The people of Canada are advised by the cost of living committee to buy cheap meat.

Politics should be left out entirely in dealing with prohibition. The best men in both parties believe in the principle, and it should not be made a party matter.

A suggestion has been made that America should cancel the war debt of Great Britain.

Sir Thomas White has resigned. While all do not agree with his latest budget, he must be given credit for the able manner in which he handled Canada's finances during the war.

The report of the cost of living committee puts the blame of high prices on the consumer and exonerates the profiteers and middlemen.

The Manitoba Free Press quotes facts and figures to show that strikes tend to greatly increase the cost of living.

Another shipload of German trophies, including tanks and guns, has arrived at Montreal.

In Italy profiteers are being sentenced to from three months to three years in prison, and in addition are having their goods confiscated.

A Kingston lady complains that the council, in its street paving, is more kind to horses than to mankind.

Germany is anxious to make an early start at reparation. Probably because the people there realize that the sooner they start the sooner they will have finished.

The leaders of both parties in the House of Commons paid tributes to the officers and men of the Canadian army.

The Vancouver Province points out that the men who flew across the Atlantic received $50.50 a minute.

A professor of Amherst College will try to speak to the people of the planet Mars.

Bonuses are again being paid to the civil servants, ranging from $50 to $420 each.

wonder that many of the returned soldiers are in favor of a bonus for veterans.

D. D. Mackenzie is probably better off without the presence of G. W. V. A. delegates at his convention.

A German firm has contracted for engineering work in Holland at a price $100 per ton less than the nearest British competitor.

The flight of the R-34 to America will make the Berliners glad that the end came when it did.

THE NATIONAL ANTHEM AGAIN. Civilians are told that whenever they are in an assembly at which the National Anthem is played, they should stand at attention or with bared head.

The practice of doing this is largely on the increase, due respect being paid by the large majority to the anthem played in honor of the head of the state.

THE FIRST AIR LINER. The R-34 is as big as the liner Adriatic.

Titus Oates, Died July 12, 1705. While the epithets, traitor, liar and coward, still retain their meaning in our language, the name of Titus Oates, who died two hundred and thirteen years ago today, will be universally execrated.

WORK. I toiled along for many years at hoeing beans and grooming steers, with weary bone and thigh.

ple's affairs, but they themselves are ruled by the people's representatives.

The clauses of the peace treaty contain another remarkable evidence of the growing power of democracy.

What can the feelings of this arch-criminal be while he is ordered to stand up and to listen while the greatest charges ever made against any criminal in history are read?

The triumph of democracy in his trial is complete. The fact that even a ruler is responsible to some one for his actions will be a grave warning to any other who may have ambitions for world-power.

to it and matters reached a climax when Sir Edmund Godfrey was found murdered in a ditch—probably done to death by Oates on his confederates to fan the flame.

HAS HANDLED MANY CASES. JUSTICE OF PEACE HUNTER SEVENTY-SEVEN YEARS OLD.

Hates to Send a Fellow to Jail if There is Any Chance of Him Turning Out all Right—Great Lover of Good Clean Sport.

"He is seventy-seven years young," said a close friend of Lt.-Col. George Hunter, justice of the Peace, who on Thursday was seventy-seven years old, and received the congratulations of a wide circle of friends.

Good sound advice has been given by Col. Hunter to many people. True, he does not always stick close to the law, in giving his decisions in a case, but he endeavors to find out how best a case can be settled, and after all, this is better than the law.

Col. Hunter is a keen lover of clean sport. Baseball is his "long suit", as the boys say. He follows very closely the games in all the big leagues, and it is his usual custom to go down to New York and Brooklyn every year and view a few of the big matches with "his son, Dr. Harry Hunter, who is a well-known graduate of Queen's University.

Citizens in all walks of life will join in extending congratulations to Col. Hunter and wish him many more years of good health.

Do not suffer from Oates, who died two hundred and thirteen years ago today, will be universally execrated.
