“What Sugar is That?”

OVER the tea cups, women frequently ask this question. Ever since the Sugar-rationing period of 1918, housewives have displayed a keen interest in the subject of Sugar. For it was then that they obtained new light on the source of that Sugar which they had found to be most satisfactory for table use and for preserving and baking. When Canada was without any of her usual supplies of raw Cane Sugar from the West Indies, Canadian homes were still supplied with Sugar. On asking her Grocer where it was coming from, the Canadian housewife learned that this Sugar she was getting—and that she found so satisfactory—was Sugar refined from Canadian Sugar Beets.

DOMINION CRYSTAL SUGAR

Women who use this brand have found it to be all that Sugar should be. And it is with great satisfaction that they realize that a Sugar so fine is “Canadian from the ground up.” It is a matter of pride that we are able to produce our own truly Canadian Sugar from our own Canadian-grown Beets.

You should know more about this product. You should read the whole interesting story as told in our beautiful Book “Sugar from Beet to Bowl.” A copy of this Book will be sent to you if you write requesting it. It explains fully how the juice is extracted from the Beets; how the juice is purified by filtering; how this juice is converted into sugar crystals; and how the sugar turns from brown to white. To read this Book, is just like taking a trip through one of our modern refineries. In those refineries we do refine from raw Cane Sugar, but our pride is in the product we make from Canadian Sugar Beets—there is none better.

Most Grocers have Dominion Crystal Sugar in 20 pound bags as well as in the larger bags and barrels. Most Grocers take pride in selling this superior and truly Canadian product. Ask your grocer for it.
