JITNEY DRIVER DIES SUDDENLY IN CAR

The Late George Tuttle Passed Away Before a Doctor Arrived.

George Tuttle, the well known jitney driver, empired suddenly in his car at 8.15 p.m. on Friday. He was driving drom the outer station to the city and when near the corner of Queen and Wellington streets he felt a queer sensation come over him and he stopped his car in front of Tougher's blacksmith shop. His actions attracted several people in the vicinity, among them Charles O'Connor who telephoned for Dr. Wiffiam Gibson. The unfortunate man rapidly lost consciousness and when the doctor arrived he was dead. James Reid's ambulance was called and the remains were taken to his undertaking parlors.

The deceased was about fifty-six and for years sailed on the st Rideau Queen. About two years ago he became a jitney driver and enjoyed good health until quite recently. For some time he was ob-liged to take a rest, but apparently regained his usual state of health, and his sudden death is a shock to a wide circle of friends. He is survived by his widow.
