

The Argument Unusual

Economy is a sense of proportion — you can get a steel engraving of King George in a two-cent stamp, but you wouldn't want to hang it on the wall. You can buy a lot of clothes that are cheaper than Livingston's. So can we, but we didn't buy them because they were cheap, we bought them because they weren't, and we recommend them because they are good.

SHOULD HAVE SPEEDOMETER

SO YOU CAN KEEP TAB ON YOUR AUTO.

Government Was Fined $10 and Costs Because Driver Did Not Think He Was Exceeding Limit—Woman Goes On Suspended Sentence On Charge of Assault.

If you are driving an automobile, and the car has no speedometer, be careful that you do not go over the speed limit. If you do you will be fined. Magistrate Farrell made this quite plain at Friday's session of the Police Court. A government car, used by the Soldiers Civil Re-establishment department was in the limelight, as the driver of the car exceeded the speed limit on coming down Princess street on June 19th. Constables Downey and Hughes were doing duty with their stop watches and their evidence showed that the car was travelling at the rate of twenty-nine miles an hour, while the law states that they must not exceed twenty miles an hour. The driver stated that he noticed the two constables keeping tab on the car. He did not have a speedometer, but did not think he was speeding. "It was exceeding the limit it was not to my knowledge," said the driver. Magistrate Farrell stated that he could not accept the excuse that there was no speedometer on the car. This did not remove the danger from speeding, and it would mean that the government must be prepared to pay a fine if they sent a car out without a speedometer. Sadie Bell frankly admitted that she had assaulted one Martha Byington, but as she pleaded guilty, Magistrate Farrell did not go into the awful details. Martha was willing to forgive and forget, providing Sadie would keep the peace in the future, and also pay the costs of the court.

Then Sadie had her say in the matter. She wanted the magistrate to do something to keep Martha's tongue quiet. "I want her to keep her tongue off me," she said to His Worship.

"I don't think we need go into this case," said the magistrate. My advice is that the two of you keep as far away from each other as possible.

The accused paid the costs of the court, and was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

THEATRICAL

At The Grand.
A delightful entertainment was given to crowded houses at the Grand Thursday evening. The feature picture was "Too Fat to Fight," a story of the entry of the United States into the war. The portly comedian, Frank McIntyre, is unable to get into the ranks of the combatants because he is too fat, but is ultimately accepted by the military "Y" and does splendid work at the front. There were many amusing incidents that kept the audience in high spirits. In addition to this picture, "Behind the Scenes" was presented by the Wilkes Tabloid Players, in which they added much to their popularity. The singing and dancing were good. "Too Fat to Fight" will be shown this evening again, but the vaudeville will be entirely new.—Adv.

At Griffin's.
The many admirers of Wallace Reid have ample opportunity to expound his praises in "The Roaring Road," his new Paramount picture which was exhibited for the first time last evening at Griffin's and more than pleased everybody present. There are several thrilling, exciting race scenes in this picture. The story concerns a young auto salesman who aspires to win the hand of his employer's daughter and also to win an impending grand prize auto road race in which his employer is interested. He successfully overcomes all obstacles, wins the race, and is rewarded with the employer's daughter.

Pauline Frederick in "Paid in Full" also shares equally in the honors last night. These two feature pictures and a Wm. Fox Sunshine Comedy, which is a series of screams, make up one of the most entertaining programmes to be seen anywhere. Don't miss it.—Adv.

At the Strand.
"False Evidence," shown at the Strand last night, with Viola Dana in a powerful role which combined deep emotion with whimsical humor, gripped and held the large audience which attended the first showing.

Miss Dana played Madelon, a wild and passionate girl of the mountains, who upsets the traditions of her primitive village by refusing to marry Lol Gordon, the man to whom she was betrothed at birth. She is, however, in love with Burr Gordon, Lol's cousin. The play is a powerful one which gives Miss Dana a role of great emotional drama with appealing and sympathetic heart interest. "The Unveiling Hand" is the title of the new World Picture starring Kitty Gordon which is showing at the Strand theatre and it is a peach of a picture—fast-moving, interesting and unusual.—Adv.

LABOR DEMONSTRATION FOR JULY 20TH AND 21ST

To Protest Against Allied Intervention in Russia or Elsewhere.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
Southport, Eng. June 27.—British, French and Italian labor representatives have decided to make a general demonstration on July 20th to 21st to protest against Allied intervention in Russia. This announcement was made by Arthur Henderson, British Labor leader, at the labor conference here to-day.

Mr. Henderson explained that the demonstration would be an attempt to prevent the governments of Europe from adopting any reactionary policy throughout the continent. It would be left to each country, he added, to decide whether the demonstration would take the form of political or industrial action. Resolutions would be passed protesting against any intervention in Russia and demanding the abandonment of conscription.

The conference later passed a resolution calling upon the Trades Union Congress to take industrial action in order to compel the British government to stop operations in Russia. There was a heated discussion over the resolution which was passed on a card vote by 1,894,000 to 935,000.

ROLLING BEER KEG WAS A CURIOSITY

A. W. Twigg Had Drawing Card For Thirsty Crowd of Passersby.

It is not everyone who is able to pick up a keg of beer on the streets in these dry days. That luck fell to A. W. Twigg, Princess street, on Thursday afternoon, however, when a keg fell off a motor truck employed to deliver John Labatt goods and rolled down the street in front of his tobacco shop. Mr. Twigg made a dive after it and it reposed in his place of business for an hour—a curiosity for thirsty passersby. However, the driver of the truck eventually returned for it and took it from the eyes of the multitude who had not seen a keg in many a day. It was stated that the keg also made a leap from the truck and that it was taken in charge by some soldiers who quickly imbibed the contents.
