THEATRICAL

At the Grand. An excellent performance of high-class photoplays and vaudeville was presented to the large crowd at the Grand Opera House last evening. Jane and Katherine Lee, the youthful Fox fun-makers, appeared in a five-reel feature, "Tell It To the Marines," a picture showing the many pranks and tricks performed by the Lee children. Lew Fields, the popular stage star, was seen in a five-reel feature, "The Barker." An entire circus, with the sawdust ring, pink lemonade, brass band and the side-show, with its freaks, was engaged for a day to make a suitable background for the splendid acting of Mr. Fields and his leading lady, Miss Amy Dennis. Other films shown were a Mutt and Jeff cartoon, "Efficiency," a scenic reel showing the cause, and the means of overcoming a forest fire in British Columbia, also a good comedy, "The Cannon-fused Baby." A novelty act combining singing, dancing and banjo-playing, was offered, and proved pleasant amusement. This first-class bill will be repeated to-night and to-morrow afternoon and evening.—Advt.

At The Strand. "Some Bride," with Viola Dana as the star, was shown at the Strand Theatre yesterday to crowded audience which thoroughly enjoyed its fine comedy and delightful acting. Miss Dana is seen in the role of Patricia Marley, a young bride with "can't behave" eyes which are the constant source of annoyance to her jealous husband. Patricia is fond of life and flirting and is just a little bit careless of her husband's feelings. That he is unduly jealous is true, but she goes a little too far when she allows another man to kiss her. The rift between the two widens until it almost reaches the breaking point when Patricia, and her friend Victoria, devise a plan whereby Henry, the husband, is given the lesson he deserves and is brought to realize that he indeed has "some bride." The play is brilliantly written and cleverly acted and gives an evening of real entertainment. The supporting cast consists of names well known to screen audiences and numbers such players as Irving Cummings, Ruth Sinclair, Billy Mason and Florence Carpenter. The picture was directed by Henry Otto and the production made under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, director general.—Advt.

At Griffin's. The Griffin Theatre management, in introducing to its patrons a new departure from the usual programme of all motion pictures in the form of a legitimate vaudeville act, has been extremely fortunate, in that its act is one of merit and high class. Miss Jean Dawn, "the wireless girl," affords a clever act of so-called mind reading, which is delightfully entertaining. The audience is solicited before and during each performance by Miss Dawn's assistant, who passes out to persons desiring to do so, tablets upon which to write questions for Miss Dawn to answer. Blindfolded, she is seated before and in plain view of the audience, and without suffering herself to go into a "trance" or hysteria as is commonly employed by mind-readers with which to hoax an audience, she takes up the questions one by one and answers each, despite the fact the written question itself reposes in the hand or pocket of its writer. Miss Dawn's answers are clever. Miss Dawn will remain at the Griffin all this week to answer questions.—Advt.

EASTERN DAIRYMEN LOUD IN PROTEST. Resent the Fixing of Cheese Price by the British Food Board. Picton, July 29.—At the Picton Cheese Board a heated discussion took place over the arrangements made for the handling of Canadian cheese. Much indignation was expressed that members of the British Food Board should come to Canada and dictate prices and terms as to how the Canadian cheese business was to be handled, with drastic rules for buyers, with penalty of suspension for non-observance. Both buyers and salesmen expressed the opinion that the usefulness of the board as a means of competition was at an end. Many speakers in their remarks endorsed the action of Brockville, Cornwall and other boards in their protest to the Dominion Government.

After the races the people then adjourned to the grove where they sat down to an enjoyable supper and the members and children greatly appreciated the kindness of the directors and the Women's Guild in providing them with tea and ice-cream. After supper everyone assembled beneath a large maple tree while Prof. W. G. Jordan, D.D., of Queen's University presented the prizes to the lucky winners.
