he Kingston Delegates State That Radical and Unreasonable Proposals Were Voted Down.

The provincial convention of the was the most successful held so far, and the resolutions passed show clearly the policy of the organization. It should gain a great deal of public sympathy from the action taken on many questions: The Kingston delegates to the convention presented a very interesting and complete report of the convention, and paid special tribute to the solid manner in which the delegates were too radical and unreasonable. The following is a summary of the
