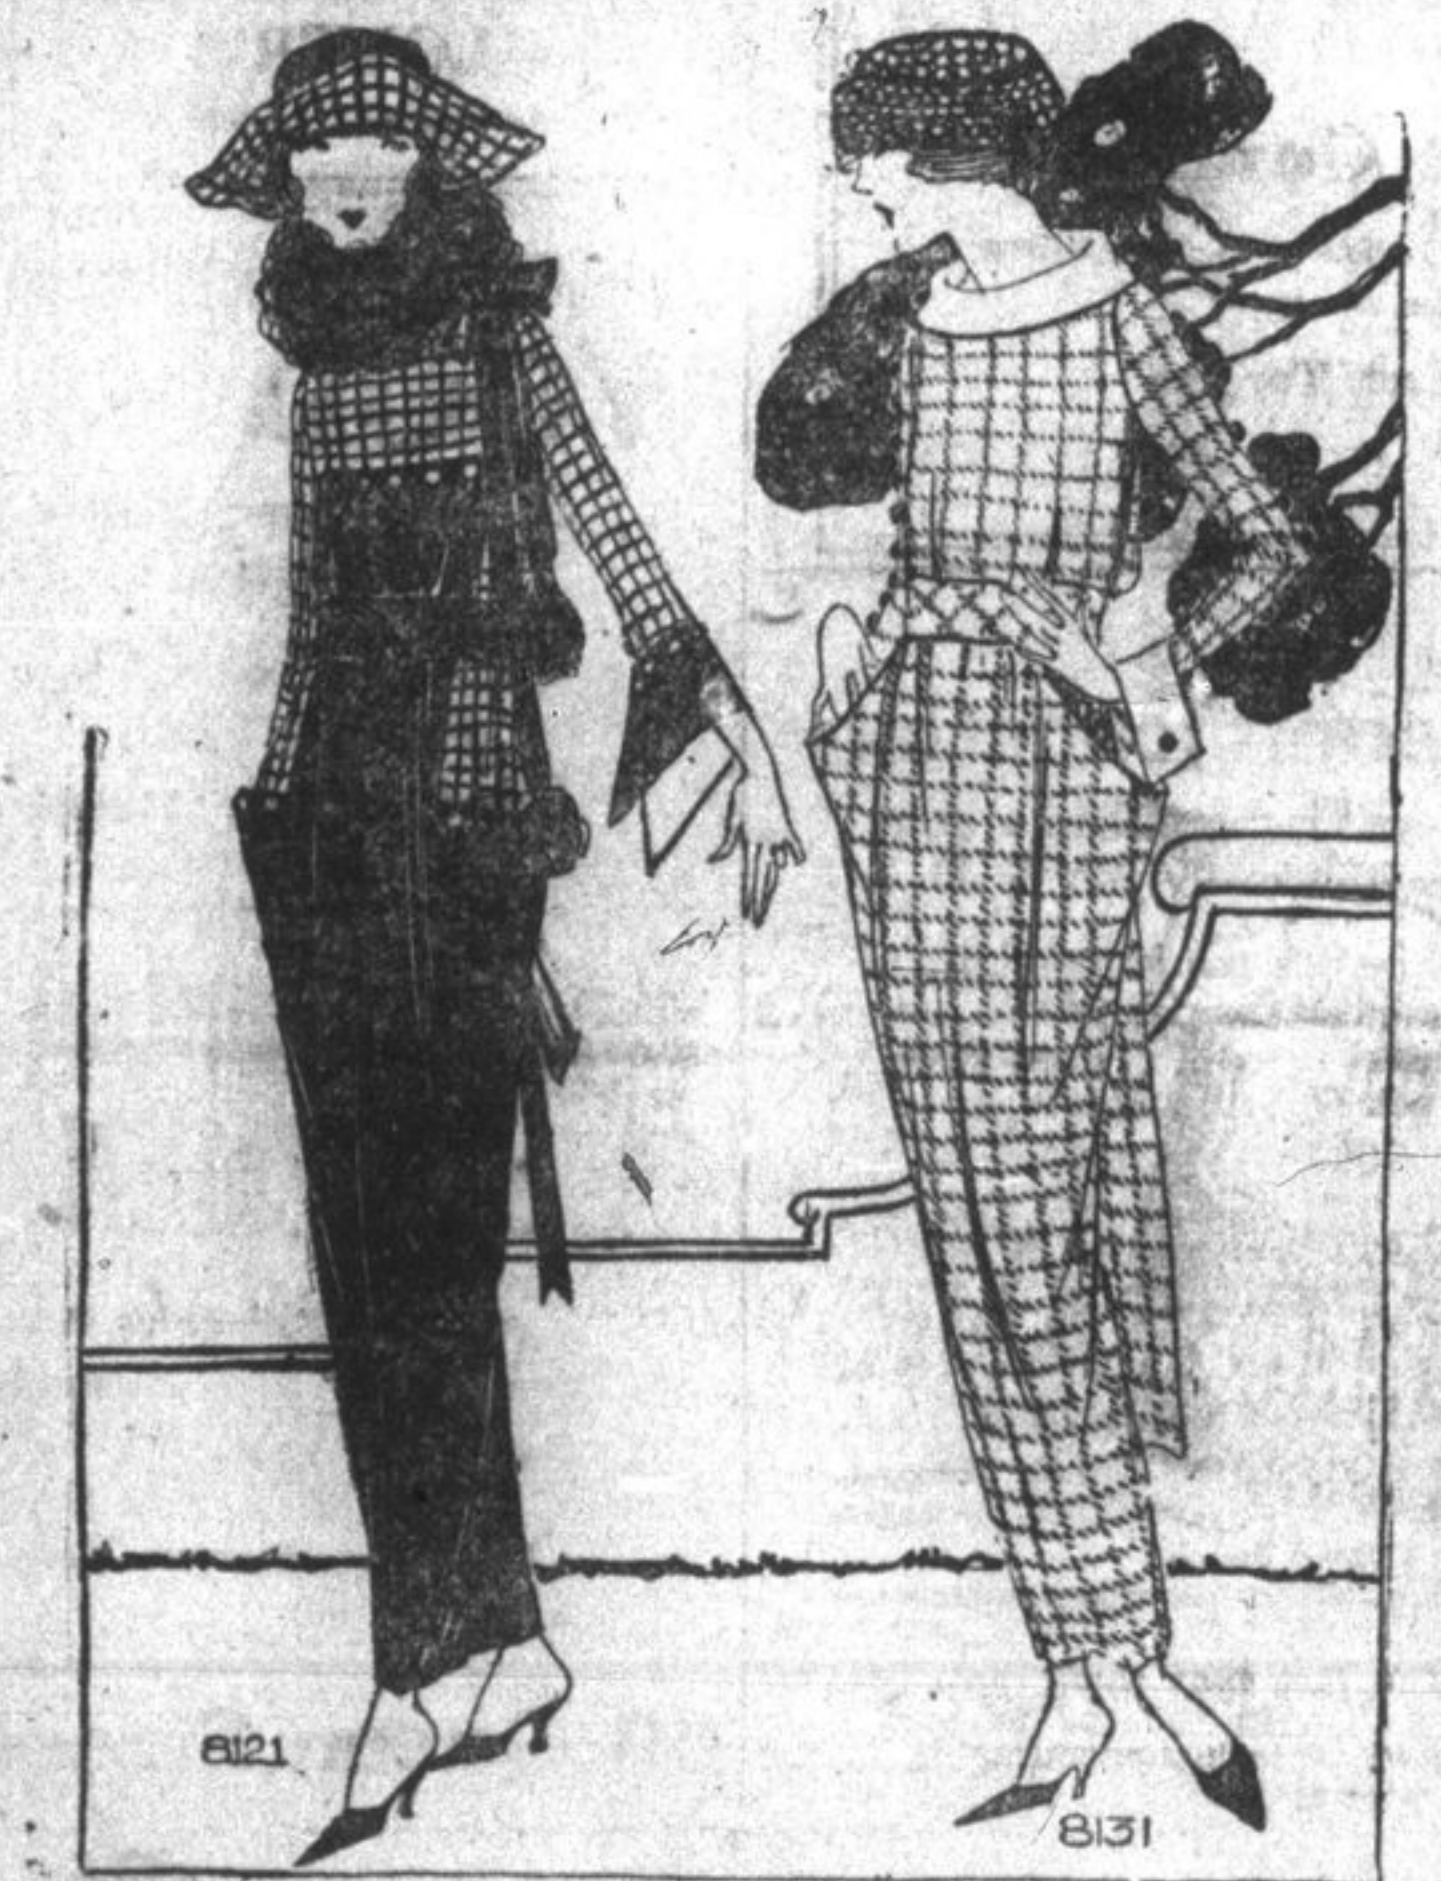

Seen In The Shops.
Colored organdies are very popular for blouses.
Navy blue and cherry is a favorite combination.
Organdie is used in trimming on gowns of soft silk.
The new frocks are still straight and not very tight.
Unusual new vests are made of silk gingham.
A good deal of crewele yarn appears in the fashionable embroideries.
Blousers are becoming more and more popular for the narrow skirts.
There is a fad of carrying a framed handbag made of the suit or dress material. The fabric is sometimes embroidered.
High collars are not in favor. The open throat is preferable.
Just how anyone would want black lingerie is hard to tell, but that it appeals to some women is obvious from the fact that the shops continue to have such garments on hand.

Knows the Ropes.
"What sort of traveler is Two-bite?"
"An experienced one."
"How is that?"
"Sam" and all the waiters "George."

FROCKS OF SURPASSING CHIC.
Dark blue tricotine is draped over fibre satin to develop the stunning frock shown to the left. Plain satin buttons trim the upper edge of the skirt, the upper edge of the panel forming the bib-front and the flare cuffs. The materials combined in the dress form the composite hat. Medium size requires 2 1/2 yards 54-inch tricotine and 2 1/2 yards 40-inch fibre satin. Emphasizing the beauty of youthful lines is the second model in novelty plaid. Finishing the neck is a jazz collar and quite unusual are the flare cuffs on the close-fitting sleeves. Satin buttons complete the decorative scheme, at least three dozen being used. Medium size call for 3 1/4 yards 54-inch material with 1/2 yard satin for collar and cuffs.
First Model: Pictorial Review Dress No. 8121. Sizes, 14 to 20 years. Price, 35 cents.
Second Model: Dress No. 8131. Sizes, 16 to 20 years. Price, 35 cents.

You Just Try NR For That Indigestion

Get your organs of digestion, assimilation and elimination working in harmony and watch your trouble disappear. NR does it or money back.

One Day's Test Proves NR Best

The stomach only partly digests the food we eat. The process is finished in the intestines where the food is mixed with bile from the liver. It must be plain to any sensible person who realizes this, that the stomach, liver and bowels must work in harmony if digestive troubles are to be avoided or overcome. This fact also explains why sufferers from indigestion, who suffer more or less from headaches, biliousness and constipation.

If you are one of the many unfortunate persons who cannot eat without suffering afterward, if you are constipated, have bilious epile, headaches, coated tongue, bad breath, variable appetite, are nervous, losing energy and feel your health slipping away, take this advice and get a box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) right today and start taking it. Give it a trial for a week or two.

NEIL REQUESTS BAB TO SAY NOTHING OF HIS AFFAIRS TO HIS AUNT

CHAPTER LXXXVI.
The next day Aunt told us all about the accident. It had been a rear end collision and several had been badly injured; two or three killed outright.
"It was a terrible experience," she said. "One I hope will never be repeated, although it makes very little difference how we die, if only we are ready." She was a very good, and really religious woman.
"I thought that train never would come," I said.
"It would have been very lonely and tiresome for Neil had you not been with him. I know of nothing more worrying than waiting way into the night in a railroad station. Then, too, you were worrying about me," she had turned to Neil at her last sentence. I was about to say that I had been the one who waited alone, but caught myself just in time. Neil flushed when she said that it would have been trying for him to wait all alone. I would not embarrass him by letting her know that he had arrived at the station only a few moments before she came.
I hoped great things from Mrs. Carter's visit. Neil, was very fond of her, very proud to have her see how well he had done and anxious for her good opinion. Perhaps Lorraine Morton and Mr. Frederick had not been quite so right as I had believed in saying that I couldn't do anything in a society way just at the present time. Aunt was very aristocratic, very fine appearing. She would be a great help if I should decide to persist in my plans. Yet even as these thoughts came I turned cold as other thoughts followed—that I might be snubbed, that Mrs. Powers might refuse to come to me, and all the other things which Lorraine had told me stood in the way of my success.
"You will remain at home, more now than your aunt is here, won't you?" I said to Neil.
"I shall if it is possible. But I cannot neglect my business even for her. I shall tell her that she will have to excuse me when I am unable to come home. Other than that I prefer she should know nothing of my business, my affairs."
"You will not go to those business dinners at Mrs. Orton's tho, will you? She would be horribly shocked that you would accept an invitation to a woman's house without me."
"I shall do what I think necessary for the success of the deals I am trying to put thru. If she hears of anything which displeases her, I shall know you have told her."
"Neil—you aren't doing anything wrong, are you dear?"
"What rot! I must say Bab that you are getting to be rather a wet blanket. You used to be so pleased when I was successful, now you act all the time like a bear with a grinch. When I look around and see how differently we live from what we did when we were first married, I can't understand you. Most women would be delighted to have as much as most young women. I mean, of course older people like Powers have more, but even they are in the minority."
"Sometimes I wonder if we weren't happier when we first met. You had more time for me then."
"I shall have all the time you will want after a few more years. You will be trying for me to go out and let you have a rest when that time comes."
"I should like to try it. But joking aside, Neil, it doesn't seem as if I could go on this way. I am so worried over—things."
"You mean that silly twaddle about my not going personally and testing the oil from every well; or testing the metal from every mine. It can't be done. I have to take a lot of things on faith, others will have to also—if they want to make money."
"But Neil that man Tearle, and Connor too must have very bad reputations. I do wish you would not be with them. It is your association with men like them that makes men like Mr. Powers afraid to trust you—and your—deals."
"I had been about to say schemes."
"Damn Powers. I can get along without him or any of them."
"Tomorrow—Bab is heartbroken because Neil has been drinking."

TALKING IT OVER

—With Lorna Moon—

The Spring Cleaning is Done.
The last curtain has been draped, and the last chintz cover put in place, and the very last small picture hung back on the newly papered walls; everything shines that should shine. There's a whiff of cedar oil in the hall, and the fragrance of pot pourri in the closets—the spring cleaning is done, thank goodness!

Even the man of the house is beginning to believe that something besides a malicious desire to scatter his pipes, prompted by moving and polishing and papering. He is beginning to get on friendly terms with the parrots that perch on his bedroom walls, and he isn't quite so scathing about the rose colored droaperies at his bedroom window. But he never will forgive the buff colored paper in his very own holiest of holies, he wants to know "why a man can't have a nice cherry red wall paper on his walls any more."

Sixteen years old is simply wild, (these are her own words) over the futuristic chintz in her room, she says it has "atmosphere," and she would like SO much to have black sheets and a lamp with a greeny blue shade.
It's easy to see that Roger is pleased with his room, he hasn't said a thing, but there has been a steady train all day, of fourteen year olds coming to look at the new wing of his model airship.
"Three and a half is hilarious over the cow with the crumpled horn that tosses the dog that worried the cat."
"Where is the cat?" no demands. And there is no cat, not that fresco. The man who designed it, quite evidently had no little investigation mark in his home or he would not have been so careless as to leave off the cat!
Come on summer, any time you like, we are all sweet and ready to receive you.

MRS. H. B. WILTSHIRE
Of 2 Woodlawn avenue east, Toronto, who has the honor of being the first woman to travel from Niagara Falls to Toronto by air. She took the trip Wednesday in an aeroplane piloted by her husband, Lieut. H. B. Wiltshire, leaving the Falls at 8:25 a.m. and arriving in Toronto at 3:45 a.m. This is not her only trip, as Tuesday night she flew with her husband from Hamilton to Niagara.

Beyond Expectations.
During one of the drafts a darkey who had been placed in class 4 appeared before his local board and said:
"Boss, if you-all can gib one ob dem divorce, dis chill will go to dat war."
"But, Rastus," protested Parson Redley, who besides being a member of the draft board had been the divine who had married Rastus, "why do you want a divorce? Don't you remember that you took Liza for better or for worse?"
"Yesser, I ain't forgot, but she done turned out wuss'n I thought."
Footloose.
"I can let you have a room on the top floor, sir, if you don't mind sharing it with another gentleman," the clerk said.
"All right. But do you suppose the gentleman will retire early? I'm in need of sleep and don't want to be disturbed."
"You'd probably be able to get a good night's rest before the gentleman comes in, sir. He's been stopping with us every spring for six or seven years, and this is the first time he's ever made the trip without his wife."

The London Times claims that its suggestion for the formation of an Imperial Guards Regiment has been very favorably received by Dominion men in London, and finds that though a cautious attitude is shown in official quarters, numbers of Canadians and Australians would enlist right away.
